| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | recognising the practical inclusion under the controlled terms of the framework. The third leased parcel of 2 acres of cabbage tree land sits within a different cluster, with John Robinson and Charles Steward on the southern boundary and Charles Steward and John Bagley on the western boundary. The configuration places the parcel within the south-eastern portion of the regularised landscape rather than at the head of Chapel Valley. The northern boundary description appears to be incomplete in the present text, with the engrossment leaving the bound either unrecorded or rendered illegibly. The lease commencement date of 25 March 1713 marks a departure from the standard 25 March 1712 used across most of the 1713 sitting. The Sich lease commences from the most recent Lady Day rather than from the standard back-dated commencement, matching the unusual treatment seen in the John Goodwin lease processed in the same sitting. The shared departure from the standard pattern across these two instruments suggests the council had taken particular institutional decisions to date them from 1713 rather than 1712, perhaps reflecting recent settlements or fresh allocations rather than regularisations of long-established occupation. The double vesting in Margaret Sich and the heirs of John Sich deceased preserves the second-marriage children's settlement that runs through all the Sich instruments. The formula appears with some scribal variation in the present text, with the obligation clause shifting between forms that include her, him, them and the various combinations of heirs, executors and administrators. The variation reflects the practical difficulty of capturing a complex multi-party vesting in a standard lease template designed for single male holders. The sealing of the counterpart by Benjamin Sich, signing in place of or on behalf of Margaret, marks his appearance as the working representative of the family. Benjamin had earlier appeared as a boundary holder across multiple Sandy Bay confirmations in 1713 and connects to James Sich, the holder of John Beale's land under temporary arrangement in 1707. Benjamin's position as the signing party on the present lease, while Margaret remained the principal vested party, indicates he was perhaps acting as her adult representative or as the eldest of her sons by John Sich who would inherit through the double vesting. The reduced witness panel of Thomas Cason and H[...] Francis, without John Alexander as register, matches the pattern seen in other closing instruments of the day. The procedural withdrawal of the register from the final leasehold extensions continued through the Sich pair. Speculations The sealing of the counterpart by Benjamin Sich rather than by Margaret herself perhaps marks the moment at which the family's working management was transferred from the elderly widow to her adult son or stepson. The arrangement gave Margaret continued institutional standing as the principal vested party while delegating the day-to-day operations of the leasehold to a younger generation. The structure would have allowed the family to continue building up its working presence on the ground without requiring Margaret's personal attendance at each subsequent administrative event, with Benjamin taking on the responsibilities of representation. The pattern matches other arrangements seen in the records where senior holders progressively delegated management to younger family members while retaining the underlying titles in their own names. The commencement date of 25 March 1713 rather than the standard 25 March 1712 may perhaps reflect a particular institutional treatment for the Sich estate connected to the unusual complexity of the family settlement. Margaret's double vesting with the heirs of John Sich required careful resolution of the inheritance |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | structure, and the council may have used the later commencement date to mark the lease as a fresh institutional act rather than a back-dated regularisation. The choice would have separated the new tenure from the underlying historic occupation, giving the settlement a defined starting point that the council could use to manage future questions about the descent of the estate. The widely distributed configuration of the three leased parcels across different parts of the landscape suggests Margaret had been actively building up her working position across multiple regions rather than concentrating on a single block. The 4-acre parcel at the southern edge of her 40-acre freehold, the 2-acre enclave at the head of Chapel Valley, and the 2-acre cabbage tree parcel within the Robinson-Steward-Bagley cluster all point to a strategic accumulation of small productive extensions adjoining or near the various freehold cores. The pattern shows Margaret as a substantial holder operating through small adjacent extensions rather than through large new acquisitions, with each leased parcel serving to extend or consolidate a particular freehold portion of the broader estate.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 177 | 172          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Tradeing to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm Unto James Draper Freeholder, Twenty Acres of Land being the Son of his deceased Grandfather Comp[a] Draper, Lying Scituate in Fishers Vally Butting and Bounding towards the North, East &amp; Deed to South upon the Honourable Companys Wast Land, and towards the West, upon the Land of James Sutton Isaac Sen[jor] Freeholder, Which said Twenty Acres of Land He the said James Draper Draper Hath a Just Right and Title too, As may more Largely appear, Upon Examination in a Con- sultation of the Third &amp; A. A. day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any p[er]son to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limmitted, but none appearing or any Objection made, To have and to hold The said Premises to him the said James Draper his Heires and Assignes for ever. Upon Condition That he the said James Draper his Heires and Assigns shall always Do and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires &amp; Successors and to the said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Con- stitutions of the said Island, In witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these P[re]sents Have sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. In the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to James Draper. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to James Draper, freeholder, grandson of his deceased grandfather Draper, 20 acres of land in Fishers Valley. The parcel was bounded north, east and south by the Company's waste land, and west by Sutton Isaac senior freeholder's land. Draper's title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. James Draper, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The confirmation establishes James Draper's title through a three-generation chain of inheritance descending from his deceased grandfather. The phrasing in the original text, identifying him as the son of his deceased grandfather Draper, appears to be a scribal slip for grandson, since the body of the deed clearly contemplates inheritance across two generations of male succession. The configuration places James Draper as the third generation of his family on the island, with the original grandfather as the initial allottee, the intermediate generation (perhaps Draper's father) bridging to the present holder, and James himself now receiving the regularised freehold confirmation. The chain of inheritance through the grandfather rather than through a more recent father indicates either that James Draper's father had died before the family estate could be passed through him to the grandson, or that the grandfather had directly bequeathed the holding |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | to James by will, bypassing an intermediate generation. The institutional preservation of the original grandfather's name in the deed shows the working memory of the family's connection to the parcel extending across at least two generations of mortality. The grandfather Draper named here is perhaps the same James Draper, free planter, who had appeared as a seller in the 29 November 1699 sale of a messuage house near Fort James to Samuel Maxwell corporal for £18 0s 0d. The earlier James Draper had been an active free planter on the island in the late seventeenth century, and the present 1713 deed regularises ground that may have descended through his line to the grandson James Draper of 1713. The Fishers Valley location places the Draper parcel within the same region as the Desfountain children's confirmation and the Samuel Jeffrey holding processed in the same sitting. The cluster of Fishers Valley confirmations across the 1713 framework demonstrates the council's systematic regularisation of the entire valley's holdings within a coordinated session. The western boundary against Sutton Isaac senior freeholder marks Sutton Isaac as a continuing presence in the regularised landscape. Isaac had earlier appeared as the donor of the 29 October 1698 gift to his grandson Stephen Audouart, as a boundary holder to French's 1705 Chapel Valley plot, and as a witness to multiple instruments. His appearance as Draper's western boundary holder by 1713 confirms his settled position in Fishers Valley alongside his other documented holdings. The placement of the Draper parcel on three sides against Company waste indicates a relatively isolated position within the regularised landscape, with only one neighbouring freeholder named. The configuration suggests the Draper holding sat on the outer margin of regularised Fishers Valley settlement, with Company waste forming the limits in three directions. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving full procedural weight despite the relatively modest 20-acre size of the holding. The consultation date of 3 March 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, places the examination of Draper's title in the same week as the Greentree confirmation, the John Goodwin confirmation and the Robert Addis confirmation. The shared consultation date demonstrates the council's batch processing of multiple holdings within a concentrated review period. Speculations The choice to identify the inheritance through the grandfather rather than through a more recent ancestor perhaps reflects the particular character of the Draper family's experience on the island. The grandfather may have been a foundational holder whose presence in the institutional memory extended back to the original allotment period of the 1680s, with his name accordingly carrying special weight in establishing the chain of title. The intermediate generation may have been short-lived or absent from the island, with the working tenure passing from the grandfather to James directly through some testamentary or familial arrangement. The institutional preservation of the grandfather's name accordingly served not just as a routine chain of title but as recognition of the family's long-standing connection to the ground. The relatively isolated position of the parcel, with three sides against Company waste and only one neighbouring freeholder, perhaps reflects the limits of regularisation in the more remote portions of Fishers Valley. The 1711 framework had focused primarily on densely interlocked holdings where boundary disputes were most likely to arise, with frontier estates such as the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Draper holding receiving comparatively less reciprocal mapping. The configuration shows the institutional regularisation extending outward from the more populous areas, with marginal estates receiving confirmation but operating within a less developed network of adjoining freeholds. The omission of any consultation entry from the present deed referring to the grandfather's name specifically perhaps reflects the practical institutional difficulty of reconstructing a complete chain of title across two generations of mortality. The council's examination may have rested on James Draper's working possession of the ground and on testimonial evidence from neighbours such as Sutton Isaac senior, rather than on documentary evidence of the original grandfather's allotment. The beat of drum procedure operated as the institutional safeguard against any unrecorded claim, with the silence on the appointed day extinguishing any rival interest and clearing the title for the grandson regardless of any gaps in the underlying documentary record.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 178 | 173          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Comp[a] of Merchants of England Tradeing to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Lett and Set unto James Draper, freeholder, Five Acres of Land, Scituate and Lying under the Main Ridge on Sandy Bayside, butting towards the North, upon the Land of Richard Hardings Children Comp[a] towards the East to the said Main Ridge, towards the South upon the Land of Lieut[ena]nt Charles Cason[?] Lease to and towards the West upon Three Acres of Land belonging to James Rider To have and James to hold, the said Five Acres of Land to him the said James Draper his Executors Administ[rators] Draper and Assignes for the Terme and Time of Twenty one Years Commenceing from the Twenty fifth day of March One Thousand Seven hundred and Twelve. Upon Condition. That he y[e] said James Draper his Executors Administrators and Assignes Shall always Do and bear true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors. And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, And yearly pay at the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25 day of March) the Annual Rent and Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides one Shilling Duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good and Currant money of the said Island, Unto the said Honourable Company, and their Successors. And that he the said James Draper his Executors Administrators and Assignes, Shall and Do at the Expiration of the said Term of Twenty one years, leave the Fences about the said Land in as good repaire as they are now and not to alter the said Fences which are the Land marks, and which Occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto | Island of St Helena. Company lease to James Draper. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to James Draper, freeholder, 5 acres of land under the Main Ridge on Sandy Bay side. The parcel was bounded north by the land of Richard Harding's children, east by the Main Ridge, south by Lieutenant Charles Cason's land, and west by 3 acres belonging to James Rider. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1712, with Draper, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Draper and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Draper was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. James Draper signed and sealed the counterpart. Witnessed by Thomas Cason and Henry Francis. Interpretations The lease takes James Draper's working presence into a different region from the freehold confirmed in the same-day deed. The freehold of 20 acres sat in Fishers Valley while the present 5-acre lease lies under the Main Ridge on Sandy Bay side. The configuration shows Draper holding ground in two distinct parts of the island, with the family's working occupation distributed across multiple regions rather than concentrated in a single block. |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Annexed, Nor to dispose of this Lease, or Interest in the same, without the Consent of the Governour &amp; Coun[c]ell for the time being. In Witness whereof the said Hon[ble] United Company and Lords Pro- prietors to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Vally this Fourth A. day of August. In the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen And the said James Draper to the other p[ar]t hath Sett his Hand and Seale.Sealed and Delivered James Draper In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H Francis | The southern boundary against Lieutenant Charles Cason's land introduces a new individual into the records. Earlier instruments had documented Thomas Cason rising from ensign in 1711 to lieutenant by 1713, with multiple Sandy Bay leases recorded in his name. The reference here to a Lieutenant Charles Cason perhaps reflects either a scribal slip for Thomas Cason or the presence of a different Cason family member with the same officer rank. The shared surname Cason, the shared rank of lieutenant, and the Sandy Bay location all point toward Thomas Cason being the intended individual, with Charles being a misreading or an alternative name not previously documented. The northern boundary against the land of Richard Harding's children connects directly to the 4 August 1713 grant to the children of Richard Harding, who had received confirmation of 19 acres across two Sandy Bay parcels. The reciprocal mapping confirms that Draper's leasehold sat immediately to the south of the Harding children's freehold, with both estates within the same coordinated cluster of Sandy Bay holdings regularised in the same sitting. The western boundary against 3 acres belonging to James Rider records a small Rider parcel within the same area, distinct from his larger holdings elsewhere. The 3-acre parcel may represent a fragment of Rider's broader estate that had been separated through earlier transactions or that operated as a particular working unit alongside his other ground. The eastern boundary against the Main Ridge places the parcel against a fixed topographical feature rather than another holder, with the dominant ridge forming the institutional limit of regularised settlement on that side. The configuration matches other Sandy Bay leases of the day where the Main Ridge served as a natural fixed reference. The reduced witness panel of Thomas Cason and Henry Francis, without John Alexander as register, matches the pattern seen in other closing instruments of the day. The procedural withdrawal of the register from later leasehold extensions continued through the Draper lease, with the substantive title resting on the freehold confirmation that had received the full witnessing complement. The standard lease commencement date of 25 March 1712 matches the back-dating used across most of the 1713 sitting, distinguishing the present lease from the unusual 25 March 1713 commencement seen in the John Goodwin and Margaret Sich leases. The configuration suggests Draper's leasehold represented a regularisation of pre-existing occupation rather than a fresh institutional allocation. The cabbage tree or gumwood classification of the leased ground is not specified in the present text, matching the omission in the same-day freehold confirmation. The absence of vegetation categorisation from both Draper instruments contrasts with the careful classification recorded in most other Sandy Bay leases of the day. The presence of Thomas Cason as both a named adjoining boundary holder (under the variant Charles Cason) and as the first witness to the seal illustrates again the closely knit character of the literate circle that managed the 1711 framework. The same individual could appear in two distinct roles within the same single instrument. Speculations The dispersal of James Draper's working estate across two distant regions, with the Fishers Valley freehold and the Sandy Bay leasehold sitting in separate parts of the island, perhaps reflects a deliberate diversification of the family's agricultural base. The Fishers Valley ground may have served one type of cultivation while the Sandy Bay leasehold provided different productive opportunities under the main ridge. The configuration would have given the family a balanced working portfolio spread across |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | multiple landscape zones rather than concentrating all risk in a single block. The reference to Lieutenant Charles Cason on the southern boundary, against the background of Thomas Cason's well-documented progression through ensign to lieutenant, may perhaps point to a scribal slip in the engrossment rather than a separate individual. The clerk preparing the present deed may have inadvertently substituted the wrong Christian name when copying from the original draft or from the surveyor's notes, with the actual individual being the same Thomas Cason who witnesses the deed. Such slips would have been institutionally inconsequential because the boundary description rested on the recognised working position of the named holder, with the lieutenant rank and the Cason surname being sufficient to identify the correct individual. The fragmentation of James Rider's estate into small parcels including the present 3-acre boundary unit suggests his holdings were divided into many smaller working portions rather than held as a single consolidated block. The pattern matches the broader picture of Rider as a substantial holder whose ground appeared as boundary references across many other instruments of the day. The configuration would have allowed Rider to lease, sell or transfer individual small parcels within his estate without disturbing the wider working arrangement, providing flexibility in his management of the family's ground.  |
| 179 | 174          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Comp[a] of Merch[an]ts of England Tradeing to y[e] East Indies, Do hereby Confirm unto Simon Whaly Freeholder Ten Acres of Land Scituate in Fishers Vally, Buiting and bounding towards y[e] Comp[a] North, East, West and South Upon the Hon[ble] Comp[a]: West Land, Which said Ten Acres of Land Deed to He the said Simon Whaly, Hath a Just Right and Title too, As may more largely appear, Upon Simon Examination in a Consultation of the Third &amp; A. day of February A. One Thousand Seven Whaley hundred and Thirteen, and Notice being given by beat of Drum, for any p[er]son to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said Premises to him the said Simon Whaly his Heires &amp; Assignes for ever, Upon Condition That he the said Simon Whaly his Heires and Assigns shall always Do and bear true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires and Successors, and to the said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth day of August. In the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Simon Whaley. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Simon Whaley, freeholder, 10 acres of land in Fishers Valley. The parcel was bounded north, east, west and south by the Company's waste land. Whaley's title rested on a consultation of 3 February 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Simon Whaley, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations Simon Whaley introduces a new individual into the documented cohort of substantial freeholders. Earlier records had referenced a Simon Whaley as a boundary holder of the 22 acres at the head of Fishery Valley sold by Thomas Toster to Samuel Jeffrey on 12 April 1709, indicating his settled presence in the area at that earlier date. The present 1713 confirmation regularises his working occupation under the new tenure framework, formalising his position as a freeholder in the Fishers Valley cluster.                                                                                                                                                                |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                   | The configuration of the parcel surrounded on all four sides by Company waste places Whaley at a wholly isolated position within the regularised landscape. The absence of any named adjoining freeholder marks the holding as a frontier estate at the outer margin of regularised settlement. The pattern matches other isolated holdings such as the Joshua Johnson 14-acre confirmation under the King's Peak, where Company waste formed three of the four boundaries. The Fishers Valley location places Whaley within the same regional cluster as James Draper, the Desfountain children and Samuel Jeffrey, all of whom received same-period confirmations within the broader Fishers Valley regularisation. The cluster reflects the council's systematic processing of the entire valley's holdings within the coordinated 1711 framework. The Whaley surname connects backward to Pomon Whaley who had appeared as a witness (mark P) to the 13 July 1687 sale by Joseph Pratt to James Casthope of 10 acres with house. The earlier Whaley as witness to a transaction in the same general period suggests the Whaley family had been present on the island for at least a generation before the 1713 confirmation. Simon Whaley may be the son or grandson of Pomon Whaley, continuing the family line into the regularised freeholders of the new framework. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving the same procedural weight as substantial confirmations of larger size, demonstrating the consistent treatment of smaller holdings within the institutional framework. The consultation date of 3 February 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, matches the consultation date supporting the Joshua Johnson, Elizabeth Johnson and Francis Wrangham confirmations. The shared consultation date confirms that the council had examined multiple Fishers Valley and other holdings together within a single review session, before the formal sealing dispatched at the 4 August 1713 sitting. The simple and brief character of the deed, with no chain of earlier holders identified and no complex boundary configuration, reflects the relatively uncomplicated nature of Whaley's title. The parcel was perhaps a direct original allotment that had remained in family hands across the years without intermediate transfers, or it was a fresh allocation given to Whaley as recognition of his settled occupation. The absence of any leasehold extension paired with the present freehold confirmation marks Whaley as one of the few holders processed in the major sitting who received only a freehold instrument without a same-day lease. The configuration suggests his working estate was limited to the confirmed 10 acres without any adjoining hired Company ground requiring formal regularisation. Speculations The wholly isolated position of the parcel, surrounded entirely by Company waste, perhaps reflects Whaley's status as a marginal or smaller-scale holder operating at the outer fringe of regularised settlement. The 1711 framework had focused principally on the densely interlocking estates of substantial freeholders where boundary disputes were most likely to require institutional resolution, and Whaley's isolated 10-acre parcel sat outside the main cluster of high-value confirmations. The absence of adjoining named freeholders gave the council a simple administrative task in regularising the title, with no reciprocal mapping required against neighbouring holders. The absence of a paired leasehold extension may perhaps indicate that Whaley either had no working occupation of adjoining Company waste or that his working extension had not been processed under the 1711 framework. The configuration contrasts with most other |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | holders in the day, who received same-day pairs of freehold confirmation and leasehold extension covering their combined working estates. Whaley's single-instrument treatment suggests his presence in the regularised landscape was confined to the freehold core, with any informal use of adjoining waste continuing outside the documentary regime. The systematic regularisation of Fishers Valley holdings within the 1711 framework perhaps reflects a particular institutional priority. The valley contained multiple inherited estates including the Draper, Desfontain, Jeffrey and Whaley holdings, with the cluster representing several generations of settled occupation that the council aimed to clear into formal documentary cover. The coordinated processing of the entire valley's confirmations within a single session provided the institutional opportunity to fix the working landscape across multiple families simultaneously, with each confirmation contributing to the wider documentary settlement of the area.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 180 | 175          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honour[a]ble United Comp[a] of Merchants of England Tradeing to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Lett and Sett unto Simon Whaley Freeholder, Ten Acres of Land, Scituate and Lying at y[e] Head of Fishers Vally Buiting towards y[e] North-East and South upon the Comp[a] Land of Samuel Jefson, and towards the West, upon y[e] Main Ridge. To have and to hold Lease to the said Ten Acres of Land to him y[e] said Simon Whaly his Executors Administrators and Simon Assignes for y[e] Terme, and Time of Twenty One Years Commenc[e]ing from the Twenty fifth Whaley day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Twelve. Upon Condition That he the said Simon Whaly his Executors Administrators and Assignes shall always Do and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires and Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors. And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and Constitutions of y[e] said Island, And yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25 day of March) the Annuall Rent and Sum of Four per Shillings per Acre besides one shilling duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good &amp; Currant money of y[e] said Island, unto y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors. And that he the said Simon Whaly his Executors Administrators, and Assignes, shall &amp; Do at the Expiration of the said Term of Twenty one Years, leave y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repaire as they are now, and not to alter the said Fences which are the Land marks and not which will Occasion y[e] alteration of the Plot hereunto Annexed, no dispose of this Lease or Interest in y[e] same without y[e] Consent of y[e] Governour and Councell for the time being. In Witness whereof the said Honour[a]ble United Company and Lords | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Simon Whaley. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Simon Whaley, freeholder, 10 acres of land at the head of Fishers Valley. The parcel was bounded north, east and south by the land of Samuel Jefson, and west by the Main Ridge. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1712, with Whaley, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Whaley and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Whaley was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Simon Whaley sealed the counterpart with his mark. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease completes the same-day freehold-plus-lease packaging for Simon Whaley's Fishers Valley estate, correcting the earlier impression that he had received only a freehold instrument. The 10 leased acres at the head of Fishers Valley together with the 10 freehold acres of the same-day deed give Whaley a combined working holding of 20 acres in the valley. The configuration places his estate within the established pattern of paired freehold and leasehold extensions seen across the day. |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Proprietors to these P[re]sents have Set their Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Fourth A. day of August. A. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And the said Simon Whaley to the other part hath Set his Hand and Seale. his Simon Whaley Mark Sealed and Delivered In Presence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | The northern, eastern and southern boundary against the land of Samuel Jefson introduces a new individual into the records under that name. Samuel Jefson is perhaps a variant rendering or scribal slip for Samuel Jeffrey, who had received the 9 June 1711 freehold confirmation of 22 acres at the head of Fishers Valley and who had earlier bought 22 acres from Thomas Toster on 12 April 1709 for £80 0s 0d. The shared first name, the shared location at the head of Fishers Valley, and the broadly similar surnames all point to Jefson being the same individual as Jeffrey under a divergent spelling in the present engrossment. The configuration places Whaley's leasehold ground wedged into the surrounding Jeffrey estate, with the Main Ridge forming the western limit. The western boundary against the Main Ridge places the leasehold parcel against a fixed topographical feature rather than another holder. The Main Ridge served repeatedly across the records as a natural fixed reference at the upper elevation of cultivated ground, marking the limit beyond which the landscape rose into uncultivable terrain. Simon Whaley's signature by mark rather than by his own hand places him among the unlettered holders of the regularised landscape. Earlier records had shown a wide range of literacy across the documented cohort, with substantial holders such as Robert Bell signing in their own hand while many others, including soldiers, free planters and orphans, sealed with marks. Whaley's mark indicates he belonged to the latter group despite his confirmed status as freeholder. The configuration of the leasehold ground wedged within Jeffrey's larger estate creates a particular institutional dependence between the two holders. Whaley's working access to and from his leased ground would have run through or near Jeffrey's surrounding holding, requiring some practical arrangement between the two for movement, drainage, fencing and shared resources. The 1711 framework regularised both holdings under formal tenure but did not capture the working arrangements that would have underpinned their day-to-day coexistence. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied uniformly to both Whaley instruments despite the smaller scale of his holding, demonstrating the consistent procedural treatment given to all confirmations and leases regardless of the holder's status. The same-day pairing reverses the earlier interpretive position that Whaley had received only a freehold instrument without a same-day lease. The present lease shows that even relatively isolated frontier estates received the standard packaging treatment under the 1711 framework, with the institutional commitment to comprehensive regularisation extending across the full range of holders. The standard lease commencement date of 25 March 1712 matches the back-dating used across most of the 1713 sitting, distinguishing the present lease from the unusual 25 March 1713 commencement seen in the John Goodwin and Margaret Sich leases. The configuration suggests Whaley's leasehold represented a regularisation of pre-existing occupation rather than a fresh allocation. Speculations The configuration with Whaley's leasehold wedged within Jeffrey's larger estate perhaps reflects an earlier informal arrangement between the two families that the 1711 framework now formalised. Jeffrey had purchased 22 acres from Thomas Toster in 1709 and received Company confirmation of the same in 1711. The smaller Whaley parcel of 10 acres at the head of the valley may represent ground that Jeffrey had not himself worked, perhaps because the steep upper portion of the valley was less |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | suited to his cultivation patterns. The Company's allocation of the leased ground to Whaley would have served both parties: Jeffrey was relieved of unworked ground at the upper margin of his estate, while Whaley gained working access to a productive parcel at modest rental cost. The placement of Whaley's freehold of 10 acres lower in Fishers Valley and his leasehold of 10 acres at the head of the valley perhaps reflects a deliberate strategy of working both the lower and upper portions of the valley. The freehold core sat in the more developed lower part of the valley with no adjoining freeholders documented, while the leasehold extension reached up to the head of the valley against the Main Ridge. The configuration would have allowed Whaley to draw on different cultivation conditions at different elevations within a single working operation, with the freehold providing the secure residential base and the leasehold extending the productive reach into the upper terrain. The mark signature of Simon Whaley, set against the substantial 20-acre combined estate he held by 1713, perhaps indicates that working capacity and accumulated land could readily exceed literacy in the regularised landscape. The 1711 framework regularised the holdings of all settled occupiers regardless of their lettered status, with the documentary apparatus serving to protect their interests on terms the Company controlled rather than requiring the holders themselves to manage written records. Whaley's mark accordingly placed him within a substantial portion of the documented community who relied on the institutional system without participating in its literate operations.  |
| 181 | 176          | Island St Hellena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Comp[a] of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm unto Giles Smith Freeholder, Ten Acres of Land, Scituate nigh y[e] Head of Pleasant Valley, Buting &amp; Bounding Comp[a] towards y[e] North &amp; East upon y[e] Honourable Companys Waste Land, towards y[e] South upon Deed to Eighteen A[c]res of Land y[e] said Giles Smith Hires of y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: and towards y[e] West upon y[e] Land Giles of Daniel Leech, Which said Ten Acres of Land, He the said Giles Smith hath a Just right and Smith Title too, As may appear more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of the day of One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum, for any Person to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limitted, But none appearing or any objection made, To have and to hold, the said premises to him y[e] said Giles Smith his Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he the said Giles Smith his Heires and Assignes Do bear, always true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Giles Smith. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Giles Smith, freeholder, 10 acres of land near the head of Pleasant Valley. The parcel was bounded north and east by the Company's waste land, south by 18 acres that Smith hired from the Company, and west by Daniel Leech's land. Smith's title rested on a consultation of [...] 1714 (the precise date is left blank in the deed), with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Giles Smith, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on [...] 1713. The date of execution and the witnesses are not recorded in the present document. Interpretations Giles Smith introduces a new individual into the documented cohort of substantial Pleasant Valley freeholders. Earlier records had documented only John Knipe in Pleasant Valley, receiving the 4 August 1713 lease of 4 acres of gumwood at the bottom of the valley. Smith's                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------------|-----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | the said Island. In witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this day of in the Year of our Lord, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: | emergence as a holder near the head of the same valley extends the documented presence into the upper portion of the area, suggesting Pleasant Valley supported multiple holders across its length even where only some received same-day instruments at the major sitting. The configuration with the 18 acres of hired Company land on the southern boundary creates a combined working presence of 28 acres for Smith when freehold and leasehold are taken together. The pattern matches the standard 1711 framework where freeholders held a confirmed core supplemented by adjoining leasehold ground, with both portions integrated into a single working estate. The relative size of the leasehold at 18 acres against the freehold at only 10 acres reverses the more usual weighting, with Smith's working position depending more heavily on the leased portion than on the confirmed freehold. The western boundary against Daniel Leech's land introduces another new individual into the records. Daniel Leech is perhaps connected to the Robert Leech who had taken Susanna Doveton as apprentice on 27 March 1708 and who had been involved in the Mary Dixon orphans' portion through the 4 January 1705 sale to George Carne. The shared surname and the broadly similar period of activity may indicate a kinship between the two Leeches, with Daniel as a brother, son or other relative of Robert. The Pleasant Valley location places the parcel in a region that had been described in earlier records as a quieter area than Sandy Bay and Deep Valley, with absent named boundary holders. The present 1713 confirmation breaks that pattern by recording a named adjoining freeholder, demonstrating that the regularised landscape was extending more comprehensively into Pleasant Valley by the 1713 sitting. The blank consultation date and blank execution date within the body of the deed indicate that the present record is an 'incomplete engrossment, matching the pattern seen in the Keeling heirs' confirmation, the Daniel Griffeth heirs' confirmation and certain other instruments from the same period. The shared institutional practice of preparing confirmations in advance with later completion suggests Smith's deed remained unexecuted at the time of recording in the register. The absence of any signatures, sealing details or witness names reflects the incomplete state of the document rather than a defect in the confirmation itself. The deed may have been drafted in advance of an expected sealing that never took place, or the formal execution occurred at a session whose detailed record is not preserved in the present extract. The omission of any classification of the ground as gumwood, cabbage tree or other vegetation category leaves the institutional categorisation of Smith's estate unrecorded. The omission matches the incomplete character of the overall engrossment. Speculations The blank dates and absent witness panel point to Smith's confirmation perhaps having been prepared in advance but never received its final formal sealing. Smith may have been temporarily absent from the island, or in some transitional administrative state that prevented the formal execution from being completed at the expected sitting. The institutional practice of preparing the documents in draft form and leaving the execution details for later completion gave the council flexibility to handle delays without requiring complete redrafting. The configuration with the leasehold portion exceeding the freehold portion in size perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional decision about the allocation of perpetual title. The council may have been willing to confirm only a smaller portion of Smith's working occupation as freehold, perhaps because his claim to the larger leased portion rested on weaker historical possession or because Pleasant Valley was being treated as |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | a marginal area where freehold conversion was more cautiously approved. The structure kept the bulk of his working ground under the controlled terms of the 1711 leasehold framework while giving him a secure smaller freehold core. The naming of Daniel Leech as the western boundary holder, against the established pattern of Robert Leech in earlier records, perhaps reveals a generational transition within the Leech family. Robert Leech as the elder member of the family may have transferred ground to Daniel as a son or younger relative, or Daniel may have established himself as an independent holder alongside Robert. The 1711 framework's regularisation of family holdings often captured such generational transitions, with the new tenure system providing the institutional opportunity to formalise the working arrangements that families had developed informally over time.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 182 | 177          | Island St Hellena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Lett and Sett Unto Giles Smith, Freeholder, Eighteen Acres of Gumwood Land, Buiting towards y[e] North Comp[a] upon y[e] Land that Richard Leave hires of the Honourable Company, and towards y[e] Lease to the East-West and South upon y[e] said Giles Smiths own Ten Acres of Land, ALSO Two Acres Giles more buting towards the North upon the Land of William Coles, and towards the East &amp; Smith West, and South, upon the Companys West Land, both which said above mentioned p[ar]cels of Land are Scituate Lying and being in Pleasant Valley, and Do contain in the whole Twenty Acres, To have and to hold The said premises to him the said Giles Smith his Executors Administrators and Assignes, For the Terme and Time of Twenty one years Commenc[e]ing from the Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Twelve Upon Condition. That he the said Giles Smith his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall always Do and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, And Yearly pay at the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25 day of March) the Annuall Rent and Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good and Currant money of the said Island, unto the said &amp; Honourable Company and their Successors, And that he the said Giles Smith his Executors Administrators and Assignes, Shall and Do at the Expiration of the said Term of Twenty One Years Leave the Fences about the said Land in as good repaire as they are now and not to alter the said Fences which are the Land marks, and which will occasion to[?] the | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Giles Smith. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Giles Smith, freeholder, two parcels of land in Pleasant Valley totalling 20 acres. The first parcel of 18 acres of gumwood land was bounded north by the land that Richard Leave hired from the Company, and east, west and south by Smith's own 10 acres of freehold. The second parcel of 2 acres was bounded north by William Cole's land, and east, west and south by the Company's waste land. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1712, with Smith, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcels during that period. The lease bound Smith and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Smith was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. The witness panel is not recorded in the present document. Interpretations The lease completes the same-day freehold-plus-lease packaging for Giles Smith's Pleasant Valley estate, giving him a combined working holding of 30 acres distributed across multiple parcels. The 18 acres of gumwood adjoining the freehold and the 2 acres of separate ground supplement the 10-acre freehold confirmed in the same-day deed. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | alteration of the Plott hereunto Annexed, nor dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same without the Consent of the Governour and Councell for the time being. In witness whereof the said Hon[ble] United Company and Lords Proprietors to these P[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; and Thirteen. And the said Giles Smith to the other parte hath A. Sett his hand and Seale. Sealed and Delivered in the P[re]sence of: | The first leased parcel of 18 acres adjoins three sides of Smith's freehold core, with the freehold itself wrapping around the larger leased portion. The configuration shows the freehold as a containing shape surrounding the bulk of the working leasehold, indicating an underlying estate developed as a single integrated unit even though the perpetual and term tenures were separately documented. The gumwood classification places the parcel at the lower or middle elevation of Pleasant Valley where gumwood vegetation predominated. The northern boundary of the first parcel against the land hired by Richard Leave from the Company records another Leech family connection in the area. Richard Leave is likely the same individual as Robert Leech or as a kinsman of Daniel Leech (who appeared as Smith's freehold western boundary), with the scribal variation in surname rendering capturing a single family through several spellings. The Leech family thus appears across multiple boundaries of the Smith estate. The second parcel of 2 acres sits separately from the main combined estate, with William Cole on the northern boundary and Company waste on the other three sides. William Cole introduces a new individual into the records, perhaps related to the John Cole or John Coles of earlier instruments through family connection. The isolated configuration of the second parcel suggests Smith had built up a small additional working unit independent of his main combined estate. The unusual configuration of the freehold ringing the leasehold parcel on three sides reverses the more common pattern seen elsewhere in the 1713 sitting, where the freehold sat as a core and the leasehold extended outward. Smith's arrangement places the freehold as the wrapping boundary while the leasehold occupies the central portion, with the same-day pairing locking the two together as a single working unit. The standard lease commencement date of 25 March 1712 matches the back-dating used across most of the 1713 sitting and contrasts with the unusual 25 March 1713 commencement seen in the John Goodwin and Margaret Sich leases. The configuration suggests Smith's leasehold represented a regularisation of pre-existing occupation rather than a fresh allocation. The absence of any witness panel in the present record matches the incomplete state of the Smith freehold confirmation processed in the same sitting. Both Smith instruments appear to have been drafted in advance but were never received their final formal execution with witnesses present. The pattern is consistent with Smith being temporarily absent from the island or in some other transitional administrative state that prevented the formal completion of the documents. The disposal restriction continued to operate as the principal institutional control. Smith held a personal interest in the leasehold that could not move to a new occupier without council approval, blocking the open market in leasehold interests that had previously operated through private assignment. Speculations The geometric configuration of the freehold wrapping around the larger leasehold perhaps reflects a particular history of the parcel's development. Smith may have first taken up the leased ground as Company tenant and later acquired the surrounding portions as freehold, gradually building outward from a central leasehold core. The 1711 framework then regularised the entire combined estate at a single moment, capturing both the original leasehold occupation and the later freehold acquisitions within a single documentary settlement. The configuration would have given Smith strong protection against any disturbance of his working ground, since the surrounding freehold buffered the leasehold core from external boundary disputes. |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | The blank dates and absent witnesses across both Smith instruments perhaps point to a particular administrative complication that delayed the formal sealing. Smith may have been engaged in disputed proceedings about the chain of title, or some family or commercial matter may have prevented his attendance at the major sitting. The council's preparation of the documents in draft form allowed for later completion when the practical obstacles were resolved, with the institutional record carrying the documents in their incomplete state until that time. The separation of the second 2-acre parcel from the main combined estate, with William Cole rather than the Leech family or the Smith ground as adjoining boundary, perhaps reflects a different chain of acquisition. The small parcel may have been added to Smith's working portfolio through a separate route from the principal Pleasant Valley estate, perhaps through a purchase, exchange or particular arrangement with the Company that operated independently of the consolidation of his main ground. The 1711 framework regularised both portions under a single lease while preserving the underlying distinction between the two acquisitions.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 183          | 178          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island, the Hon[ble] United United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto Stephen Lufkin, Freeholder, Ten Acres of Land, Lying Scituate near Black Egea, Buting Comp[a] and bounding, towards the North-East and South upon the said Honourable Companys Deed to Wast Land, and towards the West upon, one Acre of Land that the said Stephen Lufkin Stephen hires of the said Honourable Company, Which said Ten Acres of Land, He the aforesaid Lufkin Stephen Lufkin hath a Just Right and Title too, As may appear more Largely upon, Examination in a Consultation of the Seventeenth &amp; A. day of March. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their Claime on a day certain therein Limitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said premises to him the said Stephen Lufkin his Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he the said Stephen Lufkin, his Heires and Assignes, shall always bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In Witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth &amp; A. A. day of August. In the Year of our Lord, One Thousand &amp; Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Stephen Lufkin. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Stephen Lufkin, freeholder, 10 acres of land near Black Egea. The parcel was bounded north, east and south by the Company's waste land, and west by 1 acre of land that Lufkin hired from the Company. Lufkin's title rested on a consultation of 17 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Stephen Lufkin, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations Stephen Lufkin introduces a new individual into the documented cohort under the Lufkin family name. Earlier records had identified John Lufkin as the principal Lufkin holder, with his 26 June 1707 sale to the Company of a dwelling house, 30 acres and growing provisions for £350 0s 0d sterling, and his 14 June 1712 sale to Richard Alexander of a Chapel Valley dwelling for £170 0s 0d in store credit. Stephen Lufkin appears as a related but distinct individual, perhaps a son, brother or other kinsman of John, with his own holding regularised under the 1711 framework. The location near Black Egea introduces a distinctive working byname not previously recorded. The naming pattern matches other working bynames preserved in the institutional record such as Diana's Geak, Two Gun Ridge, Welley's Land, Writing Stone Ridge and Sexton's Ground. Black Egea may refer to a particular topographical feature, perhaps a black rocky outcrop or a black-coloured ridge, with the name capturing local geographical knowledge that does not appear in the more formal valley designations. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The configuration of the parcel surrounded on three sides by Company waste, with only a small 1-acre leasehold extension on the western side, places Lufkin at the outer margin of regularised settlement. The configuration matches other isolated holdings such as the Joshua Johnson confirmation under the King's Peak and the Simon Whaley confirmation in Fishers Valley, where Company waste formed the dominant boundary. The hired 1 acre on the western boundary represents a very small leasehold extension that the present deed records as a boundary feature without separately documenting it as a paired lease. The configuration suggests Lufkin's working estate was effectively a 10-acre freehold core with a minimal 1-acre supplement, far smaller than the substantial leasehold extensions of holders such as James Greentree (25 acres) or Joshua Johnson (28 acres). The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied uniformly to even the smaller and more isolated confirmations, demonstrating the consistent procedural treatment given to all holdings regardless of size. The consultation date of 17 March 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, matches the consultation date supporting the Frances Goodwin confirmation and the Desfountain children's confirmation. The shared consultation date demonstrates the council's batch processing of multiple holdings within a concentrated review period during early 1714, with the formal sealing dispatched together at the 4 August 1713 sitting. The absence of any paired leasehold instrument for the 1 acre referenced as the western boundary marks Stephen Lufkin as one of the holders whose 1711 regularisation took the form of a freehold-only treatment. The pattern matches Simon Whaley's initial appearance (later corrected by the present discovery of his lease) and other smaller holders whose institutional regularisation depended primarily on the freehold confirmation without a substantial paired leasehold. The Stephen Lufkin holding is unrelated to John Lufkin's earlier dealings with the Company. The 30 acres John Lufkin sold to the Company in 1707 had been described as next to the Company's main pastureland, while Stephen's 10 acres lay near Black Egea. The two estates appear to have been distinct working units even within the same family. Speculations The very small 1-acre leasehold extension perhaps reflects Stephen Lufkin's limited need for additional working ground beyond his confirmed freehold core. Most holders in the 1713 sitting received substantial paired leases of 5 to 30 acres or more, indicating active working extensions into adjoining Company waste. Stephen's minimal 1-acre supplement suggests his cultivation pattern required only a small additional unit, perhaps for a specific working purpose such as a vegetable garden, a small enclosure for livestock, or a particular water-related feature. The configuration shows him as a holder with a focused working area rather than as one seeking to expand his estate. The shared family name Lufkin between Stephen and John, against the differing locations and dealings of the two holders, perhaps points to a family that had spread out across the island's regularised settlement rather than concentrating in a single area. John Lufkin had operated principally near the main pastures and in Chapel Valley town, with substantial cash dealings totalling several hundred pounds. Stephen Lufkin's smaller 10-acre upland holding near Black Egea places him in a different working environment, suggesting the family had diversified into multiple territorial niches and economic patterns. |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | The location near Black Egea, with the distinctive byname preserved in the institutional record, perhaps marks the parcel as a particular working position whose value rested more on local knowledge than on any formal valley designation. The 1711 framework's preservation of such bynames demonstrates the council's reliance on the practical geographical vocabulary of the working community in fixing boundary descriptions. The Black Egea name accordingly carried institutional weight that no formal toponym alone could have provided, anchoring the regularised title within the lived experience of the island's working population.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 184          | 179          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United A. Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Lett &amp; Sett unto Stephen Lufkin Freeholder, One Acre of Land Scituate and Lying near Peak Comp[a] Gutt, Buting towards South-East and South upon his own Ten Acres of Land &amp; towards Lease to the West upon the Hon[ble] Comp[anys] West Land. To have and to hold The said One Stephen Acre of Land unto him y[e] said Stephen Lufkin his Executors Administrators and Assignes Lufkin for y[e] Term &amp; Time of Twenty one years, Commenc[e]ing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, Upon Condition. That he y[e] said Stephen Lufkin his Executors Administrators and Assignes shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, And Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors. And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island. And Yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary, being y[e] 25 day of March, the Annual Rent and Sum of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides One Shilling Duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good &amp; Currant money of y[e] said Island, unto y[e] said Honourable Company &amp; their Successors. And that he y[e] said Stephen Lufkin his Executors Administrators &amp; Assigns, Shall &amp; Do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty one Years, Leave y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repaire as they are now, and not to alter y[e] said Fences which are y[e] Land marks, &amp; which will Occasion y[e] alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed nor to dispose of this Lease for interest in y[e] same without y[e] Consent of y[e] Governour &amp; Coun[c]ell for y[e] time being In Witness whereof y[e] said Honourable United Company &amp; Lords Proprietors to these Presents have sett there Common Seale this Fourth &amp; A. A. day of August. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, And y[e] said Stephen Lufkin to y[e] other p[ar]t hath sett his Hand and Seale. Stephen Lufkin Sealed and Delivered In the p[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Stephen Lufkin. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Stephen Lufkin, freeholder, 1 acre of land near Peak Gut. The parcel was bounded south-east and south by Lufkin's own 10 acres, and west by the Company's waste land. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1713, with Lufkin, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Lufkin and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Lufkin was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on 4 August 1713. Stephen Lufkin signed and sealed the counterpart. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease completes the same-day freehold-plus-lease packaging for Stephen Lufkin's estate, giving him a combined working holding of 11 acres with the single leased acre tucked into the south-eastern and southern corner formed by his 10-acre freehold. The configuration shows the leased ground as a small extension into adjoining Company waste, with the freehold providing the dominant working core and the lease adding only a minimal supplement. The lease commencement date of 25 March 1713 marks a departure from the standard 25 March 1712 used across most of the 1713 sitting, matching the unusual pattern seen in the John Goodwin lease and the Margaret Sich lease. The shared departure from the standard back-dating across these three instruments suggests the council had taken particular institutional decisions to date them from the most recent Lady Day rather than from the standard framework commencement. The pattern may reflect that these specific leases regularised more recent arrangements rather than long-established occupation. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The reference to the freehold's location at Peak Gut, set against the same-day freehold confirmation which placed the 10 acres near Black Egea, creates a geographical discrepancy that the present text does not resolve. The two locations may refer to different parts of the same broader area, with Black Egea identifying a particular topographical feature within or near the Peak Gut region, or the two designations may reflect alternative ways of identifying the same working ground. The relationship between the two bynames cannot be determined from the present text alone. The reference to the freehold as his own Ten Acres of Land directly cross-references the same-day freehold confirmation, confirming the integration of the two instruments into a single working estate. The cross-reference matches the standard institutional practice across the 1711 framework. The lease's text contains a scribal repetition where the obligation to obey all the laws and constitutions of the said Island appears twice in quick succession, indicating a copying slip in the engrossment. Such repetitions are institutionally inconsequential because the substantive obligation rests on its single substantive statement, but the duplication illustrates the practical limits of accurate engrossment under the pressure of the major coordinated sitting clearing many instruments in a single day. The standard rental of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum for the single acre, applied as much to the smallest leasehold extensions as to the larger leases of substantial holders. The Company's flat-rate institutional pricing operated uniformly regardless of the size of the leased parcel, with Lufkin paying the same per-acre rate as any other lessee. The full witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the senior procedural weight given to Lufkin's freehold confirmation in the same sitting. The use of the full panel rather than the reduced quorum seen in some closing leasehold instruments suggests that the Lufkin instruments were processed at a point in the day when the register and the other senior witnesses were still present in full attendance. The disposal restriction continued to operate as the principal institutional control. Stephen Lufkin held a personal interest in the leasehold that could not move to a new occupier without council approval, applying the same supervisory control to the smallest leasehold as to the largest. Speculations The 25 March 1713 commencement date, departing from the standard back-dating of the 1713 sitting, perhaps reflects the particular character of Stephen Lufkin's institutional position. The shared pattern with John Goodwin and Margaret Sich, all three of whom received leases dated from 1713 rather than 1712, may point to these instruments regularising particularly recent arrangements that the council had brought into formal cover only through the present 1713 procedure. The shorter institutional interval between commencement and execution suggests these were fresh allocations or recent settlements rather than long-established occupations being back-dated to align with the broader framework. The very small 1-acre leasehold extension, set against the 10-acre freehold core, perhaps marks the absolute lower limit of the 1711 framework's regularisation activity. The single-acre lease at the standard 5s 0d annual rent provided the council with a minimal but documented institutional control over a tiny piece of Company waste that Lufkin had incorporated into his working occupation. The configuration shows the framework operating with precision down to single acres, with no parcel apparently too small to receive its own formal documentary cover under the new tenure system. The geographical discrepancy between Black Egea and Peak Gut in the two Lufkin instruments perhaps |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | reflects a wider scribal flexibility in how the same area was identified across the records. The clerks preparing the deeds may have drawn on different sources of geographical reference, with one drawing on the formal valley designation while another preserved a more local working byname. The institutional process accommodated the variation without apparent difficulty because the boundary descriptions and the annexed plans provided more precise documentation than the place names alone, with the location identifiers serving as broad geographical markers rather than as definitive coordinates.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 185 | 180          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Tradeing to y[e] East Indies, Do hereby Confirm Unto Dorothy Hayse Widdow of Wiltshire deceased Husband, William Hayse Comp[a] Deed according to his Last Will and Testament Twenty Acres of Land Lying Scituate in Fishers to Valley, being his Lott Land Buiting and Bounding towards the North upon y[e] Land that Thom[as] Dorothy Hayse hires of y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[a]: towards y[e] East upon y[e] Land of Sutton Isaac Sen[r] towards y[e] Hayse South upon y[e] Land of Samuel Desfountains Children, and towards the West upon y[e] Land of Cap[t]n Wills Freeholder, Which said Twenty Acres of Land they y[e] said Dorothy Hayse &amp; the Heires of William Hayse (dec[ease]d) hath a Just Right and Title too. As may more fully appear upon Examination in a Consultation of the Third &amp; A. A. day of March. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any P[er]son to make their Claim on a certain day therein Limitted Buit none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said premises to them y[e] said Dorothy Hayse and y[e] Heires of her Deced Husband William Hayse, their and every of their, Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition That they the said Dorothy Hayse, and y[e] Heires of William Hayse dec[ease]d &amp; every of them their Heires and Assignes Do and shall always bear true, faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires and Successors, and to y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and constitutions of y[e] said Island. In Witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on the said y[e] Island this Fourth day of August. In y[e] Yeare of our Lord. One Thousand A. Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In y[e] P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Dorothy Hayes. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Dorothy Hayes, widow of the deceased William Hayes of Wiltshire, in accordance with his last will and testament, 20 acres of land in Fishers Valley, being his lot land. The parcel was bounded north by land that Thomas Hayes hired from the Company, east by Sutton Isaac senior's land, south by Samuel Desfountain's children's land, and west by Captain Wills freeholder's land. Dorothy Hayes and the heirs of William Hayes deceased held a just right and title, established by a consultation of 3 March 1714. Public notice was given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Dorothy Hayes and the heirs of her deceased husband William Hayes, their respective heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The identification of William Hayes as of Wiltshire marks one of the rare instances in the records where a holder's English county of origin is explicitly recorded. The reference establishes Hayes as a settler whose connection to a particular English locality persisted in the institutional memory of the island, perhaps because his estate had been recently regularised under will or because his identity needed to be distinguished from other Hayes family members of different origins. The metropolitan connection adds a documentary layer typically absent from confirmations of long-settled families. The vesting clause routes the freehold through William Hayes's last will and testament, with Dorothy Hayes and the heirs receiving the inheritance under his testamentary disposition rather than through automatic widow's right. The structure indicates William had prepared a formal will before his death, with the institutional process of regularisation depending on the written testamentary instrument rather than on default rules of succession. The arrangement matches other will-based vestings seen in the records, including the Doveton apprenticeships managed by executors and the Steward children's confirmation distributing equally under Onesiphorus Steward's will. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The double vesting in Dorothy and the heirs of William Hayes, with each holding their respective heirs and assigns interest, preserves the testamentary intention while securing the widow's practical occupation. The structure parallels the same arrangement seen in the Elizabeth Johnson confirmation of the same day and the Margaret Sich confirmation, demonstrating a consistent institutional approach to estates where a widow held alongside the named heirs of her deceased husband. The northern boundary against land hired by Thomas Hayes records another family member in the area. Thomas Hayes had earlier appeared as a holder of 5 acres adjoining Sutton Isaack senior in the 5 September 1712 sale by Giles Hayes to Isaac Wood. The Hayes family thus appears as a multi-generation presence in Fishers Valley, with William as the original holder (deceased), Dorothy as the widow, Thomas as a continuing relative holding adjoining ground under lease, and Giles (montross) as a younger member who had sold his portion in 1712. The eastern boundary against Sutton Isaack senior repeats his appearance as the western boundary of James Draper's 4 August 1713 freehold confirmation. Isaack thus appears as boundary holder for multiple Fishers Valley confirmations of the same day, demonstrating his settled position at the centre of the regularised cluster. The southern boundary against Samuel Desfountain's children's land creates a reciprocal mapping with the same-day Desfountain confirmation. The children of the late James Desfountain had received their 30-acre confirmation at the head of Fishers Valley, and the present reference confirms that the Desfountain estate adjoined the Hayes ground to the south. The two deeds attest each other's bounds. The Christian name discrepancy between James Desfountain in the Desfountain deed and Samuel Desfountain in the Hayes deed may reflect a scribal slip in one or other document, with the underlying father being the same individual whose children received the inheritance, or alternatively may indicate two separate Desfountain holders of different first names. The western boundary against Captain Wills freeholder records the same individual previously identified as Mr Robert Wills in the Desfountain confirmation. The shift from Mr Robert Wills to Captain Wills indicates Wills holding a military rank as captain by 1713, distinguishing him from the civilian merchant designations used for some other holders. The captain designation places him among the senior officers of the garrison or shipping community. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving the same procedural weight as substantial confirmations of larger size, demonstrating the consistent treatment given to widow and heir confirmations within the institutional framework. Speculations The explicit recording of William Hayes as of Wiltshire perhaps reflects the recent character of his death and the consequent need to identify him precisely against any other Hayes individuals whose claims might have arisen. The metropolitan origin would have been particularly relevant if William had retained property or family connections in Wiltshire that could have generated competing claims from English heirs not present on the island. The institutional record's preservation of the county designation accordingly served as a defensive marker, fixing the testator's identity for the avoidance of any future doubt about which Hayes had owned the regularised ground. The will-based vesting may have served to overcome a particular practical difficulty in the inheritance. Dorothy Hayes as widow might not have automatically inherited the full freehold under default rules, particularly where |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | children or other heirs had competing claims. William's testamentary disposition specifically named her alongside the heirs, securing her institutional position in the regularised estate. The structure suggests William had given careful thought to the protection of his widow's interest, recognising that without explicit testamentary provision she might have been left in a vulnerable position relative to the male inheritance line. The clustering of Hayes family members across multiple boundaries of the regularised landscape, with William's estate at the centre and Thomas, Giles and Dorothy distributed around it, perhaps reflects the family's strategy of building up a coordinated working presence in Fishers Valley over the years. The 1711 framework captured the consolidated family position at a moment when the founder William had recently died, with the various Hayes parcels still in family hands but operating under different forms of tenure. The structure shows the institutional regularisation reaching the family at a critical generational moment, with the documentary regime fixing the configuration of the inheritance before any potential fragmentation through later sales or settlements.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 186 | 181          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Lett and Sett unto Thomas Hayse, Carrier, Fifteen Acres of Land, Scituate Lying and Being in Fishers Comp[a] Vally, Butting towards the North and West upon y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[alys] Wast Land towards y[e] East Lease to upon y[e] Lands of William Hayse, deceased, and towards y[e] South upon y[e] Lands of Cap[ta]in Wills Freeholder. Thomas To have and to hold The above mentioned Fifteen Acres of Land to him y[e] said Thomas Hays Hayse his Executors Administrators and Assignes for y[e] Term and Time of Twenty one years commenc[e]ing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Upon Condition That he y[e] said Thomas Hayse his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall always Do, and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors, And Shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and Constitutions of y[e] said Island, And yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annual Rent and Sum of Four shillings per Acre besides one shillings duty being in all Five shillings per Annu[m] in good and Currant money of y[e] said Island, that y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: and their Successors, And that he y[e] said Thomas Hayse his Executors Administrators and Assignes, Shall and do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty one years Leave | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Thomas Hayes. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Thomas Hayes, carrier, 15 acres of land in Fishers Valley. The parcel was bounded north and west by the Company's waste land, east by the lands of the deceased William Hayes, and south by Captain Wills freeholder's land. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1713, with Hayes, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Hayes and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Hayes was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Thomas Hayes sealed the counterpart with his mark. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The designation of Thomas Hayes as carrier introduces an occupational category not previously documented in the institutional records. A carrier was someone engaged in the transport of goods, perhaps with |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repaire as they are now, and not to alter y[e] Fences which are y[e] Land marks, and which will Occasion y[e] alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed, nor dispose of this Lease or Interest in y[e] same without y[e] Consent of y[e] Governour and Council for y[e] time being In witness Whereof y[e] said Hon[ble] United Company and Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents have sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Fourth A. A. A. day of August. in y[e] year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. And y[e] said Thomas Hayse, to the other p[ar]t hath sett his Hand and Seale. his Thomas Hayse Mark Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | cart, mule or pack-animal, providing the logistics that connected the island's dispersed plantations, the storehouse, the wharf and the shipping in James Valley. The recording of the occupation alongside the leasehold confirmation places Hayes among the artisanal layer of the free planter community, paralleling Robert Bell as planter and mason, Isaac Wood as cooper, and Bartrant Audouart as Company smith. The eastern boundary against the lands of the deceased William Hayes connects directly to the same-day freehold confirmation in favour of Dorothy Hayes and the heirs of William. The two instruments operated as paired regularisations of the Hayes family's working presence in Fishers Valley, with the 20-acre freehold passing through William's will to his widow and heirs while the adjoining 15-acre leasehold extended Thomas's separate working occupation. The configuration shows the family operating as a coordinated unit across the regularised landscape, with different members holding different categories of tenure within the same broader estate. The lease commencement date of 25 March 1713 places Thomas Hayes's lease within the small group of 1713 sitting instruments that depart from the standard 25 March 1712 back-dating. The shared pattern with John Goodwin, Margaret Sich and Stephen Lufkin suggests these leases regularised recently established arrangements rather than long-standing occupation, with the council using the most recent Lady Day commencement to mark the institutional moment at which the leases took effect. The southern boundary against Captain Wills freeholder records the same individual previously identified as Mr Robert Wills in the Desfountain confirmation and as Captain Wills in the Dorothy Hayes deed. The captain designation places him as a senior military or shipping officer in the Fishers Valley cluster. Thomas Hayes's signature by mark places him among the unlettered holders of the regularised landscape, consistent with his occupational classification as carrier. The mark signature indicates that his standing as a substantial 15-acre leasehold tenant did not depend on lettered status, with the institutional framework accommodating literate and unlettered holders within the same documentary apparatus. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied uniformly across all categories of holder, demonstrating the consistent procedural treatment given to artisans and unlettered tenants within the institutional framework. The configuration with three sides against Company waste and only the eastern side against the William Hayes freehold places Thomas's leasehold at the outer frontier of the regularised Hayes family estate. The leased ground extended the family's working position outward from the freehold core into Company territory. The standard rental of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty applied uniformly across all categories of holder, with Thomas Hayes paying the same per-acre rate as the substantial widows, freeholders and orphans of the regularised landscape. The Company's flat-rate pricing operated independently of the lessee's social standing or literate status. Speculations The carrier designation may have been institutionally significant beyond a simple occupational label. The Company depended on internal transport for moving stores, provisions, plantation produce and ships' supplies between the dispersed working centres of the island, and a carrier with a substantial 15-acre working base in Fishers Valley would have been well placed to provide that logistical capacity. The grant of leasehold ground at standard rate may have rested on an understanding, perhaps unwritten, that Thomas Hayes's carrying services |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | were available to the Company when required. The institutional framework accordingly extended beyond formal lease obligations to embrace working relationships of mutual dependence, with the Company supplying the ground from which the artisan could service its broader operational needs. The pattern would explain why a carrier with no apparent capital or literate standing received treatment equivalent to substantial planters. The simultaneous regularisation of the William Hayes inheritance and Thomas Hayes's adjoining leasehold within the same sitting suggests the council was using the 1711 framework to lock in a particular family configuration at the moment of generational transition. William's death had opened the prospect of estate fragmentation, with various Hayes relatives potentially competing for portions of the underlying ground. By processing both the widow's testamentary inheritance and Thomas's separate leasehold within a single coordinated sitting, the council fixed the working arrangement in documentary form before any contest could emerge. The institutional design captured a window of family cooperation that might otherwise have collapsed under the pressures of inheritance disputes, converting a transitional family moment into a permanent documentary settlement that no individual member could subsequently disturb without council intervention. The disposal restriction took on particular weight in the case of an unlettered carrier holding institutionally valuable ground. Without the restriction, Hayes might have come under pressure from creditors, family members or other parties to assign his leasehold interest under terms he could not properly read or comprehend. The council's requirement of formal consent to any disposal accordingly protected him from exploitation while protecting the Company from disorderly transfers of the leasehold to unsuitable parties. The mechanism functioned both as supervisory control and as practical safeguard for vulnerable holders, with the formal restriction translating into a defensive instrument for those least able to protect themselves through documentary literacy.  |
| 187 | 182          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island, the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm unto Jonathan Doveton Freeholder, Ninty Acres of Land, whereof Thirty Acres was formerly Comp[a] Deed Leonard Hunts, and the other Sixty Acres the Land of William Marsh both purchased by to the said Hon[ble] Company, and since sold to the said Jonathan Doveton, for a Valuable Jon Dove- Consideration and Lies Scituate under Halleys Mount at the upper end or Head of Chapple ton Vally, Buting and Bounding upon the North-South and West upon the said Jonathan Dovetons own Fifty Acres of Land, and towards the East upon the said Hon[ble] Comp[alys] Enclosed Land Known by the Name of Halls Plain, Which said Ninty Acres of Land. He the before named Jonathan Doveton bath a Just right, and Title too, As may appeare more | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Jonathan Doveton. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Jonathan Doveton, freeholder, 90 acres of land. Of this, 30 acres had formerly been Leonard Hunt's and the remaining 60 acres had been the land of William Marsh, both portions purchased by the Company and since sold to Doveton for a valuable consideration. The parcel lay under Halley's Mount at the upper end of Chapel Valley. It was bounded north, south and west by Doveton's own 50 acres of land, and east by the Company's enclosed land known as Halls Plain. Doveton's title rested on a consultation of 6 January 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Jonathan Doveton, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | largely in a Consultation of the Sixth &amp; A. day of January, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by Beat of Drum for any Person to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said Premises, to him the said Jonathan Doveton his Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition. That he the said Jonathan Doveton his Heires and Assignes Shall always Do and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors and shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In witness whereof y[e] said Hon[ble] United Comp[a]: to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale this Fourth day of August. A. In y[e] year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The 90-acre confirmation marks one of the most substantial individual grants in the 4 August 1713 sitting, building Jonathan Doveton's already significant estate to a total of 140 acres when combined with his 50 acres of existing freehold. The earlier 17 April 1711 confirmation of 50.25 acres in three parcels and the 11-acre paired lease had established him as a major holder, and the present 1713 deed roughly doubles that earlier institutional position. The chain of title routes through two intermediate Company purchases. The 30 acres formerly Leonard Hunt's and the 60 acres formerly William Marsh's had both passed to the Company before being onward-sold to Doveton. The structure shows the Company operating as an active land market intermediary, acquiring estates from one holder or his heirs and reselling them to another holder for a valuable consideration. The mechanism allowed the Company to manage the transition of substantial estates between unrelated parties through its own institutional balance sheet, capturing the value of the underlying ground while controlling the destination of the parcels. Leonard Hunt had appeared in earlier records principally as a boundary holder, with his ground forming the north-east of the 4 August 1713 Doveton confirmation. The present transfer of his 30 acres to Doveton consolidates the Hunt parcel into the Doveton estate, removing Hunt as a separate holder from the area. The Hunt estate may have come into Company hands through his death or departure, with the Company acting as institutional collector of reverted ground. William Marsh had been documented as the father of Robert Marsh and as deceased by 1713, with his death recorded in the 4 August 1713 Robert Marsh confirmation referring to Company land lately belonging to William Marsh. The present 60-acre transfer accordingly represents the institutional disposal of the bulk of William Marsh's reverted estate, with the Company channelling the ground to Doveton rather than to Robert Marsh as William's son. The choice favoured the substantial established holder Doveton over the recently-confirmed son and heir Marsh, perhaps because Robert had already received his own family settlement and the surplus Marsh ground was now available for redistribution. The location under Halley's Mount introduces a distinctive topographical reference into the records. The name Halley likely connects to the astronomer Edmond Halley, who had visited the island in 1677 to 1678 to compile a southern star catalogue at the Company's behest. The mount perhaps acquired his name in commemoration of his work, with the byname preserved in the institutional record as a recognised landscape feature. The reference shows how a temporary visitor's presence could leave a permanent mark on the working geographical vocabulary of the island. The eastern boundary against the Company's enclosed land known as Halls Plain introduces a further byname into the records. Halls Plain may relate to Joseph Smith's earlier land referenced as Smiths Plain in the 1708 John Bagley mortgage, with the working bynames preserving the names of earlier holders even after the ground passed into Company hands. The institutional naming of enclosed Company ground by reference to its prior holder created a documentary geography of remembered tenure that ran parallel to the formal valley designations. The configuration with three sides bounded by Doveton's own existing 50 acres places the 90-acre |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | confirmation as the larger outer ring around his earlier holding. The Doveton estate had grown from 50 acres in 1711 to 140 acres by 1713 through the acquisition of the surrounding Hunt and Marsh portions, with the new ground completely enveloping the older core. The structure shows a deliberate strategy of building outward from an established centre, with the institutional regularisation following and confirming the working consolidation. The consultation date of 6 January 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, represents an earlier consultation than the dates supporting most other 4 August 1713 confirmations. The seven-month interval between consultation and sealing suggests the substantial transfer had required extended institutional preparation, perhaps including the formal valuation of the Hunt and Marsh estates and the negotiation of the purchase price between the Company and Doveton. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving the senior procedural weight appropriate to its substantial size and complex chain of title. Speculations The Company's role as institutional purchaser of the Hunt and Marsh estates and onward seller to Doveton served a particular structural function in managing succession in the regularised landscape. Without the Company's intervention, the Hunt and Marsh ground would have descended either through whatever testamentary disposition or default inheritance rules applied, potentially fragmenting the estates among multiple heirs or creating uncertain title that could have generated future disputes. By acquiring the entire estates and reselling them to a single substantial holder, the Company concentrated the ground in stable hands and extracted the difference between acquisition and resale value as institutional profit. The mechanism converted the inheritance question from a private family matter into an institutional transaction, with the Company controlling who occupied the principal portions of the regularised landscape and at what price. The choice of Doveton as the destination for both the Hunt and Marsh transfers reveals the Company's preference for consolidating substantial estates rather than distributing reverted ground among many smaller holders. The 90-acre transfer to a single existing freeholder, set against the alternative of allocating the parcels to several different settlers, reflects an institutional commitment to large-scale agricultural production over distributed smallholding. The Company's interest in efficient ship-victualling, in stable rent collection and in manageable administration all favoured the concentration of working ground in the hands of established holders capable of large-scale operations. The 1711 framework's apparent egalitarianism of standard rentals and uniform procedural treatment accordingly masked an underlying institutional preference for hierarchy in landholding, with substantial estates receiving the benefit of consolidation while smaller holders remained in their existing configurations. The Marsh estate's reversion to the Company rather than its descent through Robert Marsh as William's son reveals an important institutional limit on family inheritance under the 1711 framework. Robert had received his own substantial confirmation on 4 August 1713, but the bulk of his father's working ground passed not to him but to Doveton through Company purchase. The arrangement suggests William Marsh's estate had been managed through a will or settlement that did not vest his principal holdings in his son automatically, with the Company taking the opportunity to acquire and redistribute the ground. The institutional regularisation accordingly did not protect family continuity of working |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | occupation, with even the heir of a substantial holder facing the loss of his father's main estate to consolidation in different hands. The pattern points to a divergence between formal family settlement structures and the actual destinies of the underlying ground, with the Company's purchase power overriding what might have been the natural family expectation.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 188 | 183          | Island St HelenaThe Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Comp[a] Lease Lett and Sett unto Sutton Isaac Jun[r] Five Acres of Land Buting towards the North upon to Honourable Companys West Land towards the East upon y[e] Land of his Father Sutton Isaac Sutton Isaac Sen[r] and towards y[e] South and West upon Fifteen Acres of Land, hired of y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[a] by y[e] Junior Tenant Thomas Hayse Sould[i]er, Scituate Lying and Being in Fishers Vally. To have and to hold The said Five Acres of Land to him y[e] said Sutton Isaac Jun[r] his Executors Administ[rators] and Assignes For y[e] Term &amp; Time of Twenty one Years commenc[e]ing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Twelve. Upon Condition That he y[e] said Sutton Isaac Jun[r] his Executors Administrators and Assignes shall always Do &amp; bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to the said Hon[ble] Comp[a]. and there Successors. And shall duly Obey all the Laws &amp; Constitutions of the said Island, And yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary, (being the 25 day of March) the Annual Rent &amp; Sum of Four Shillings p[er] Acre, besides One Shilling Duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good and Currant money of y[e] said Island, unto y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a]; &amp; their Successors. And that he y[e] said Sutton Isaac Jun[r] his Executors Administrato[rs] and Assignes Shall and Do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty one Years, leave the Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repair as they are now, and not to alter y[e] said Fences which are y[e] Land marks, and which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto Annexed Nor dispose of this Lease or interest in y[e] same without y[e] Consent of y[e] Gov[ernor] &amp; Coun[c]ell for y[e] time being. In witness whereof y[e] said Hon[ble] United Comp[a]; &amp; Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Vally this Fourth day of August. A. in the Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And y[e] said Sutton Isaac Junior to y[e] other p[ar]t hath sett his Hand and Seale. Sutton IsaacSealed and Delivered In y[e] P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Sutton Isaac junior. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Sutton Isaac junior 5 acres of land in Fishers Valley. The parcel was bounded north by the Company's waste land, east by his father Sutton Isaac senior's land, and south and west by 15 acres hired from the Company by Thomas Hayes, soldier. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1712, with Sutton Isaac junior, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Sutton Isaac junior and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, he was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Sutton Isaac junior signed and sealed the counterpart. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease establishes Sutton Isaac junior as a new generational holder distinct from his father Sutton Isaac senior, who had appeared across multiple earlier records as a substantial Fishers Valley freeholder and witness. The same-day pairing of leases connected to both father and son reflects a deliberate family arrangement to launch the junior into independent institutional standing while keeping the family ground integrated as a single working unit. The reference to Thomas Hayes as soldier in the present lease creates a sharp variance with the same-day Thomas Hayes leasehold instrument, which identified him as carrier. The two designations refer to the same individual, with the variant occupational descriptions captured in different documents processed in the same sitting. The discrepancy reveals that occupational categories were not fixed within the institutional record but could shift between alternative descriptions of the same person, perhaps reflecting different aspects of his actual working life or the scribal preferences of different clerks engrossing different deeds. The 5-acre size matches the small-scale leasehold extensions seen elsewhere in the day, with Sutton Isaac |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | junior receiving a modest working portion rather than a substantial estate. The pattern suggests the younger generation entered the regularised landscape through small initial allocations adjacent to the established family core, with the expectation of building outward over time. The eastern boundary against Sutton Isaac senior's land places the junior's leasehold immediately against the father's freehold, allowing the family's working ground to function as an integrated unit despite the formal separation of titles. The configuration mirrors the William Alexander 1717 lease, which similarly launched a son's independent tenure adjoining his father's existing holdings. The southern and western boundaries against Thomas Hayes's 15-acre leasehold place Sutton Isaac junior at the centre of an interlocking cluster of Fishers Valley leaseholds. The Hayes leasehold itself had appeared in the same-day Dorothy Hayes freehold confirmation as the northern boundary, demonstrating that the Hayes ground operated as a working hinge between multiple adjoining estates. The dense interlocking of leaseholds and freeholds in the Fishers Valley cluster reflects the systematic regularisation of the area within the 1711 framework. The Sutton Isaac junior signature in his own hand places him among the lettered holders despite his recent entry into independent tenure. The literate signature distinguishes him from his fellow Fishers Valley holder Simon Whaley, who sealed with a mark, and from Thomas Hayes the carrier or soldier, who also marked rather than signed. The variation across the same sitting demonstrates how literacy operated as an individual rather than a categorical attribute within the regularised landscape. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied to the launch of a younger generation just as to the regularisation of substantial estates, demonstrating the consistent procedural weight given by the council to family transitions within the framework. The standard 25 March 1712 commencement date places the lease within the main pattern of the 1713 sitting, indicating regularisation of pre-existing occupation rather than fresh allocation. Sutton Isaac junior had perhaps been working the 5 acres for some time before the formal lease, with the 1711 framework now formalising the arrangement. Speculations The systematic launching of younger family members into independent leasehold positions adjoining their fathers' freeholds reveals a deliberate institutional strategy for managing generational succession in the regularised landscape. The 1711 framework provided the council with a mechanism for distributing portions of Company waste to next-generation holders before the older generation died, avoiding the disruption that would otherwise occur when an entire substantial estate had to be redistributed at the moment of the father's death. The pattern shows the institutional regime treating succession as a gradual process to be managed through staged allocations rather than as a sudden event requiring lump-sum resolution. The council accordingly used standard rentals and modest initial leases to ease younger holders into the documented community at low cost, securing their loyalty and their institutional standing in the framework long before they would inherit their fathers' substantial freeholds. The variant designation of Thomas Hayes as soldier in the Sutton Isaac junior lease and as carrier in his own same-day lease may reveal something deeper than scribal flexibility. The two occupational categories carried different institutional weights, with soldier signalling military discipline and Company service while carrier signalled artisanal independence. The capacity of the same individual to be described under both terms within the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | same sitting suggests Hayes may have held a dual position, perhaps as a soldier whose military obligations had been partially commuted into carrying duties, or as a carrier who continued to perform military service as required. The institutional record's tolerance of the variance points to working arrangements that operated outside the rigid occupational categories of the documentary regime, with the same person fulfilling multiple roles that the records sometimes attempted to fix into discrete labels. The placement of Sutton Isaac junior's modest 5-acre lease at the centre of a cluster framed by his father on one side and a soldier-carrier holder on the other reveals the social architecture that the 1711 framework was reproducing. The institutional landscape organised itself around established family patriarchs supported by adult sons learning to manage independent tenure and working alongside artisanal or military holders providing the practical capacities the agricultural estates needed. The arrangement reproduced in documentary form the actual working hierarchy of the island's free planter community, with each holder occupying a position calibrated to his generational standing and occupational function. The framework's apparent uniformity of standard rentals and standard 21-year terms accordingly concealed a carefully differentiated social geography, with the senior freeholders, their adult sons, the artisanal layer and the unlettered tenants all woven into a structured working community that the council had quietly engineered through its allocation of the regularised ground.  |
| 189 | 184          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Tradeing to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm Comp[a] Deed unto Elizabeth Allis Widow, and the Heires of her deceased Husband, Thomas Allis as in to Eliz[abeth] his Last Will &amp; Testament is Expressed, Twenty Seven Acres of Land Lying Scituate in Deep Allis Valley, buiting &amp; bounding towards the North &amp; West upon y[e] Lands of Matthew Bazett Free- holder, towards y[e] South upon y[e] Land that y[e] said Matthew Bazett hires of y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[a]: and towards y[e] East upon y[e] Land that John Worrall hires of y[e] said Comp[a]: Which said Twenty Seven Acres of Land, She the said Elizabeth Allis and the Heires of her dec[ease]d Husband Thomas Allis hath a Just right &amp; Title too as may more Largely appear upon Examination in a Consultation of the Third &amp; A. A. day of March One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their claim on a day certain therein Limmited, But none Appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said premises to her the said Elizabeth Allis and the Heires of her deceased Husband aforesaid his hers or their Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition That she the said Elizabeth Allis, and the Heires of the said Thomas Allis dec[ease]d and every of them their | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Elizabeth Allis. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Elizabeth Allis, widow, and the heirs of her deceased husband Thomas Allis as expressed in his last will and testament, 27 acres of land in Deep Valley. The parcel was bounded north and west by Matthew Bazett freeholder's lands, south by land that Bazett hired from the Company, and east by land that John Worrall hired from the Company. The title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Elizabeth Allis and the heirs of Thomas Allis, with their respective heirs and assigns, were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason and Henry Francis. Interpretations The confirmation marks the first documentary record of Thomas Allis as deceased. Earlier records had documented Allis as a substantial Deep Valley estate-builder from at least 1689 onwards, with multiple acquisitions including the Tomps stone house, the Stevens                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Heires and Assignes, shall always do and bear true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and constitutions of the said Island, In Witness whereof the said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: to these P[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth A. day of August. In y[e] Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered in y[e] p[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis | lease, the Hemmons 10 acres, the Child quit-claim, the Miller 10 acres, and the 4 August 1713 confirmation and lease totalling 33 acres. The present 4 August 1713 deed in favour of his widow and heirs would, if Allis had indeed died, place his death between the morning instruments of the day (which named him as living holder) and the present afternoon deed. The chronological impossibility points to the present confirmation being processed at a different moment from the earlier Allis instruments, or to a clerical compression of events that the institutional record has flattened into a single date. The vesting through Thomas Allis's last will and testament places the inheritance under formal testamentary disposition rather than under default rules of succession. The structure parallels the William Hayes confirmation in favour of Dorothy Hayes on the same day, with both deeds operating under explicit testamentary provision. The pattern shows the council treating wills as the governing instrument for the descent of substantial estates, with the Company's regularisation following the testator's expressed wishes rather than imposing standard inheritance patterns. The 27-acre parcel in Deep Valley represents a portion of Thomas Allis's accumulated working estate, although the precise relationship between the 27 acres confirmed here and the earlier 33 acres confirmed and leased in his name remains unclear from the present text. The 27 acres may represent a particular portion of the broader estate that the will directed to Elizabeth, with other portions perhaps passing to named heirs under separate provisions, or the entire 27 acres may be a fresh allocation distinct from the earlier holdings. The boundary description places the parcel within a tight cluster of holdings managed or held by Matthew Bazett and John Worrall. Bazett appears on three sides of the parcel: as freeholder to the north and west, and as Company lessee to the south. Worrall appears as Company lessee to the east. The configuration shows the Allis estate effectively wedged between holdings entirely controlled by two of the council's senior administrative figures, with Bazett's combined freehold and leasehold dominating the immediate landscape. The reduced witness panel of Thomas Cason and Henry Francis, without John Alexander as register, matches the pattern seen in other closing instruments of the day. The procedural withdrawal of Alexander from later instruments continued through the Elizabeth Allis confirmation, despite the deed's substantive importance in marking the institutional succession of one of the most established Deep Valley families. The double vesting in Elizabeth and the heirs of Thomas Allis preserves the testamentary structure that Thomas had established for the descent of his estate. The widow holds alongside the heirs rather than absolutely, with both parties' interests embedded in the institutional record. The structure protects against any disturbance of the testamentary intention by either branch acting alone. The deceased Thomas Allis named here is the same individual who had earlier appeared with Thomas Allis junior at the 18 June 1713 Tovey-Maxwell gift, marking a generational pair within the family. The senior died sometime between June 1713 and the present confirmation, with the junior continuing as the named adult Allis on the island. Speculations The choice to vest the freehold in Elizabeth alongside the heirs, rather than directly in the heirs alone, reflects a particular protective strategy that Thomas Allis appears to have constructed through his will. The structure secured the widow's institutional standing against any pressure from the heirs or from outside parties who might have sought to displace her from the working occupation of the estate. Without the explicit vesting, Elizabeth might have been left as a mere life tenant or as a beneficiary of the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | heirs' goodwill, exposed to disputes about her rights to the working ground she occupied. The testamentary provision converting her into a co-vested party gave her documented institutional standing that no later challenge could easily disturb. The pattern suggests Thomas had given careful thought to the protection of his widow against the typical vulnerabilities of women in the inheritance system, using the formal documentary regime as a defensive instrument on her behalf. The dominance of Matthew Bazett's holdings around the Elizabeth Allis parcel raises a question about how the substantial Allis estate had come to be reduced to a 27-acre core surrounded by Bazett ground. Thomas Allis had built up his Deep Valley estate through purchases stretching back to 1689, but by the time of his death the regularised configuration showed Bazett rather than Allis as the dominant landholder of the area. The pattern may indicate that Bazett, in his role as surveyor and as council member, had used his institutional position to acquire portions of the Allis estate or adjoining ground as opportunities arose. The 1711 framework operated through consultations and beat of drum notices that Bazett himself oversaw, and the configuration suggests he may have used his administrative knowledge to position himself advantageously within the regularised landscape. The Elizabeth Allis confirmation accordingly captures a moment when one substantial family's working estate had been effectively encircled by the holdings of a council member whose institutional access gave him systematic advantage over the redistribution of available ground. The clerical date discrepancy, with Thomas Allis appearing as both living holder and deceased testator within instruments dated 4 August 1713, may reveal something about how the institutional record managed the complications of mortality during the major sitting. The council may have processed multiple Allis-related instruments in advance, drafting them according to the working assumption that Thomas was still alive, and then issued additional confirmations after his death without recalling and redating the earlier documents. The resulting record gives a flattened chronological impression that conceals the actual sequence of events. The pattern shows the institutional framework adapting to real-world mortality through documentary fictions that preserved the appearance of orderly processing, with the formal records carrying forward arrangements that no longer reflected the actual state of the holders they described.  |
| 190 | 185          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon<sup>ble</sup> United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Lett and Set unto Humphrey Edwards Freeplanter One Acre of Land Scituate Lying &amp; being under y<sup>e</sup> Main Ridge near Sandy Bay, Buiting towards y<sup>e</sup> North upon y<sup>e</sup> Lands of Samuel Comp<sup>a</sup> Lease Desfountain dec<sup>ease</sup>d his Orphans which they Hires of y<sup>e</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Comp<sup>a</sup>: towards y<sup>e</sup> West &amp; South upon to the Lands of Paul Charles dec<sup>ease</sup>d his Orphans, and towards y<sup>e</sup> East upon y<sup>e</sup> said Main Ridge Humphrey To have and to hold the Aforesaid One Acre of Land to him y<sup>e</sup> said Humphrey Edwards Edwards his Executors Administrators and Assignes, For y<sup>e</sup> Terme &amp; Time of Twenty one Years Com- menc<sup>e</sup>ing from y<sup>e</sup> Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Humphrey Edwards. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Humphrey Edwards, free planter, 1 acre of land under the Main Ridge near Sandy Bay. The parcel was bounded north by the lands of Samuel Desfountain's orphans, which they hired from the Company, west and south by the lands of the late Paul Charles's orphans, and east by the Main Ridge. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1712, with Edwards, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Edwards and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------|-----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Twelve. Upon Condition That he y[e] s[ai]d Humphrey Edwards his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes shall always Do and bear true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a] &amp; their Successors. And shall duly Obey all all y[e] Laws &amp; constitutions of y[e] said Island, And Yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annual Rent &amp; Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides One Shilling duty being in all five Shillings p[er] An[nu]m in good &amp; Currant money of y[e] said Island Unto y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors. And that he y[e] said Humphrey Edwards his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall &amp; Do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Terme of Twenty One Years Leave y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repair as they are now, and not to alter y[e] said Fences which are y[e] Land marks, and which will Occasion y[e] Alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed nor dispose of this Lease or interest in y[e] same without Consent of y[e] Governour and Council for y[e] time being. In Witness Whereof this said Honourable United Company &amp; Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents have Set there Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Fourth day of August. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. And y[e] said Humphrey Edwards to y[e] other p[ar]t hath Set his Hand and Seale. Humphrey EdwardsSealed and Delivered In y[e] P[re]sence of: Tho[s]Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Edwards was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Humphrey Edwards signed and sealed the counterpart. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease records Humphrey Edwards's first appearance as a documented holder in his own right, after his earlier mention as a boundary holder in the Desfountain children's lease. The present 1-acre lease formalises his minimal institutional standing within the regularised landscape, with his working presence reduced to a single acre between two orphan-held adjoining parcels. The northern boundary against Samuel Desfountain's orphans' hired Company land cross-references directly to the same-day Desfountain children's lease, which identified the 1 acre held by Humphrey Edwards on its southern boundary. The two instruments reciprocally attest each other's bounds, with the Desfountain ground on one side and the Edwards parcel on the other forming a continuous working unit within the Sandy Bay cluster. The naming variation between James Desfountain (in the Desfountain freehold and lease) and Samuel Desfountain (in the present Edwards lease) introduces a discrepancy about the deceased father's Christian name. Earlier interpretations had treated James Desfountain as the deceased father across the family records, but the present reference to Samuel Desfountain suggests either an alternate name for the same individual or a separate Desfountain father whose orphans held adjoining ground. The Samuel Desfontaine of the 1701 Dixon sale at Youngs Valley provides an earlier reference to a Samuel Desfountain on the island, who may be the actual father of the orphans rather than James as previously assumed. The western and southern boundary against the late Paul Charles's orphans connects to the broader Charles family settlement seen in the 20 July 1711 William Charles confirmation. Paul Charles had died by 1711, and his children held the inherited estate, with the orphans continuing as boundary holders across multiple Sandy Bay instruments. The configuration places Edwards's single acre wedged between two orphan estates, with both adjoining holdings managed under family settlements. The eastern boundary against the Main Ridge places the parcel at the upper edge of cultivated ground in the Sandy Bay region. The Main Ridge served as a fixed topographical reference across many Sandy Bay confirmations and leases, marking the natural limit beyond which the landscape rose into uncultivable terrain. The minimal 1-acre size of the lease places Edwards as the smallest documented leasehold tenant in the 4 August 1713 sitting. Most other leases ran to between 5 and 30 acres, with even the smallest holders typically receiving more than a single acre. The single-acre extent suggests Edwards's working ground had a particular focused purpose, perhaps as a specific cultivation unit or as a small enclosed plot for a defined activity. Edwards's signature in his own hand places him among the lettered holders despite his minimal working ground. The literate signature distinguishes him from unlettered tenants such as Thomas Hayes and Simon Whaley who sealed with marks, and indicates that literacy and substantial estate were not necessarily correlated within the regularised landscape. The free planter designation places Edwards among the established settler community rather than among soldiers, garrison members or other categories. The |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | classification carried particular institutional weight by 1713, distinguishing settled civilian holders from military or transient personnel. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied uniformly across all sizes of holding, with the smallest single-acre lease receiving the same procedural weight as the largest substantial estates. Speculations The placement of Humphrey Edwards's single acre between two orphan estates may reveal a specific protective function that the council had assigned to him within the regularised Sandy Bay landscape. The two orphan groups, Desfountain children and Paul Charles's orphans, both required adult oversight of their working ground during their minorities, and the presence of an established lettered free planter between them gave the council a recognisable adult party to whom practical questions about the orphan estates could be referred. Edwards's small holding accordingly may have functioned not principally as an agricultural unit but as a documented presence supporting the institutional management of vulnerable adjoining estates, with his rent at standard rate covering the use of a minimal parcel while his actual role extended to informal supervision of the surrounding orphan ground. The mechanism would have given the council a practical agent on the spot without requiring formal guardianship or trusteeship documentation. The Christian name variation between James and Samuel Desfountain across the records of the same sitting points to a deeper problem in the documentary identification of the deceased Desfountain father. The 1701 records had clearly identified Samuel Des Fontaine as the buyer at Youngs Valley, but the 1713 confirmation in favour of the children identified the deceased father as James. The discrepancy may reflect two distinct generations of the family, with Samuel as the older holder of the 1701 records and James as his son who had subsequently died, leaving his own children as the orphans confirmed in 1713. Alternatively, the variance may reflect different names by which the same individual had been known at different times, perhaps Samuel as a baptismal name and James as a working alternative. The institutional record's tolerance of the discrepancy suggests the council was confident about the identity of the orphans and the location of the ground regardless of which Christian name appeared in any particular instrument, with the substantive title resting on the working family identification rather than on documentary precision about the father's name. The institutional decision to record a free planter on a single-acre lease, with full witnessing complement and standard rental, reflects a particular commitment to comprehensive documentary cover that operated independently of economic significance. The rent of 5 shillings per annum could not have justified the institutional cost of preparing, sealing and witnessing the formal lease, with the clerical labour, the common seal application and the senior officers' time all consumed for an instrument generating minimal revenue. The pattern shows the council treating the 1711 framework as a comprehensive documentary regime in which every working occupation, however small, required formal institutional cover. The framework's value to the Company accordingly lay not in the rental income from individual small leases but in the systematic creation of a documentary regime within which every holder, regardless of size, owed institutional recognition of Company authority. The 1-acre Edwards lease thus served the broader purpose of locking the entire working population into the documentary system, with the modest revenue subordinated to the larger institutional goal of establishing universal documented tenure under Company supervision. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 191 | 186          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Tradeing to y[e] East Indies. Do hereby Confirm unto Sutton Isaac Sen[r] Freeholder, Twenty Acres of Land Scituate in Fishers Valley being his former Allotment Comp[a] Deed Butting &amp; Bounding towards y[e] North upon y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[a]: West Land, towards y[e] East upon the Lands of to of James Drapers Freeholder, towards y[e] South upon y[e] Lands of Samuel Desfountain (dec[ease]d). &amp; towards y[e] Sutton West on y[e] Land of Dorothy Hayse, Widow her Children, Which he y[e] said Sutton Isaac, hath a Just right Isaack and Title too, As may appear more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of the Sen[ior] Third day of March &amp; A. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any person to make their claim on a day certain therein Limitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold the said premises to him y[e] said Sutton Isaac Sen[r] his Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he y[e] said Sutton Isaac his Heires &amp; Assignes shall and do always bear true, Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors and to y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors. And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island. In Witness Whereof the said Honourable Company to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. In y[e] year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the p[re]sence of: Tho[s] CasonH[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Sutton Isaac senior. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Sutton Isaac senior, freeholder, 20 acres of land in Fishers Valley, being his former allotment. The parcel was bounded north by the Company's waste land, east by James Draper freeholder's lands, south by the lands of the deceased Samuel Desfountain, and west by Dorothy Hayes widow and her children's lands. Isaac's title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Sutton Isaac senior, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The confirmation regularises Sutton Isaac senior's 20-acre Fishers Valley holding as his former allotment, recording the institutional recognition of an estate that predated the 1711 framework by many years. The phrase former allotment locates the original grant within the foundational distributions of the late seventeenth century, with Isaac's tenure extending back perhaps to the original allocations of the period. His persistence across decades of records, from his earliest documented appearance through to the present 1713 confirmation, marks him as one of the senior survivors of the foundational settler generation. The deed resolves the earlier discrepancy about the Desfountain father's Christian name. The present deed identifies the deceased father as Samuel Desfountain, matching the Edwards lease of the same sitting and confirming that Samuel rather than James was the actual name of the father of the orphans. The James name appearing in the Desfountain confirmation and lease earlier in the day must accordingly be regarded as a scribal error or alternate name, with the present deed providing the corrective evidence from an adjoining holder's confirmation. The resolution shows the documentary regime self-correcting through the cross-referenced boundary descriptions of multiple instruments processed in the same sitting. The eastern boundary against James Draper freeholder's land cross-references the same-day Draper confirmation, which had identified Sutton Isaac senior as the western boundary of Draper's 20 acres. The reciprocal mapping confirms the two estates as adjoining cores within the Fishers Valley cluster, with each freeholder's deed attesting the other's bounds. The western boundary against Dorothy Hayes widow and her children's lands creates a reciprocal mapping with the same-day Hayes confirmation, which had identified Sutton Isaac senior as the eastern boundary of the Hayes |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | ground. The two deeds attest each other's bounds across the same sitting. The southern boundary against the late Samuel Desfountain's lands completes the surrounding boundary description, placing Isaac's 20-acre core at the centre of a cluster framed by Draper to the east, Hayes to the west and the Desfountain orphans to the south. The configuration shows Isaac as the central holder of the Fishers Valley regularised landscape, with the surrounding holdings of younger, deceased or widow-held estates clustered around his established core. Sutton Isaac senior also appears in the same sitting as the father of Sutton Isaac junior, whose 5-acre lease adjoined the senior's land on its western side. The launch of the junior into independent leasehold tenure on the same day as the confirmation of the senior's freehold demonstrates the deliberate coordination of generational succession within the institutional regularisation. The family's combined working presence reached 25 acres across freehold and adjoining leasehold by the end of the day. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The senior's confirmation received the same procedural weight as the largest substantial estates, reflecting the council's recognition of his foundational status in the Fishers Valley landscape. The consultation date of 3 March 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, matches the consultation date supporting the Draper and Hayes confirmations and other Fishers Valley instruments of the day. The shared consultation date confirms the systematic batch processing of the entire valley's holdings within a single council review. The free planter designation that Sutton Isaac senior holds across the records, alongside his confirmed freehold status and his settled position at the centre of the Fishers Valley cluster, places him among the most institutionally established holders of the regularised landscape. His position parallels other senior holders such as Thomas Allis senior in Deep Valley and Thomas Swallow senior in the broader cluster. Speculations The institutional decision to identify the parcel as Sutton Isaac senior's former allotment, rather than describing it through any intermediate chain of title or transaction, reveals the particular weight that the 1711 framework gave to foundational settlement claims. Most other confirmations in the sitting recited the recent history of the ground through references to deceased prior holders, purchases from the Company, exchanges or family settlements. The Isaac senior deed bypasses any such chain and reaches directly back to the original allotment of the estate, marking him as a holder whose title rested on the original distribution of the island rather than on any subsequent transaction. The structure secured his tenure against any challenge that might have arisen from intermediate dealings, since the institutional record now formally attested that his current possession derived directly from the founding act of allocation. The framework accordingly used the language of former allotment as a defensive instrument for the most senior holders, locking their estates against any challenge by anchoring the title to a foundational moment beyond which no contest could reach. The coordination of the senior's freehold confirmation with the junior's leasehold launch on the same day, combined with the placement of Sutton Isaac senior at the centre of multiple adjoining confirmations involving widows, orphans and a second-generation freeholder, reveals a deliberate institutional strategy of using the senior to anchor the broader Fishers Valley cluster. The council's regularisation of the entire valley |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | appears to have rested on Isaac's documented presence as the central reliable reference point, with the surrounding holdings drawing their boundary descriptions from his confirmed core. Without a senior surviving foundational holder at the centre, the cluster of widow, orphan and recent-inheritance estates would have lacked any settled adjoining reference against which their bounds could be fixed. Isaac's continued presence accordingly served not only his own institutional regularisation but the broader feasibility of the entire valley's documentary settlement, with his deed functioning as the anchor stone around which the surrounding confirmations could be assembled. The progression visible across the day, with the senior's foundational allotment confirmed, his son launched into independent tenure, and his daughters or further heirs implicit in the broader Audouart connection through his earlier 1698 gift to grandson Stephen Audouart, captures a family operating within a deliberate multi-generational strategy. The institutional framework provided the documentary architecture for that strategy, with the regularisation of the senior's freehold securing the foundational tenure while the parallel issuance of leases to younger generations spread the family's working presence outward without fragmenting the core estate. The pattern shows the 1711 framework working not as a neutral administrative regime but as an active instrument by which substantial families could engineer continuity across generations, using the documentary cover the Company provided to lock their working position into the regularised landscape on terms that protected against later disruption.  |
| 192 | 187          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Comp[a] of Merch[an]ts of England Tradeing to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Lett &amp; Sett unto Thomas Harper Free Planter, Twelve Acres of Land, Scituate and Lying under the Comp[a] Lease Main Ridge that leads from high Peak towards Manatee Bay head, Buiting towards y[e] to North-East-West &amp; South upon the Honourable Company Wast Land. To have and to Tho[mas] Harper hold The said Twelve Acres of Land to him y[e] said Thomas Harper his Executors Administrato[rs] and Assignes For y[e] Term and Tyne of Twenty one Years commenc[e]ing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Fourteen. Upon Condition. That he y[e] said Thomas Harper his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall always Do &amp; bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable Company &amp; their Successors, And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, And yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annual Rent and Sum of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good and Currant money of the said Island, Unto the said Honourable Company and their Successors. And that he y[e] said | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Thomas Harper. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Thomas Harper, free planter, 12 acres of land under the Main Ridge that leads from High Peak towards Manatee Bay head. The parcel was bounded north, east, west and south by the Company's waste land. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1714, with Harper, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Harper and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Harper was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Thomas Harper signed and sealed the counterpart. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------------|-----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Thomas Harper his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall and Do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty One Years Leave the Fences about the said Land in as good repaire as they are now, and not to Alter the said Fences which are the Land marks, and which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plot hereunto Annexed, Nor dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same without consent of the Governour and Council, for the time being. In Witness whereof y[e] said Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seal at their Castle in James Vally this Fourth &amp; A. A. day of August. in the Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And he the said Thomas Harper to the other p[ar]t hath Sett his Hand and Seale. Tho[ma]s HarperSealed and Delivered in the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] CasonH[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | The lease introduces a new Thomas Harper into the records, distinct from the earlier Thomas Harper senior who had died by April 1709 and whose death had been recorded in the Marsden-Toster Fort James Valley chain of title. The present Thomas Harper as free planter and lessee in 1713 represents either a son, grandson or other relative of the deceased senior, continuing the family name in a new generation. The records do not establish the precise relationship, but the shared surname and the persistence of the Harper family across multiple decades suggests an ongoing presence on the island. The lease commencement date of 25 March 1714 marks a unique departure from any other lease processed in the 4 August 1713 sitting. Where most other leases commenced from 25 March 1712 and a small minority from 25 March 1713, the present Harper lease alone commences from 25 March 1714, dating the institutional effect forward by approximately seven months rather than back. The forward-dating indicates that the lease takes effect from the Lady Day following the sealing, marking it as a fresh allocation of ground that Harper had not previously occupied rather than a regularisation of existing occupation. The location under the Main Ridge that leads from High Peak towards Manatee Bay head places the parcel in a geographically specific corridor running along the upper ridge. The route from High Peak to Manatee Bay head describes a particular topographical line that the institutional record uses to identify the leased ground. Manatee Bay introduces a new place name into the documented landscape, perhaps relating to marine mammals observed in the area at an earlier date. The Main Ridge as the descriptive feature places the parcel at the upper limit of cultivable ground. The configuration with all four sides bounded by Company waste places Harper at a wholly isolated position within the regularised landscape. The absence of any named adjoining freeholder or leaseholder marks the holding as a frontier estate at the outer margin of regularised settlement, beyond the main clusters of Fishers Valley, Sandy Bay and Chapel Valley. The pattern matches other isolated holdings such as the Joshua Johnson 14-acre confirmation, the Simon Whaley 10-acre confirmation, and the Stephen Lufkin 10-acre confirmation, where Company waste formed the dominant or sole boundary. The 12-acre size of the lease places Harper as a modest but not minimal lessee, with his single parcel exceeding many of the small parcels that supplemented freehold cores elsewhere in the day. The lease's character as the sole institutional documentation of his working presence, without any paired freehold confirmation, marks him as a leasehold-only holder. Harper's signature in his own hand places him among the lettered holders despite his isolated frontier position. The literate signature distinguishes him from unlettered tenants and indicates that the documentary regime captured holders across the literacy spectrum at the outer margins as well as the central clusters. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied uniformly to the frontier allocation just as to the regularisation of substantial established estates, demonstrating the consistent procedural treatment given to all holders within the institutional framework. The absence of any paired freehold confirmation for Harper marks him as one of the holders whose 1711 regularisation took the form of a leasehold-only treatment. The pattern matches Thomas Hayes the carrier or soldier, John Robinson, and certain other holders whose institutional regularisation depended on leasehold tenure alone, without any underlying freehold core. Speculations |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                           | The unique forward-dating of the lease commencement to 25 March 1714 reveals a particular institutional treatment that distinguishes the Harper allocation from every other lease processed in the sitting. The council appears to have used the standard back-dating to 1712 for regularisations of established occupation, the alternative 1713 dating for recently settled arrangements, and the forward-dating to 1714 specifically for fresh allocations of ground that the lessee had not previously worked. The graduation across three commencement dates within a single sitting accordingly reveals an underlying institutional taxonomy of leasehold types: established tenures regularised, recent arrangements confirmed and entirely new allocations granted, each receiving a different commencement date to mark the institutional moment at which the relationship took its formal effect. The Harper lease's forward-dating thus categorises him not as a holder receiving documentary cover for existing occupation but as a fresh tenant granted access to previously unallocated ground. The fresh allocation of ground to Thomas Harper at a frontier position under the Main Ridge raises a question about why the council was extending the regularised landscape into previously unoccupied territory at the same sitting that consolidated existing tenures. The institutional decision to add a new working presence in such a remote location suggests the council was actively expanding the documented agricultural reach of the island rather than merely fixing what was already there. The 1711 framework accordingly served not only as an instrument of regularisation but as a mechanism of controlled expansion, with the council granting new leases at the margins to extend the productive surface of the island while keeping the new allocations under the same institutional supervision as the established estates. The pattern reveals a Company strategy of using the documentary regime to push settled cultivation outward into formerly waste ground, with each new lease both generating standard rental income and incorporating additional productive capacity into the regularised system. The choice of Thomas Harper as recipient of a frontier allocation may have rested on calculations about which holders could best be entrusted with marginal ground. A new lessee at a remote position required certain qualities: capital sufficient to develop unbroken waste, working capacity to bring the parcel into production within the term, and standing within the documented community sufficient to be trusted with the institutional relationship. Harper's lettered status and his connection to an established island family name perhaps marked him as suitable for the institutional risk of a frontier allocation. The council's grant of the marginal parcel accordingly represents not only a fresh allocation of ground but an investment of institutional trust in a holder whose family connections and personal qualities justified placing him at the outer edge of the regularised landscape, where his success or failure would depend on his own resources rather than on integration into an established cluster of adjoining estates.  |
| 193 | 188          | Island St HelenaThe Lords Proprietors of this Island The Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to John Nichols senior.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | the East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto Comp[a] Deed John Nichols Sen[r] Freeholder Twenty five Acres of Land Scituate at y[e] Head of the contain[ns] Vally, Buiting to and bounding toward the North-East and South upon the Honourable Companys West Land. Also Jn[o] Nichols Fifteen Acres of Land more Scituate under the High Peak Buiting towards the North and East upon Sen[r] the Land of Henry Harrison towards the South upon the Land of Benjamin Sich &amp; A. and towards the West upon the said Honourable Companys West Land, Being two parcels of Land containeing, in the whole Forty Acres, Which he the said John Nichols Hath a Just Right and Title too. As they more largely appear, upon examination in a Consultation of the Third &amp; A. A. day of March. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limmitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said premises to him the said John Nichols his Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he the said John Nichols his Heires and Assignes shall and Do always bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island. In Witness whereof y[e] said Honourable Company to these P[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered in the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to John Nichols senior, freeholder, two parcels of land totalling 40 acres. The first parcel of 25 acres lay at the head of the valley. It was bounded north, east and south by the Company's waste land. The second parcel of 15 acres lay under the High Peak. It was bounded north and east by Henry Harrison's land, south by Benjamin Sich's land, and west by the Company's waste land. Nichols's title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. John Nichols senior, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcels for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The 40-acre confirmation regularises John Nichols senior's working presence across two distinct locations within the regularised landscape. The first parcel at the head of a valley (the specific valley name is not recorded in the present text, leaving the precise location ambiguous) and the second parcel under the High Peak place his holdings in different parts of the island. The configuration shows the typical pattern of dispersed accumulation seen across the 1713 sitting, with substantial holders building up working presence in multiple regions rather than concentrating in a single contiguous block. John Nichols senior appears across the earlier records as a recurring boundary holder and witness. He had witnessed the 25 July 1691 Harding-French sale at the head of Oak Gutt, the Toms-Allis sale of January 1689, and the Bradley-Belvard sale of October 1705. His own holdings had been referenced as boundary in multiple instruments, with the 1691 Harding deed identifying him as adjoining holder to the 10 acres at the head of Oak Gutt. The present 1713 confirmation accordingly regularises a working estate that the records show extending back at least 22 years. The senior designation distinguishes him from a younger John Nichols within the family, suggesting a generational pair similar to those documented for Sutton Isaac (senior and junior), Thomas Allis (senior and junior) and Thomas Swallow (senior and junior). The present text does not confirm the existence of a Nichols junior in the documented sitting, but the senior designation by itself implies the institutional recognition of multiple Nichols generations. The first parcel's isolation, with three sides against Company waste, places it as a relatively detached holding at the head of a valley. The configuration suggests the parcel sat at the upper reach of a valley system, where cultivable ground gave way to higher terrain that remained as Company waste. The second parcel under the High Peak introduces a new individual into the records as the eastern boundary holder: Henry Harrison. Harrison emerges here as a documented landholder without any earlier reference, suggesting either a recent arrival or a previously undocumented holder being brought into the institutional record through the broader regularisation of the area. The southern boundary against Benjamin Sich's land places Sich again as a recurring boundary holder across the 1713 sitting. Sich had appeared as the northern boundary of multiple Sandy Bay confirmations and connects to the broader Sich/Sech family network through James Sich (the 1707 occupier of John Beale's land) and through Margaret Sich (the substantial widow holder of the same day). |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving substantial procedural weight. The consultation date of 3 March 1714 in modern reckoning matches the consultation date supporting the Draper, Hayes, Robert Addis and other 4 August 1713 confirmations, demonstrating the systematic batch processing of multiple holdings within a single council review session. The absence of any same-day paired leasehold marks Nichols as one of the holders whose 1711 regularisation took the form of a freehold-only treatment. The pattern matches Simon Whaley's initial appearance (later corrected) and other smaller holders whose institutional regularisation rested primarily on the freehold confirmation. The absence of any classification of the ground as gumwood, cabbage tree or other vegetation category leaves the institutional categorisation of Nichols's estate unrecorded in the present text, contrasting with the careful classification recorded in most other deeds of the day. Speculations The absence of the specific valley name from the deed, leaving the location of the first parcel described only as at the head of the valley, suggests a particular institutional shorthand that the council used for certain established holders whose location was so familiar that no further designation was required. The clerks preparing the deed evidently relied on the surveyor's plan and on the local knowledge of the council itself to fix the precise location, with the textual description abbreviated to a mere reference that would have been comprehensible to anyone working within the institutional system. The pattern reveals the limits of the documentary regime as a stand-alone record: while the framework treated comprehensive documentation as its institutional foundation, in practice the operative meaning of any individual deed depended on the surrounding knowledge held by the council members who oversaw the system. The textual record accordingly served as a marker pointing toward the underlying working knowledge rather than as a complete self-contained description, with the deed's substantive force depending on the institutional context that gave it meaning. The emergence of Henry Harrison as a previously undocumented boundary holder under the High Peak raises a question about the depth of the documentary regime's coverage. The 1711 framework had aimed at comprehensive regularisation of the working landscape, yet Harrison appears here as an apparently established holder of sufficient standing to form a recognised boundary against Nichols's confirmation, while having no earlier documented presence in any of the records. The pattern suggests that a significant population of holders operated within the working landscape without ever appearing in the formal documentary record, either because their holdings were below the threshold of regular regularisation, or because they had remained outside the institutional framework through whatever combination of choice and circumstance. The 1711 framework accordingly captured only those holders who interacted directly with the regularisation process, while a parallel population of working occupiers continued in informal tenure that the records noticed only when their ground became a boundary of someone else's regularised estate. The institutional regime thus produced a documentary geography that systematically privileged the participating holders, leaving the non-participating occupiers visible only through indirect reference, with no formal protection or recognition of their working presence. The placement of John Nichols senior's two parcels in different parts of the island, combined with his recurring role as witness across decades of records, |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | suggests his actual significance within the institutional landscape extended well beyond what the present confirmation captures. As a long-standing witness to others' transactions, Nichols belonged to the literate circle that underpinned the documentary regime, and the council's confidence in his judgment about boundaries, family relationships and chains of title made him a routine party to the regularisation activities of his neighbours. The 1713 confirmation of his own 40 acres accordingly registers only the formal aspect of a much wider institutional role, with the deed serving as the documentary anchor for a working presence whose practical influence operated principally through the unrecorded acts of witness, attestation and informal mediation that he had performed across many years. The pattern reveals how the framework's apparent equality of treatment concealed the differential institutional weight that holders carried within the documented community, with established witnesses such as Nichols functioning as quiet supports of the entire regularisation apparatus while receiving only standard procedural recognition for their own confirmed estates.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 194 | 189          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Lett and Sett Comp[a] Lease unto Margaret Daughter of Thomas Bagley dec[ease]d, Twenty Six Acres of Land Scituate and to being in Powells Vally Buting and y[e] North &amp; East upon y[e] Honourable Companys Wast Land, toward y[e] Mary Bagley West &amp; South upon y[e] Land of Orlando Bagley Freeholder, To have and to hold The said Twenty Six Acres of Land to her y[e] said Margaret Bagley her Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes for y[e] Term &amp; Time of Twenty one years Commenc[e]ing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. Upon Condition That she the said Margaret Bagley her Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall &amp; Do alwayes bear true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors. And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, And yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March), the Annuall Rent and sum of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty, being in all Five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good &amp; Currant money of y[e] said Island, Unto y[e] said Honourable Company &amp; their Successors And that she y[e] said Margaret Bagley her Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall &amp; Do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty one years Leave y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repair as they are now and not to alter y[e] said fences which are y[e] Land marks, &amp; which will Occasion the Alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed, Nor dispose of this Lease or Interest in y[e] same without Consent of y[e] Governour &amp; Council for y[e] time being. In Witness whereof y[e] said Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Set their Common Seale at their Castle in James Vally this Fourth | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Margaret Bagley. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Margaret, daughter of the deceased Thomas Bagley, 26 acres of land in Powell's Valley. The parcel was bounded north and east by the Company's waste land, and west and south by Orlando Bagley freeholder's land. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1713, with Margaret, her executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Margaret and her successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, she was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. She was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or her interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. The counterpart was sealed by Orlando Bagley as executor on Margaret's behalf. Witnessed by Thomas Cason and Henry Francis. Interpretations The lease establishes Margaret Bagley as a documented holder in her own right, identified through her relationship to the deceased Thomas Bagley as his daughter. Thomas Bagley had received the 25 March 1711 Company lease of 21 acres in Sandy Bay, and his death by 1713 has now generated a fresh institutional arrangement for the continuation of the family's working ground through his daughter. The present 26-acre lease in Powell's Valley sits in a different region from her father's earlier Sandy Bay tenure, indicating that the family's working presence had expanded across multiple regions during Thomas's lifetime. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | &amp; A. day of August. In y[e] Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. And she y[e] said Margaret to her Executors for her have hereunto Set their Hands and Seales. Orlando Bagley      ExecutorSealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] CasonH[?] Francis | The lease commencement date of 25 March 1713 places this instrument within the small group of 1713 sitting leases that depart from the standard 25 March 1712 back-dating. The shared pattern with the John Goodwin, Margaret Sich, Stephen Lufkin and Thomas Hayes leases suggests these instruments regularised more recent arrangements rather than long-established occupation. The reference to Margaret Bagley as daughter rather than as widow distinguishes her from the substantial widow holders documented elsewhere in the sitting such as Frances Goodwin, Elizabeth Johnson, Margaret Sich and Dorothy Hayes. The documented inheritance from father to unmarried adult daughter, or to a daughter whose marital status is left unstated, represents a different pattern from the widow-and-heirs vestings seen in most other female-held instruments. The earlier records had documented Margaret Bagley as a widow holding ground at the head of Powell's Valley adjoining Orlando Bagley's confirmed estate on the 4 August 1713 confirmation. The present lease refers to her as daughter of Thomas Bagley, creating an apparent discrepancy with her earlier characterisation as widow. The two descriptions may refer to two distinct women named Margaret Bagley, or alternatively the earlier widow reading may have been incorrect, with the present deed providing the corrective evidence that she was in fact an unmarried daughter rather than a widow. The sealing of the counterpart by Orlando Bagley as executor on Margaret's behalf reveals the institutional arrangement under which her holding was managed. Orlando, identified in the same-day records as a substantial freeholder of 23 acres at the head of Powell's Valley with a paired 40-acre lease, served as executor (perhaps of her late father Thomas Bagley's estate, or as guardian of her own interests). The configuration places Margaret as the named lessee with the working management exercised through Orlando's adult administration. The placement of the 26-acre leasehold against Orlando Bagley's freehold on the south and west creates a closely integrated family working unit. Orlando's freehold of 23 acres, his 40-acre lease and Margaret's 26-acre lease together total 89 acres in Powell's Valley under Bagley family control. The configuration shows the family operating as a consolidated working presence across the valley, with the institutional structure preserving the family's collective hold through multiple instruments to different named parties. The reduced witness panel of Thomas Cason and Henry Francis, without John Alexander as register, matches the pattern seen in other closing instruments of the day. The procedural withdrawal of Alexander continued through the Margaret Bagley lease. The Powell's Valley location places Margaret Bagley within the same regional cluster as the substantial Orlando Bagley estate. The valley's name preserved the working presence of an earlier Gabriel Powell or Powell family member, with the byname continuing to identify the area even where the underlying ground had passed to the Bagley family. The disposal restriction operated as the principal institutional control, with Margaret holding a personal interest that could not move to a new occupier without council approval. The restriction would have applied during her possible marriage as well as during any later transfer of the interest, with a potential future husband requiring council consent before any disposal could be effected. Speculations The institutional arrangement of vesting the leasehold in Margaret while having Orlando seal as executor reveals an underlying strategy for managing the inheritance of an unmarried adult daughter. The leasehold in Margaret's name preserved her recognised institutional interest in the family's ground, giving her documented standing that |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | could not be displaced by male relatives or by any future husband without her consent. The sealing by Orlando as executor provided the practical adult management necessary for the working operation of the parcel, with the rental obligations and the disposal restriction administered by the senior Bagley man on her behalf. The structure allowed the family to protect a daughter's economic interest within an institutional framework that otherwise privileged male holders, with the documentary regime accommodating the gender-specific vulnerability of an unmarried woman through the executor mechanism. The 1711 framework accordingly served as an instrument by which substantial families could engineer protection for female members against the structural risks of dependence on male relatives or future husbands, with the institutional record preserving her interest even where the day-to-day management was exercised by others. The reference to Margaret as daughter rather than as widow, against the earlier interpretation of her as a widow holding adjoining ground to Orlando, may resolve a longer-running ambiguity in the records about her marital status. If the earlier widow characterisation was indeed incorrect, the institutional record itself shows that even the documentary regime could carry forward erroneous descriptions of holders' personal status, with the correct identification emerging only through later instruments. The pattern suggests that the apparent precision of the framework concealed considerable scope for misdescription of holders whose actual personal circumstances might not be fully known to the clerks preparing each instrument. The institutional regime relied on the cumulative weight of multiple cross-referenced documents to construct an accurate picture of any holder, with single instruments potentially carrying significant errors that only the broader cross-referenced documentary record could correct. The placement of an unmarried daughter as named lessee of a substantial 26-acre parcel, set within the broader Bagley consolidation of 89 acres in Powell's Valley, points to a deliberate institutional strategy of dispersing the family's working ground across multiple documented holders to spread risk and to maximise institutional standing. By holding the 23-acre freehold under Orlando, the 40-acre lease under Orlando, and the 26-acre lease under Margaret, the family avoided any single concentration of ground that might attract Company attention or generate competing claims at the moment of inheritance. The diversified portfolio preserved the family's collective working presence while distributing the formal institutional exposure across multiple parties, with each individual member's holdings remaining below the threshold that might have prompted closer institutional scrutiny. The arrangement reveals how substantial families could use the documentary regime not merely to record their working position but to engineer protective arrangements that the framework's standard instruments could not have produced through a single concentrated tenure.  |
| 195 | 190          | Island St Helena.The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto Mary Hoskison Widow, Thirty Acres of Land Scituate Lying &amp; being at Horse Pasture Plain Buiting towards the North-East-West &amp; South upon y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[al]: | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Mary Hoskison. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Mary Hoskison, widow, three parcels of land totalling 86 acres.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------------|-----------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Wast Land, Also Twenty five Comp[a] Deed Acres of Land Scituate &amp; being under y[e] high Peak Buiting towards y[e] North upon y[e] Land to of William Frenches Orphans towards y[e] East upon y[e] Land of James Greentree, Towards Mary Hos- the South upon y[e] Land of Wranghams Orphans, &amp; towards y[e] West upon y[e] Hon[ble] Comp[ays] Wast kison Land. And also Twenty Eight Acres of Land more, Scituate &amp; Lying at y[e] Head of Lemmon Vally, Widow Buiting towards y[e] North upon y[e] said Honourable Companys great Pasture, Towards y[e] East upon the Land of Robert Addiss, Towards y[e] South upon y[e] aforesaid Frenches Orphans Land and towards y[e] West upon y[e] Land of John Goodwin, the aforesaid above mentioned Three parcels of Land, do contain in y[e] whole, Eighty Six Acres, Which she y[e] said Mary Hoskison hath a Just Right &amp; Title too, as may appear more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of the Third A. day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, and Notice being given by beat of Drum, for any p[er]son to make their, on a certain day therein Limitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said p[re]misses to her y[e] said Mary Hoskison her Heires &amp; Assignes for ever Upon Condition That she the said Mary Hoskison her Heires and Assignes, Do bear always true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable Comp[a] and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, In Witness Whereof y[e] said Honourable United Company &amp; Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on y[e] said Island this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. in y[e] Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In y[e] P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | The first parcel of 30 acres at Horse Pasture Plain was bounded north, east, west and south by the Company's waste land. The second parcel of 25 acres under the High Peak was bounded north by William French's orphans' land, east by James Greentree's land, south by Wrangham's orphans' land, and west by the Company's waste land. The third parcel of 28 acres at the head of Lemon Valley was bounded north by the Company's great pasture, east by Robert Addis's land, south by William French's orphans' land, and west by John Goodwin's land. Mary Hoskison's title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Mary Hoskison, her heirs and assigns were to hold the parcels for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The 86-acre confirmation transforms Mary Hoskison from a recurring boundary holder into one of the most substantial documented widow freeholders in the 4 August 1713 sitting. Earlier records had shown her primarily as the measuring life under the 6 July 1708 mortgage by George Hoskison to Richard Gurling, with the annuity arrangement using her natural life as the actuarial measure. Her subsequent emergence as a named boundary holder across multiple instruments in 1712 and 1713 had pointed toward growing institutional recognition of her tenure in her own right, but the present confirmation establishes her on a scale comparable with the most substantial widow holders such as Frances Goodwin (89 acres) and Margaret Sich (70 acres). The reference to Mary as widow without any further identification of her deceased husband leaves the question of her marital history open in the present text. George Hoskison had been the active land trader of earlier records, with his £350 0s 0d sale to Powell in 1706 and his £500 0s 0d purchase from Gurling in the same period. His subsequent fate after the 1708 mortgage to Gurling is not directly documented in the earlier records, but the present 1713 confirmation in favour of Mary as widow suggests his death had occurred at some point between 1708 and 1713. The absence of any reference to him as her husband in the present deed reflects the absolute character of her freehold rather than a layered family settlement. The first parcel at Horse Pasture Plain introduces a new place name into the records. The naming pattern reflects the working geographical vocabulary of the island, with Horse Pasture indicating ground used for grazing horses and Plain identifying an open or relatively level area. The complete isolation of the parcel, with all four sides against Company waste, marks it as a frontier position at the outer margin of regularised settlement. The second parcel under the High Peak places Mary's holding in a densely interlocking cluster of orphan and family estates. William French's orphans on the north and Wrangham's orphans on the south reveal the same area as the location of multiple orphan-held parcels confirmed across the 1713 sitting. James Greentree on the east connects to his substantial 60-acre confirmation processed in the same sitting, with the reciprocal mapping showing Mary's ground forming the western boundary of Greentree's estate. The third parcel at the head of Lemon Valley places her against the Company's great pasture to the north, Robert Addis to the east, William French's orphans to the south, and John Goodwin to the west. The configuration creates extensive reciprocal mapping with multiple other 4 August 1713 instruments processed in the same sitting, including the Addis and Goodwin confirmations. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The introduction of William French's orphans as boundary holders against two of Mary's parcels marks a new family settlement within the documented landscape. William French, the gunner or chief gunner of the earlier records, appears here as deceased, with his orphans continuing as recognisable collective tenure unit. The institutional landscape accordingly accommodates multiple orphan groups across the regularised holdings: Wrangham orphans, French orphans, Desfontain children, Maxwell orphans, Coulson orphans, Beale orphans and others. The vesting in Mary alone, with her heirs and assigns absolutely rather than jointly with the heirs of her deceased husband, parallels the absolute vesting in Frances Goodwin of the same day. The structure marks Mary as the sole institutional owner of the freehold, with no layered settlement constraining her absolute disposition of the ground. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving the senior procedural weight appropriate to one of the most substantial confirmations in the sitting. The consultation date of 3 March 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, matches the consultation date supporting the Greentree, Addis, John Goodwin, Draper, Hayes and other 4 August 1713 confirmations. The shared consultation date confirms the systematic batch processing of the entire Sandy Bay and Lemon Valley cluster within a single council review. Speculations The transformation of Mary Hoskison from measuring life under a 1708 mortgage into the absolute freeholder of 86 acres by 1713 reveals an extraordinary trajectory that the institutional record only partly explains. The original 1708 arrangement had Hoskison granting 45 acres to Gurling for Mary's lifetime in exchange for an annuity of £11 10s 0d per annum, with Mary as the actuarial measure rather than the holder of any underlying interest. The present 1713 confirmation in her name as absolute freeholder of 86 acres across three substantial parcels suggests her position had been radically reconstructed during the intervening five years. The mechanism may have involved the death of George Hoskison transferring his entire estate to her as widow, the formal acquisition of additional parcels in her name through some unrecorded purchase, or a deliberate institutional restructuring of the family's holdings during the 1711 framework. The configuration reveals how the documentary regime could be used to fundamentally alter the underlying allocation of substantial estates, with the formal records preserving the appearance of orderly succession while the actual transformation went far beyond what any single deed could have recorded directly. The strategic placement of Mary's three parcels at Horse Pasture Plain, under the High Peak, and at the head of Lemon Valley reveals a deliberate geographic diversification across the regularised landscape. The 86 acres spread across three regions provided protection against the failure of any single area, with cultivation conditions, water availability and topographical exposure differing significantly between the three locations. The pattern shows Mary or whoever managed her affairs operating with sophisticated awareness of the agricultural risk profile of the island, building a portfolio that minimised exposure to localised problems while maintaining substantial working presence in each of the major productive regions. The institutional regularisation accordingly captured not a randomly accumulated estate but the result of careful strategic planning that had selected each parcel for its particular position within the working landscape. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | The presence of Mary Hoskison as the dominant western boundary holder of James Greentree's leasehold (recorded in the same sitting) and as a recurring named boundary across multiple Sandy Bay and Lemon Valley instruments raises the question of how the Hoskison interests had become so widely distributed. George Hoskison's earlier dealings had concentrated on substantial individual transactions such as the £500 0s 0d Gurling purchase and the £350 0s 0d Powell sale, but the present configuration shows Mary's name attached to ground across many different regional clusters. The pattern suggests the Hoskison family had been systematically acquiring small to medium parcels across the island over an extended period, building a distributed portfolio rather than concentrating in a single area. The 1711 framework's regularisation moment then captured this dispersed accumulation in a single substantial confirmation, with the institutional record showing the geographic scope of the family's working presence in a way that the earlier individual transactions had only partially revealed. The pattern reveals how the documentary regime made visible the cumulative results of decades of acquisitive activity that the individual records of each transaction had concealed from any single institutional view.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 196 | 191          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Lett &amp; Sett unto Mary Hoskison Widow, Thirty Eight Acres of Land Scituate &amp; Lying as y[e] head of Lemmon Vally, Comp[a] Lease Buiting towards y[e] North upon Twenty Eight Acres of y[e] said Mary Hoskisons own Land, towards y[e] to the East upon y[e] Land of Robert Addiss towards y[e] South upon y[e] Land of William Frenches Mary Hos- Orphans, and towards y[e] West upon y[e] Honourable Companys Wast Land. To have and to kison Wid[ow] hold, The above mentioned Thirty Eight Acres of Land to her y[e] said Mary Hoskison her Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes For y[e] Terme &amp; Time of Twenty one years commenc[e]ing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, Upon Condition That she the said Mary Hoskison her Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall always Do &amp; bear true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable Company &amp; their Successors, And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, And yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annual Rent &amp; Sum of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good &amp; Currant money of y[e] said Island, unto y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: &amp; their Successors And that she y[e] said Mary Hoskison her Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes shall &amp; do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty one Years, Leave y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repaire as they are now, and not to alter y[e] said Fences which are y[e] Land marks, &amp; which | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Mary Hoskison. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Mary Hoskison, widow, 38 acres of land at the head of Lemon Valley. The parcel was bounded north by Mary Hoskison's own 28 acres of freehold, east by Robert Addis's land, south by William French's orphans' land, and west by the Company's waste land. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1713, with Mary, her executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Mary and her successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, she was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. She was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to dispose of the lease or her interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. The counterpart was sealed by Gabriel Powell on Mary Hoskison's behalf. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease extends Mary Hoskison's substantial working presence at the head of Lemon Valley by adding 38 acres of leasehold to the 28-acre freehold confirmed in the same-day deed. Her combined holding at the head of Lemon Valley alone now reaches 66 acres, and when added to the 30-acre Horse Pasture Plain freehold and the |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | will occasion the Alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed &amp; No dispose of this Lease or interest in y[e] same without the consent of y[e] Governour &amp; Council for y[e] time being. In witness whereof y[e] said Honourable Company and Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents hav[e] set them Common Seale &amp; their Castle in James Vally this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. &amp; in the Year of our Lord, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And she y[e] said Mary Hoskison to y[e] other p[ar]t hath sett her Hand and Seale. Gabriel Powell Sealed and Delivered in the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | 25-acre High Peak freehold from the same-day confirmation, her total documented estate reaches 121 acres across the island. The figure places her among the most substantial documented holders in the regularised landscape. The lease commencement date of 25 March 1713 places this instrument within the small group of 1713 sitting leases that depart from the standard 25 March 1712 back-dating. The shared pattern with John Goodwin, Margaret Sich, Stephen Lufkin, Thomas Hayes and Margaret Bagley suggests these instruments regularised more recent arrangements rather than long-established occupation. The northern boundary cross-references directly to Mary's own freehold of 28 acres confirmed in the same-day deed, demonstrating the integration of the two instruments into a single working unit at the head of Lemon Valley. The leased ground forms the southern extension of the freehold core, with the combined estate reaching a substantial 66-acre working presence in the valley. The eastern boundary against Robert Addis's land confirms the dense interlocking of holdings in the area, with Addis having received his own confirmation and lease in the same sitting. The reciprocal mapping between Mary's lease and the surrounding Addis holdings demonstrates the systematic boundary clarification across the coordinated regularisation. The southern boundary against William French's orphans' land places French's orphans as a continuing collective tenure unit. The recurring appearance of the French orphans across the 1713 sitting marks them as a recognised institutional fixture within the regularised landscape. The sealing of the counterpart by Gabriel Powell on Mary Hoskison's behalf introduces a critical institutional fact. Powell does not appear as her executor or her formal representative in any earlier 1713 record, yet here he seals her lease counterpart in place of her own signature. Powell had been a substantial land trader from the 1704 dealings onward, with the 1706 £350 0s 0d purchase from Hoskison and the 1711 confirmation of 50.5 acres in Chapel Valley. His sealing of Mary's lease without an explicit executor designation suggests an institutional relationship between the two estates that the documentary record does not openly explain. The reduced witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander applies the standard procedural treatment to the lease, despite the unusual signing arrangement. The Lemon Valley location at the head of the valley places Mary's working presence in the same general area as Frances Goodwin's 89-acre freehold and her 11-acre Saxtons leasehold, and as the John Goodwin family settlement. The cluster of substantial estates at the head of Lemon Valley demonstrates the council's coordinated regularisation of one of the principal cultivation regions of the island. The standard 4 shillings per acre plus 1 shilling duty produces an annual rent of £9 10s 0d for the 38-acre parcel, a substantial sum that places this lease among the more significant rental obligations within the 1713 framework. The annual rent income reflects the scale of Mary's working operation. The disposal restriction continued to operate as the principal institutional control. Mary held a personal interest in the leasehold that could not move to a new occupier without council approval, with the restriction operating particularly strongly given the substantial scale of her combined estate. Speculations The sealing of Mary Hoskison's lease counterpart by Gabriel Powell rather than by Mary herself reveals an institutional arrangement of considerable significance. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | Powell had been the buyer of the £350 0s 0d purchase from George Hoskison in 1706 and a major land trader in the same circles as the Hoskison family. His sealing of Mary's lease on her behalf in 1713 suggests either that he was acting under some formal authority such as attorney or guardian that the present text does not record explicitly, or that he held an underlying financial or contractual interest in her estate that gave him the institutional standing to act on her behalf. The arrangement may parallel the George Carne sealing of Frances Goodwin's lease counterpart on the same day, where Carne acted as her representative ahead of their marriage. The pattern suggests a marriage or formal arrangement between Mary Hoskison and Gabriel Powell may have been imminent, or already concluded but not yet reflected in the institutional record. The documentary regime accordingly captures a moment of transition in the management of a substantial widow's estate, with the actual personal relationship between the parties underpinning the institutional arrangement remaining obscured behind the formal language of the lease. The strategic configuration of Mary's 121-acre documented estate, spread across three regions with the head of Lemon Valley as the principal concentration, reveals an underlying coordination of estate-building that no single transaction record could have captured. The Horse Pasture Plain isolated holding, the under-High-Peak interlocking parcel, and the substantial Lemon Valley concentration each served different functions within a coordinated portfolio. The frontier Horse Pasture Plain provided potentially expansive future development, the High Peak parcel anchored her presence within the interlocking Sandy Bay and Wrangham orphan cluster, and the Lemon Valley concentration created her dominant working centre. The systematic distribution shows decision-making oriented toward long-term portfolio construction rather than opportunistic acquisition. The pattern suggests that the underlying management of the Hoskison estate, whether by Mary herself, by Gabriel Powell acting on her behalf, or by some combination of family and external advisors, operated with sophisticated awareness of the strategic geography of the regularised landscape. The continuing institutional centrality of widow holdings across the 1713 sitting, with Mary Hoskison, Frances Goodwin, Margaret Sich, Dorothy Hayes and Elizabeth Allis all receiving substantial confirmations, reveals an important structural feature of the regularised landscape. The 1711 framework operated at a moment of significant generational mortality among the senior male holders who had built up the working estates of the previous decades, with their widows emerging as the institutional inheritors of the consolidated ground. The Company's recognition of widow holdings through absolute freehold vestings, rather than confining them to life interests or layered settlements, accordingly registered a deliberate institutional choice to accept female ownership of substantial estates rather than to channel the ground forward through male relatives. The arrangement may have served the Company's interest by securing institutional continuity with established holders who knew the local landscape and working arrangements, even where those holders were widows whose long-term ability to manage the ground was uncertain. The pattern shows the documentary regime making practical accommodations to the realities of mortality and gender within the regularised landscape, with the formal records adapting to the actual circumstances of who could hold and work the substantial estates that the Company sought to keep productive. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 197 | 192          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Honour[a]ble United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm unto Gabriel Powel Freeholder, Twenty Comp[a] Deed Acres of Land formerly Jonathan Beals &amp; part of the Lott Land of Anthony Beals to both deceased Lying Scituate under y[e] Main ridge buting &amp; bounding towards y[e] North Gabriel upon y[e] Land of John Long Freeholder, towards y[e] East upon y[e] Lands of y[e] said Jonath[an] Powell Beals Orphans towards y[e] South to y[e] Main Ridge, and towards y[e] West upon the Lands of Benjamin Sich, Which said Twenty Acres is part of Thirty Acres that the said Powel hath in right of his Wife the before named Jonathan Beals Widow, And hath a Just right and Title too as may more fully appear upon Tryall at a Court of Judicature[?] held for that Purpose on Thursday y[e] 11 day of October 1711. And Notice thereof being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold y[e] said Premises to him y[e] said Gabriel Powell his Heires and Assignes for ever. Upon Condition. That he y[e] said Gabriel Powel his Heires and Assignes Do always bear true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In witness whereof y[e] said Honourable Company to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle in said Island this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. in the Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to Gabriel Powell. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to Gabriel Powell, freeholder, 20 acres of land formerly Jonathan Beale's and part of the lot land of the deceased Anthony Beale. The parcel lay under the Main Ridge. It was bounded north by John Long freeholder's land, east by Jonathan Beale's orphans' lands, south by the Main Ridge, and west by Benjamin Sich's lands. The 20 acres formed part of 30 acres that Powell held in right of his wife, the widow of Jonathan Beale. Powell's title rested on a trial at a court of judicature held for that purpose on Thursday 11 October 1711, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. Gabriel Powell, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The deed introduces a critical institutional procedure previously undocumented in the records: a trial at a court of judicature, held on 11 October 1711, that established Powell's title to the ground. The court of judicature represents a formal adjudicative body distinct from the council's consultation procedure, with the judicial mechanism resolving questions of title through trial rather than through the standard beat of drum procedure alone. The reference reveals a layered institutional system in which the 1711 framework operated through both consultative confirmation and judicial determination, with the choice of mechanism depending on the contested or uncontested character of the underlying claim. The chain of title routes the 20 acres through Jonathan Beale (deceased) and ultimately back to Anthony Beale (also deceased) as the original lot holder. Anthony Beale appears in the records as Captain Anthony Beale of the 1682 inquest, the substantial 40-acre allottee at the head of Waterfall Valley and a major foundational holder of the island. The institutional preservation of his name across more than three decades, with the ground now reaching the third or fourth generation through Jonathan Beale's widow's remarriage to Gabriel Powell, demonstrates the persistence of original allotment chains in institutional memory. The acquisition route through right of his wife marks Gabriel Powell as the husband of Jonathan Beale's widow. The mechanism by which she had brought the 30 acres into his hands operated through the standard early modern principle of jure uxoris, which gave a husband the right to manage and benefit from his wife's lands during the marriage. Powell's institutional standing in the 20-acre confirmation accordingly rested not on his own foundational title but on his marital connection to the Beale line, with his confirmation regularising a working occupation that derived from his wife's inheritance. The reference to the 20 acres as part of 30 acres held in right of his wife indicates that the broader Beale widow's estate amounted to 30 acres, of which the present deed confirms only 20. The remaining 10 acres of the wife's |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | portion are not addressed in the present text, suggesting they may have been the subject of a separate confirmation, may have remained in dispute, or may have been settled under a different institutional arrangement. The court of judicature on 11 October 1711 falls within the early operation of the 1711 framework, immediately after the 6 April 1711 consultation that had instituted the new register. The judicial determination of Powell's title represents one of the earliest documented uses of formal adjudication under the new tenure regime, with the council clearly distinguishing between cases where simple beat of drum notice was sufficient and cases where contested or complex inheritance routes required formal trial. The eastern boundary against Jonathan Beale's orphans' lands creates an institutional configuration in which Powell's confirmation through right of his wife sits immediately adjacent to the orphans' own inherited holdings from the same deceased Jonathan Beale. The arrangement reflects the division of the deceased's estate between his widow (whose portion passed through marriage to Powell) and his children (whose portions remained with them as orphans). The configuration shows the operation of early modern inheritance principles in which the widow's share and the children's shares coexisted as adjoining recognised tenures. The southern boundary against the Main Ridge places the parcel at the upper limit of cultivable ground, with the ridge providing the natural topographical edge. The north and west boundaries against John Long freeholder and Benjamin Sich's lands integrate the holding into the regularised cluster of Powell's wider working estate. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel reflects the substantive importance of the confirmation, which not only secured Powell's institutional standing on the 20 acres but also validated the underlying court of judicature determination. Speculations The 11 October 1711 court of judicature reveals the institutional architecture that the 1711 framework had constructed beyond the consultation procedure. The framework had created not just a documentary regime of registers and confirmations but a parallel adjudicative system capable of resolving contested questions of title through formal trial. The court's operation reveals an underlying recognition that beat of drum notice alone could not resolve cases where competing claims, complex chains of title or particular legal questions required adjudication. The system accordingly graded the institutional response to title questions: simple beat of drum for uncontested cases; judicial trial for contested or complex cases, and Company purchase for cases where the council wished to redirect ground between holders. The 1711 framework thus combined administrative regularisation, judicial determination and active market intervention into a single integrated apparatus, with the Company operating simultaneously as register, judge and purchaser according to the institutional needs of each case. The marital acquisition route through right of his wife reveals a particular institutional mechanism by which substantial estates could be transferred between male holders across generational and family lines. The widow of Jonathan Beale brought her 30-acre portion to Powell upon their marriage, with the institutional record now formalising his control of 20 acres of that portion as his own freehold rather than as merely the right of management during her lifetime. The mechanism converted what had been her inheritance from Jonathan into Powell's perpetual title, effectively absorbing her estate into his absolute ownership through the marital connection. The pattern shows how the institutional framework recognised marriage as a route for the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | consolidation of estates across family lines, with the underlying jure uxoris principle permitting Powell to claim freehold of ground that had reached him only through his wife's prior marriage. The configuration reveals the structural vulnerability of widow inheritance under the framework: a widow's portion could be effectively converted into her new husband's absolute property, with her own institutional standing dissolving into his upon remarriage. The contrast with the absolute vestings in Mary Hoskison and Frances Goodwin processed elsewhere in the same sitting becomes significant, as their freeholds in their own names depended on their not having remarried or on their second marriages not yet having generated the same kind of absorption. The geographic placement of the Beale orphans' lands immediately adjacent to Powell's confirmed parcel through right of his wife creates an ongoing institutional tension. The orphans held one portion of the deceased Jonathan Beale's estate while Powell held another portion through his wife. Any decline in the orphans' working capacity, any failure of their lines, or any opportunity for institutional acquisition would have positioned Powell to extend his holding into the orphan ground through his existing position as the adult adjoining male holder connected to the same family through marriage. The Company's institutional treatment of the Beale family settlement accordingly created the conditions for further consolidation under Powell's hand over time, with the orphans' separate tenure offering a future target for absorption either through purchase, marriage of the orphans into the Powell family, or institutional reallocation by the council. The 1711 framework, while regularising the immediate post-mortem distribution of the Beale estate, set up the institutional conditions for its eventual consolidation back into a single working unit under Powell's control, with the documentary regime preserving the appearance of orderly distribution while the underlying institutional dynamics worked toward concentration.  |
| 198 | 193          | Island St Helena. The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Tradeing to the East Indies, Do hereby Demise Comp[a] Lease Lett &amp; Sett unto Isaac Wood Corporal, Two Acres of Land Scituate, in Fishers Valley, to Buting &amp; Bounding towards y[e] North upon y[e] Land of Cap[ta]in Wills Freeholder, towards Isaac Wood the East upon Five Acres of Land, the said Isaac Wood bought of Giles Hayes &amp; towards y[e] South &amp; West upon Thirty Acres of Land belonging &amp; appertaining to y[e] Orphans of Samuel Desfountain. To have and to hold The said Two Acres of Land to him y[e] said Isaac Wood his Heires Administrators &amp; Assignes for y[e] Term &amp; Time of Twenty one Years commenc[e]ing from the Twenty fifth day of March One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Twelve. Upon Condition. That he y[e] said Isaac Wood, his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall always Do &amp; bear true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to | Island of St Helena. Company lease to Isaac Wood. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to Isaac Wood, corporal, 2 acres of land in Fishers Valley. The parcel was bounded north by Captain Wills freeholder's land, east by 5 acres that Wood bought from Giles Hayes, and south and west by 30 acres belonging to the orphans of Samuel Desfountain. The term ran for 21 years from 25 March 1712, with Wood, his executors, administrators and assigns holding the parcel during that period. The lease bound Wood and his successors to maintain allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and to obey the laws of the island. Annual rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, amounting to 5s 0d per annum in current island money, fell due on 25 March each year. At expiration of the 21 years, Wood was to leave the fences in the same repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would also alter the plan annexed to the lease, nor to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|--------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | y[e] said Hon[ble] United Company &amp; their Successors. And shall duly Obey all the Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island. And Yearly pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (Being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annual Rent &amp; sum of Four Shillings p[er] Acre, besides One Shilling duty, being in all Five Shillings p[er] Annu[m] in good &amp; Currant money of y[e] said Island unto y[e] said Hon[ble] United Company &amp; their Successors. And that he y[e] said Isaac Wood his Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Shall and Do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty One Years, Leave y[e] Fences about y[e] said Land in as good repair as they are now, and not to alter y[e] said Fences which are y[e] Land marks, &amp; which will Occasion y[e] Alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed Nor dispose of this Lease or interest in y[e] same, without consent of y[e] Governour and &amp; Council for y[e] time being. In Witness whereof y[e] said Hon[ble] United Comp[a]: and Lords Proprietors to these p[re]sents have set their Common Seale at their Castle in James Vally this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. In y[e] year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. And y[e] said Isaac Wood to y[e] other part hath set his Hand &amp; Seale Isaac WoodSealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] CasonH[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | dispose of the lease or his interest in it without the consent of the governor and council. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Isaac Wood signed and sealed the counterpart. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease records Isaac Wood under a new occupational designation that differs from his earlier appearances. Previous records had identified him as cooper and free planter, particularly in the 5 September 1712 sale where he bought 5 acres from Giles Hayes for £30 0s 0d. The present 1713 lease styles him as corporal, indicating a military rank that he held alongside or in place of his civilian classifications. The variation reveals Wood as a holder with multiple identities operating simultaneously, with the institutional record selecting different designations across different instruments. The eastern boundary against the 5 acres Wood bought from Giles Hayes cross-references the September 1712 sale directly. The configuration places Wood's new 2-acre leasehold adjoining his earlier private purchase, with the regularisation extending his combined working position to 7 acres in Fishers Valley when freehold purchase and leasehold are taken together. The northern boundary against Captain Wills freeholder's land confirms Wills as a settled boundary holder of substantial standing across multiple Fishers Valley instruments. The captain designation places him among the senior officers of the cluster. The southern and western boundaries against 30 acres belonging to the orphans of Samuel Desfountain create reciprocal mapping with the Desfountain children's same-day confirmation. The earlier interpretive uncertainty about whether the deceased father's name was James or Samuel Desfountain receives further confirmation here as Samuel, the same naming as in the Edwards lease and the Sutton Isaac senior confirmation of the same sitting. The institutional record consistently uses Samuel for the deceased father across multiple instruments, with the James appearing in the Desfountain confirmation and lease as an isolated variant rather than the correct identification. The standard 25 March 1712 commencement date places the lease within the main pattern of the 1713 sitting, indicating regularisation of pre-existing occupation rather than fresh allocation. Wood had perhaps been working the 2 acres for some time before the formal lease, with the 1711 framework now formalising the arrangement. Wood's signature in his own hand places him among the lettered holders, consistent with his earlier appearances in the records. The literate signature reflects his standing as both an artisan (cooper) and a Company officer (corporal) of sufficient education to participate directly in the documentary regime. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel applied uniformly to small-acre leases just as to substantial confirmations. The placement of the modest 2-acre leasehold adjoining the 5-acre purchase from Giles Hayes shows the typical pattern of artisanal holders building up working ground through multiple small acquisitions rather than through single substantial transactions. Wood's accumulation of land through purchase, lease and informal connections reflects a deliberate strategy of incremental expansion. The Fishers Valley location places Wood within the same cluster as the Desfountain orphans, Sutton Isaac senior, James Draper, Captain Wills, Dorothy Hayes and Simon Whaley, all of whom received same-day instruments. The cluster represents the council's |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | systematic regularisation of the entire valley's working population within the coordinated 1713 sitting. Speculations The variant designation of Isaac Wood as corporal in the present lease, against his earlier identifications as cooper and free planter, may reveal the multilayered character of identity within the 1711 framework. The same individual could simultaneously hold a military rank in the garrison, an artisanal occupation that supported the island's working life, and a status as free planter that connected him to the settled civilian community. The institutional record's selection of one designation over another in any particular instrument perhaps reflected the specific role the holder was performing in relation to the transaction rather than any fixed primary identity. In the present case, the corporal designation may have been selected because the lease involved the Company directly as lessor, with the military rank emphasising Wood's institutional connection to the Company rather than his independent artisanal or civilian standing. The pattern shows the documentary regime adapting its identifications to suit the institutional context of each transaction, with holders carrying multiple simultaneous identities that the records selected from according to administrative purpose. The institutional decision to issue Isaac Wood a tiny 2-acre lease wedged between his existing 5-acre purchase and the Desfountain orphan estate reveals the council's deliberate use of small parcels to bind artisan-soldiers into the documented landscape at multiple points of attachment. Wood now held documented ground through three institutional routes simultaneously: as freehold purchaser from Giles Hayes, as Company leaseholder of the present 2 acres, and through his earlier appearance as boundary holder in the William Alexander 1717 lease. The cumulative effect was to lock him into the regularised system through multiple documentary connections, with each instrument generating renewed institutional obligation, recognition and dependence. The pattern suggests the council valued the integration of useful artisans and lower-ranking military personnel into the documented community above any economic significance of the individual transactions. The institutional regime's apparently uniform treatment of holders thus concealed an underlying strategy of binding indispensable functional categories of the working population into the framework through whatever small instruments could secure their continued participation. The systematic adjacency of Isaac Wood's small landholdings to the Desfountain orphans' estate raises the question of whether his presence served a particular institutional function in relation to the orphan ground. The Desfountain children held a substantial 30-acre estate that required adult management during their minority, with their formal executors Matthew Bazett and James Gregory holding the leasehold portion on their behalf. The adjacent placement of an experienced artisan and military officer of literate standing perhaps provided informal day-to-day oversight of the orphan ground at the working level, with Wood's continued presence on the immediately adjoining parcels serving as a practical safeguard for the orphans' interests. The institutional arrangement would have used the artisan's everyday working relationship with the surrounding ground as an informal supervisory mechanism, complementing the formal executor structure with practical neighbourly vigilance. The framework accordingly used the configuration of adjoining holdings not merely as a documentary geography of independent estates but as an active institutional design in which the placement of certain holders next to certain others created mutual supervision and informal protection that the formal records did not need to describe. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 199 | 194          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Hon<sup>ble</sup> United Comp<sup>a</sup>: of Merch<sup>an</sup>ts of England Trading to y<sup>e</sup> East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto John Long Freeholder, For<sup>ty</sup>? Acres of Land Twenty Acres whereof being formerly Comp<sup>a</sup> Deed the Allotment of Francis Moor dec<sup>ease</sup>d, Buting &amp; Bounding towards y<sup>e</sup> North upon to the Land of Benj<sup>am</sup>i<sup>n</sup> Sich towards y<sup>e</sup> East upon y<sup>e</sup> Land of Jonathan Beals Children Jn<sup>o</sup> Long towards y<sup>e</sup> South upon y<sup>e</sup> Land of Gabriel Powel and towards y<sup>e</sup> West upon the Land of James Rider, As also y<sup>e</sup> other Twenty Acres being Gumwood Land Scituate in a Branch of Chapple Vally being y<sup>e</sup> Lott Lands of one James Estings dec<sup>ease</sup>d, Buting and bounding towards y<sup>e</sup> North-East &amp; West upon y<sup>e</sup> Hon<sup>ble</sup> Comp<sup>a</sup>: Wast Land &amp; towards the South upon y<sup>e</sup> before named James Riders Gumwood Land. Which said Forty Acres of Land He y<sup>e</sup> said John Long Hath a Just Right &amp; Title too, As may more fully appear Upon Examination in a Consultation of the Third &amp; A. day of March &amp; A. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any p<sup>er</sup>son to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limmitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said Premises to him John Long his Heires &amp; Assignes for ever. Upon Condition. That he y<sup>e</sup> said John Long his Heires &amp; Assignes Shall &amp; Do bear always true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y<sup>e</sup> said Hon<sup>ble</sup> Comp<sup>a</sup>: &amp; their Successors and shall duly Obey all y<sup>e</sup> Laws &amp; Constitutions of y<sup>e</sup> said Island, In witness whereof the said Hon<sup>ble</sup> Comp<sup>a</sup> to these p<sup>re</sup>sents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth A. day of August. in y<sup>e</sup> Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. &amp; A. &amp; A. Sealed and Delivered In the P<sup>re</sup>sence of: Tho<sup>s</sup> Cason H<sup>i</sup>? Francis Jn<sup>o</sup> Alexander | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to John Long. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to John Long, freeholder, 40 acres of land in two parcels. The first parcel of 20 acres had formerly been the allotment of the deceased Francis Moor. It was bounded north by Benjamin Sich's land, east by Jonathan Beale's children's land, south by Gabriel Powell's land, and west by James Rider's land. The second parcel of 20 acres of gumwood land in a branch of Chapel Valley had been the lot land of the deceased James Estings. It was bounded north, east and west by the Company's waste land, and south by James Rider's gumwood land. Long's title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. John Long, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcels for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island. The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The 40-acre confirmation regularises John Long's working presence across two parcels with distinct historical origins. The first parcel had been the original allotment of the deceased Francis Moor, while the second had been the lot land of the deceased James Estings. The dual chain of title shows Long accumulating his estate through the reversion of two separate foundational allotments, both of which had passed through their original holders' deaths before reaching him. Francis Moor introduces a new individual into the documented chain. The reference to his ground as his allotment indicates an original foundational holding, with Moor having been one of the early allottees of the island whose ground reverted on his death. The institutional preservation of his name in the chain of title across the years to 1713 demonstrates the long memory of original allocation that the framework relied upon. James Estings represents another deceased original holder, with his lot land in a branch of Chapel Valley having reverted before reaching Long. The Estings name does not appear elsewhere in the records, suggesting either a previously undocumented original allottee or a variant spelling of a more familiar name such as James Easthope or James Easton. The first parcel sits within a particularly dense interlocking cluster of holders confirmed in the same sitting. Benjamin Sich to the north, Jonathan Beale's children to the east, Gabriel Powell to the south, and James Rider to the west all received same-day or near-period regularisations. The reciprocal mapping shows Long's parcel as a defined enclave within the wider regularised landscape, with each boundary attested through the contemporaneous confirmations of the neighbouring estates. The eastern boundary against Jonathan Beale's children's land creates a particularly significant institutional configuration. Gabriel Powell's same-day confirmation of |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | 20 acres formerly Jonathan Beale's had identified the orphans of the same Jonathan Beale as the eastern boundary of Powell's parcel. The present Long confirmation places his ground immediately adjoining the Beale children's portion from a different direction. The configuration shows the deceased Jonathan Beale's children's collective holding bordered on one side by Powell, who held through marriage to their widowed mother, and on another side by Long, who held the Francis Moor allotment. The southern boundary of the first parcel against Gabriel Powell's land creates further reciprocal mapping with Powell's same-day confirmation. The two confirmations attest each other's bounds across the coordinated session. The second parcel of gumwood land in a branch of Chapel Valley places Long with a second working presence in a different region from his first parcel. The gumwood classification fixes the parcel at the lower or middle elevation where gumwood vegetation predominated, distinguishing it from the cabbage tree classification used elsewhere in the sitting. The southern boundary of the second parcel against James Rider's gumwood land creates a distinctive cross-reference to a portion of Rider's estate not separately documented in the present text. The reference confirms that Rider held substantial ground across both Chapel Valley and the other regions where his name appears as boundary throughout the 1713 sitting. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The full panel marks the deed as receiving substantial procedural weight. John Long's appearance across the earlier records as a witness and as a boundary holder identifies him as a settled established member of the regularised cluster. He had witnessed the Tomps-Allis sale of 1689, the Harding-French sale of 1691, the Cleve-Greentree sale of 1715, and other instruments stretching across decades. The present 1713 confirmation regularises his own substantial working estate against the background of his long-standing institutional role as witness and trusted local figure. Speculations The institutional decision to consolidate the Francis Moor and James Estings allotments into a single confirmation in favour of John Long reveals the Company's preference for active accumulation by trusted established holders over the dispersed inheritance of original allotments through family lines. Both Moor and Estings had been foundational allottees of the island, but their estates had not descended to family heirs within their own lines, instead reaching Long through whatever routes of purchase, reversion or institutional reallocation the records do not explicitly recite. The pattern shows the 1711 framework using the inheritance question to redirect foundational allotments toward holders the council considered most capable of sustained productive working occupation. Long's recurring role as witness and boundary holder across decades had perhaps earned him preferential treatment in the redistribution of available ground, with the Company favouring those whose presence in the institutional record demonstrated their reliability and integration. The configuration reveals how the framework's apparent neutrality concealed an underlying merit-based allocation system that rewarded long-standing participation in the documentary regime with access to reverted ground from less successful or less integrated original allottees. The juxtaposition of John Long's confirmation immediately adjacent to both Gabriel Powell's right-of-his-wife confirmation and Jonathan Beale's children's estate creates a documentary geography that reveals the institutional engineering of the area around the deceased |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Jonathan Beale's holdings. Three parties now held substantial ground adjacent to the Beale children: Powell to the west through marriage to their mother, Long to the south of Powell's parcel through purchase of the Moor allotment, and Benjamin Sich to the north through unrecorded route. The placement of three substantial adult holders directly around the orphan estate created a documentary perimeter that limited the children's working autonomy while simultaneously providing them with adult supervision through neighbouring institutional presences. The pattern suggests the council had deliberately structured the surrounding holdings to contain and watch over the orphan estate, with each adjoining holder bound to his own confirmation while collectively providing the institutional cordon around the vulnerable children's inheritance. The framework accordingly used the geometry of adjoining tenures as an instrument of indirect institutional control over orphan estates, with the formal independence of each holder concealing the systematic effect of their collective positioning. The recurring presence of James Rider as boundary holder against multiple Long parcels, alongside his appearances as boundary against Margaret Sich's confirmations, the Beale orphans' lands, and other major estates of the day, reveals Rider as a particularly important documentary geographical reference point in the regularised landscape. His estate evidently sprawled across both Chapel Valley regions and other areas, with portions of his ground forming boundaries to many of the day's principal confirmations. Yet the records of the 1713 sitting examined do not preserve a substantive Rider confirmation comparable to those of Long, Powell or Sich. The pattern suggests Rider may have died before the present sitting, with the institutional record using his name as a working byname for ground that had passed to his heirs but continued to be identified by the deceased father's name. Alternatively, his confirmation may simply not have been preserved in the available extract while the surrounding deeds that referenced his bounds did survive. Either way, the institutional landscape constructed around references to Rider's ground operated as a documentary fiction in which a deceased or absent holder continued to define the geography of his surviving neighbours' confirmations, with the framework relying on the durability of the working byname even where the underlying holder no longer participated in the regularised system.  |
| 200 | 195          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merch[an]ts of England Tradeing to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm Comp[a] Deed unto William Seale Freeholder Twenty Acres of Land Scituate nigh y[e] Head of Sharks to Vally being y[e] Son of his dec[ease]d Father Beer Seale, Buiting &amp; Bounding towards the W[m] Seale North upon y[e] Land of Jane Mudge Widow, towards y[e] East upon y[e] Land of Mathy Bazett, towards y[e] West upon y[e] Land of John Knipe, and towards y[e] South upon y[e] Honour[able] Companys Wast Land, Which said Twenty Acres of Land he y[e] said William Seale hath a Just Right &amp; Title too, As may more largely appear, Upon Examination in a Consideration of the Third &amp; A. day of March. One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for | Island of St Helena. Deed from the Company to William Seale. The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to William Seale, freeholder, son of his deceased father Beer Seale, 20 acres of land near the head of Sharks Valley. The parcel was bounded north by Jane Mudge widow's land, east by Matthew Bazett's land, west by John Knipe's land, and south by the Company's waste land. Seale's title rested on a consultation of 3 March 1714, with public notice given by beat of drum on a fixed day for any rival to come forward, none doing so. William Seale, his heirs and assigns were to hold the parcel for ever, on condition of allegiance to Queen Anne and her successors and to the Company, and obedience to the laws of the island.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | any P[er]son to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limmitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said Premises to him y[e] said William Seale his Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition. That he the said William his Heires &amp; Assignes, Shall always do and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors. And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In Witness whereof the said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: to these Presents have sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth &amp; A. day of August. in y[e] Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | The Company affixed its common seal at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Witnessed by Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The confirmation introduces William Seale as the son and heir of the deceased Beer Seale, regularising his inherited holding through paternal succession. The phrasing son of his deceased father Beer Seale establishes the chain of title through a single generation of male inheritance, with William taking the parcel that had originally been held in his father's name. The pattern matches other son-and-heir confirmations of the same sitting, including those of William Charles, Benjamin Greentree and James Reder. The name Beer Seale represents a previously undocumented holder, perhaps a member of the wider Seale family that had included Benjamin Seale, the father-in-law of Praise Pledger from the 1694 Sharks Valley gift. The Sharks Valley location of the present confirmation places William Seale's inherited estate in the same general area as the earlier Seale-Pledger ground, suggesting a connection between the two branches of the family. The northern boundary against Jane Mudge widow's land introduces another new individual into the documented landscape. Jane Mudge as widow may be connected to the Jonathan Mudge of earlier records, who had been the seller of 10 acres at the head of Deep Valley to Matthew Bazett. The Mudge name persists across the records but the present reference identifies a specific widow holder previously unrecorded in the documented sitting. The eastern boundary against Matthew Bazett's land connects to Bazett's substantial documented presence across the records, including his 23 June 1711 confirmation of 25 acres in two parcels, his earlier private accumulations of 10 acres from Dweight (1694), 5 acres from Higham (1706), and 10 acres from Mudge. The present Seale boundary reference confirms Bazett's continued working presence in or near Sharks Valley alongside his other documented holdings. The western boundary against John Knipe's land connects to Knipe's earlier appearance as the 1687 Rhodes plantation lease's southern boundary at the head of Sharks Valley, and to his 4 August 1713 leasehold confirmation of 4 acres at the bottom of Pleasant Valley. The configuration shows Knipe maintaining his Sharks Valley presence across more than 25 years of records, with his ground continuing to form a recognised boundary alongside his more recent Pleasant Valley extension. The southern boundary against the Company's waste land places the parcel at the upper edge of regularised settlement in Sharks Valley. The configuration shows the foundational Seale estate as a defined enclave within the developed cluster of family holdings around the head of the valley. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander matches the full witnessing complement used across the principal instruments of the day. The consultation date of 3 March 1714 in modern reckoning, which falls in old calendar 1713, matches the consultation date supporting the Draper, Hayes, Sutton Isaac senior, Robert Addis, James Greentree, John Goodwin, Mary Hoskison, Long and other 4 August 1713 confirmations. The shared consultation date confirms the systematic batch processing of multiple holdings within a single council review. The absence of any same-day paired leasehold marks Seale as one of the holders whose 1711 regularisation took the form of a freehold-only treatment. Speculations The pairing of an inherited Sharks Valley freehold with the recurring presence of Matthew Bazett as eastern boundary holder reveals an institutional dynamic worth |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | examining. Bazett operated as the council's principal surveyor and as fifth in council during the 1711 framework, with his administrative position giving him unique access to information about available ground, surveying decisions and the institutional reallocation of reverted holdings. The placement of his confirmed estate immediately against William Seale's inherited ground may have positioned him to monitor or eventually acquire portions of the Seale estate, particularly if any subsequent failure of the male line or family difficulty created opportunities for institutional acquisition. The institutional design of the regularised landscape thus systematically placed council members and their personal interests adjacent to vulnerable family estates inherited by younger or less established heirs. The pattern shows the framework not as a neutral administrative apparatus but as one that systematically advantaged council members through the geography of confirmed estates, with the Bazett-Seale boundary representing one example of a broader phenomenon in which institutional position translated into strategic positioning within the regularised landscape. The institutional preservation of Beer Seale's unusual first name through the chain of title to William reveals the framework's commitment to documenting the foundational moment of each estate's origin within the recognised allotment system. Beer is not a common first name in the early modern English settler population, and its preservation in the institutional record creates a documentary signature that uniquely identified the parcel and the inheritance route. Such distinctive first names served the framework's needs by providing unambiguous identification of original allottees in cases where surnames alone might have proved insufficient. The record's careful preservation of unusual names accordingly performed an institutional function beyond mere historical curiosity, with each distinctive identifier helping to fix the legal chain of title against any future challenge or dispute. The pattern reveals how the 1711 framework relied on the durability of distinctive personal names within its documentary architecture, with each unusual identifier strengthening the institutional record's capacity to anchor titles against ambiguity. The reference to Jane Mudge widow as the northern boundary holder, set against the absence of any earlier documented appearance for her in the regularised cluster, suggests another instance of the documentary regime's selective visibility. The Mudge family had been documented through Jonathan Mudge as a deceased Sharks Valley holder, but the female line of the family appears only at the moment when an adjoining estate's confirmation captured Jane's working presence as a boundary. The pattern shows widow holdings becoming institutionally visible primarily through the documentary needs of male holders' confirmations rather than through any independent regularisation of the widow's own interests. The framework accordingly captured female estates principally as boundary references serving male holders' titles, with the widow's institutional standing established as a side effect of her neighbour's confirmation rather than through her own direct participation in the registration process. The result was a documentary landscape in which female holders appeared sporadically as the documentary needs of others required, with their actual working presence and institutional position systematically under-recorded by the framework's apparent comprehensiveness. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 201 | 196          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Confirm Comp[a] Deed unto Samuel Jesey of Freeholder, Ten Acres of Land, Scituate under the Two Gun Ridge, to lately purchased of Jonathan Doveton, Buiting and Bounding towards the North Sam[ue]l Jesey upon the Land of Grace Coulson towards the East upon the Honourable Comp[an]ys Hutts Pasture next to the said Two Gun Ridge, and towards the South and West upon the Land of the said Jonathan Dovetons p[re]sently Leo Hunts, Which said Ten Acres of Land he the said Samuel Jesey hath a Just Right and Title too, As may more fully appear upon Examination in a Consultation of the Seventeenth A. day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any P[er]son to make their Claim on a certain day therein Limmitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said premises to him the said Sam[ue]l Jessey his Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition That he the said Sam[ue]l Jessey his Heires &amp; Assignes Do and shall always bear true, Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, &amp; In Witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these p[re]sents have Set their Common Seale at their Castle on the said Island this Fourth A. A. day of August. in the Year of our Lord. One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In the P[re]sence of: Tho[s] CasonH[?] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to Samuel Jesey, freeholder, ten acres of land lying under the Two Gun Ridge, lately bought from Jonathan Doveton. The parcel was bounded northwards by the land of Grace Coulson, eastwards by the Honourable Company's hut pasture next to the Two Gun Ridge, and southwards and westwards by the land of Jonathan Doveton, formerly Leo Hunt's. Jesey's right and title to the ten acres rested on examination in a consultation of 17 March 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to Jesey, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas Cason, H[?] Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The phrase Lords Proprietors marks the East India Company's status as the institutional landlord of St Helena, holding the island under royal charter and granting tenure to settlers as a sub-feudal superior rather than as a mere commercial owner. The beat of drum procedure operated as the standard public notice mechanism under the 1711 framework for confirming title. Silence on the appointed day extinguished any rival claim, shifting onto the would-be claimant the burden of asserting a competing interest. The Company used this device to convert long working possession into documented freehold without the cost of formal litigation. The conditional clause requiring true faith and allegiance to the Crown and to the Company, and obedience to island laws, embedded political and institutional loyalty as a continuing rent on the land. The freehold was perpetual in form but contingent in substance, with forfeiture available as a sanction against disloyalty or disorder. The recital that the ten acres had been lately bought from Jonathan Doveton, with the southern and western bounds still described as Doveton's land formerly Leo Hunt's, shows how the institutional record preserved chains of prior tenure within boundary descriptions. Leo Hunt is probably the Leonard Hunt whose thirty acres the Company had earlier acquired and onward-sold to Jonathan Doveton in the 4 August 1713 sitting, the parcel now reaching Samuel Jesey through Doveton as the intermediate freeholder. The Two Gun Ridge appears as a working byname carrying a military topographical marker into civilian land description. Grace Coulson, the widow confirmed in her own substantial estate on 23 June 1711, supplies the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | northern boundary and anchors the parcel within the wider Coulson cluster. The consultation date of 17 March 1713 falls under the old calendar reckoning. Read forward, the hearing took place in March 1714, with the deed sealed at the Castle on 4 August 1713 in the same regnal and institutional sequence as the major coordinated sitting of that date. The witness panel of Thomas Cason, Henry Francis and John Alexander reproduces the standard literate trio attending the 4 August 1713 sitting, with the register Alexander attesting alongside the lieutenant and the free planter who recur across nearly every instrument of that day. Speculations The two-stage acquisition route, with Jesey first buying the ten acres privately from Doveton and then securing Company confirmation, perhaps reflects a deliberate sequencing that used the 1711 framework to convert a recent private purchase into documented freehold under the perpetual tenure formula. The private sale moved the parcel into Jesey's hands; the Company deed gave him the institutional title and the protection of the beat of drum extinguishment. The timing of the 17 March 1713 (old style) consultation, falling within the cluster of confirmations supporting the 4 August 1713 sitting, suggests that Jesey's hearing was treated as one of the late-arriving items processed alongside the major coordinated session rather than as a separate event. The Company used the sitting to clear residual confirmations that depended on consultations held earlier in the same administrative cycle.  |
| 202 | 197          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Comp[a] Deed Indies, Do hereby Confirm unto Ripin Wills Freeholder, Fifty Acres of Land. Thirty of A. to whereof being the Lott Land of one William Foxx, Twenty Acres more being the Lott Lands of Ripin Wills of Black Oliver, and the other Tenth [Acres?] which compleats the whole Fifty Acres was y[e] Lott Land of Thomas Frankham since purchased of y[e] said Ripin Wills of James Easthopes deceased Scituate in or nigh y[e] Head of Fishers Vally, &amp; is adjoining y[e] other Forty A. Acres lying in another branch of y[e] said Vally Buiting &amp; Bounding towards the North on y[e] Honourable Company Hutts Plantation towards y[e] East upon y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[as] Land held by Thomas Hayse Sould[ie]r Towards y[e] South, upon y[e] Land of Sam[uel] Desfountains Children, &amp; towards y[e] West upon y[e] Lands of John Alexander &amp; Samuel Jessey. Which said Fifty Acres of Land he y[e] said Ripin Wills Hath a Just Right &amp; Title too as may more largely appear upon examination in a Consultation of the Third &amp; A. day of February One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their Claim on a day certain therein Limmitted, But none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said premises | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to Ripin Wills, freeholder, fifty acres of land in three parcels. Thirty acres had formerly been the lot land of William Foxx. A further twenty acres were the lot lands of Ripin Wills of Black Oliver. The remaining ten acres, completing the fifty, had been the lot land of Thomas Frankham, since bought by Ripin Wills from the deceased James Easthopes. The land lay in or near the head of Fishers Valley and adjoined Wills's other forty acres in another branch of the valley. The fifty acres were bounded northwards by the Honourable Company's hut plantation, eastwards by Company land held by Thomas Hayse, soldier, southwards by the land of Samuel Desfountain's children, and westwards by the lands of John Alexander and Samuel Jessey. Wills's right and title to the fifty acres rested on examination in a consultation of 3 February 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to Wills, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | to him the said Ripin Wills his Heires &amp; Assignes for ever, Upon Condition. That he the said Ripin Wills his Heires &amp; Assignes Do bear always true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a] and their Successors and shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island In Witness whereof y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a] to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this Fourth &amp; A. A. day of August. in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In y[e] P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[?] Francis | seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas Cason and H[...] Francis. Interpretations The fifty-acre confirmation drew together three separate parcels under a single freehold instrument, with the lot lands of William Foxx, the lot lands of Ripin Wills of Black Oliver and the former Thomas Frankham parcel (bought from the deceased James Easthopes) consolidated within one boundary line. The mechanism allowed the Company to regularise multiple earlier holdings of distinct provenance in a single perpetual title, simplifying later transfer and inheritance. The recital of three former holders within the confirmation preserved chains of prior tenure as institutional memory. William Foxx connects to the wider Fox family already documented in the Fishers Valley and Sarahs Valley records, with William Fox the elder and William Fox the younger among the original 1682 allottees. Thomas Frankham is probably a scribal rendering of Thomas Francombe, the 1682 inquest allottee in Sandy Bay adjoining Owen Ockwin. James Easthopes connects to the James Easthope or Eastop of the 1687 Fisher Valley sale to John Coole and to the later James Reder confirmation under variant rendering, his death now fixed before 4 August 1713. Ripin Wills of Black Oliver supplies a working byname for one of the two Ripin Wills figures, distinguishing him from the Ripin (or Ripon) Wells documented in earlier records as buyer of the Casthope parcel for fifty pounds in 1694 and of the Michael Morris house at the upper end of St James Valley in 1701. The Black Oliver designation perhaps preserves a connection with the slave Oliver named in the 1703 Powell-Greentree sale, with the parcel taking its name from the labour history of the ground. Samuel Desfountain's children appear as southern boundary holders, confirming the regularised tenure of the Desfountain orphans (John, Joseph, Martha and Mary) under their late father's estate. John Alexander and Samuel Jessey as western neighbours place Wills's consolidated estate within the eastern Fishers Valley cluster anchored by Alexander's long-standing accumulation and the same Samuel Jessey confirmed in his own ten acres under the Two Gun Ridge. Thomas Hayse, soldier, holding Company land on the east, appears here with the soldier designation that recurs in the 4 August 1713 Sutton Isaac junior lease, against the carrier designation in his own same-day instrument. The institutional record adapted his classification to the specific transaction. The consultation date of 3 February 1713 falls under the old calendar reckoning, read forward to February 1714, with the deed sealed at the Castle on 4 August 1713 in the same administrative cycle as the wider sitting of that date. The reduced witness panel of Thomas Cason and Henry Francis, without John Alexander as register, places this instrument among the closing items of the 4 August 1713 sitting where Alexander had withdrawn in the procedural pattern of late-afternoon retirement. Speculations The 1714 consultation date (read forward from 3 February 1713 old style) suggests that Wills's hearing was held only six months before the deed sealing, indicating a recent regularisation rather than confirmation of long-established occupation. The combination of three distinct lot lands within a single boundary line perhaps reflects an opportunity Wills had taken to assemble adjoining parcels at the head of Fishers Valley and to secure them under one perpetual title at the moment the Company was processing the 4 August 1713 sitting. The forty acres of adjoining Wills land in another branch of the valley, named in the boundary description |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | but not included in the confirmation, suggests a deliberate decision to regularise only part of his holding under the 1711 framework. The adjoining forty acres perhaps remained under earlier Company leasehold or under documented freehold from a separate prior instrument, with Wills selectively converting the newly assembled fifty acres while leaving the established forty under their original tenure.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 203 | 198          | Island St Helena. The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ble] United Company of Merch[an]ts of England Tradeing to the East Indies Do Hereby Comp[a] Deed Confirm unto John Thomas and Mary Sons &amp; Daughters of Thomas Earle dec[ease]d &amp; Rel[ic]t Beck- to Acres of Land being formerly Andrew Wilsons dec[ease]d Scituate Lying &amp; being in Sandy Bay Earles Comp[a] Buiting &amp; Bounding towards y[e] North upon y[e] Main Ridge &amp; John Bagleys Land, towards the East upon y[e] Land of Charles Steward, towards y[e] South &amp; A. &amp; West upon Nineteen Acres of Land y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle Hires of y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: Which they y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle hath a Just Right &amp; Title too, as may appear more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of y[e] Seventeenth &amp; A. day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, and Notice being given by beat of Drum for any p[er]son to make their claim on a certain day therein Limitted, but none appearing or any Objection made. To have and to hold The said Premises to them y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle their &amp; every of their Heires &amp; Assignes for ever Upon Condition. That they y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle their &amp; every of their Heires &amp; Assignes Do bear always true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to y[e] said Hon[ble] Comp[a]: &amp; their Successors And shall duly Obey all y[e] Laws &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, In Witness whereof y[e] said Honourable United Company an[d] Lords proprietors to these Presents have sett their Common Seale at their Castle on the said Island this Fourth A. A. day of August. in y[e] year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen. Sealed and Delivered In y[e] P[re]sence of: Tho[s] Cason H[p] Francis Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to John, Thomas and Mary Earle, sons and daughter of the deceased Thomas Earle and his relict Beck[...], two acres of land formerly belonging to the deceased Andrew Wilson. The parcel lay in Sandy Bay and was bounded northwards by the Main Ridge and John Bagley's land, eastwards by the land of Charles Steward, and southwards and westwards by nineteen acres of land that the Earle children hired from the Honourable Company. Their right and title to the two acres rested on examination in a consultation of 17 March 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to John, Thomas and Mary Earle, their heirs and assigns severally for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas Cason, H[...], Francis and John Alexander. Interpretations The confirmation vested two acres directly in three named Earle children, John, Thomas and Mary, jointly and severally, without the intermediate trusteeship that often accompanied orphan estates. Direct vesting suggests the children had progressed in age sufficiently to hold property in their own names, following the pattern of the Maxwell orphans confirmed earlier in the 4 August 1713 sitting. The their and every of their Heires and Assignes formula preserved flexibility for later partition while protecting against external claims. Thomas Earle, deceased, had previously appeared in the records as the former husband of Martha Fox, with the goods and chattels of his children by Martha included in the August 1709 Fox mortgage to Charles Steward and Orlando Bagley. He also reappeared as the former owner of the Chapel Valley dwelling that Thomas Toster sold to William Hartwell in April 1709. His relict here, named partially as Beck[...], with the manuscript unclear at that point, is a previously undocumented widow distinct from Martha Fox, raising the possibility that Earle had two marriages or that the manuscript records a name fragment of his only known widow. The two-acre freehold sat enclosed on the south and west by nineteen acres that the Earle children hired from the Company under separate leasehold. The configuration |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | combined a perpetual core with a leasehold extension, giving the children a documented base within a larger working unit they did not own outright. The arrangement parallels other 1713 estates where freehold confirmation was paired with adjoining leasehold under the 1711 framework. The two acres had formerly belonged to the deceased Andrew Wilson, the same free planter who received a twenty-acre Company grant on 16 August 1684. His estate had been fragmenting across multiple successor holders, with eighteen acres of his Sandy Bay ground reaching Joseph and Martha Fox by 1709 and now two more acres reaching the Earle children. The pattern reveals the Wilson grant subdivided in pieces across the deaths and inheritances of two generations. John Bagley's northern boundary on the Main Ridge places his holdings beside the Earle parcel, extending his recorded position beyond the head of Chapel Valley. Charles Steward's eastern boundary continues his wrap-around presence across the Sandy Bay confirmations of the 4 August 1713 sitting. The consultation date of 17 March 1713 falls under the old calendar reckoning, read forward to March 1714. The two acres were processed in the same consultation cycle that produced Samuel Jesey's confirmation earlier in the present record. Speculations The vesting of the two-acre freehold directly in three named children, rather than in their mother as widow with the heirs as joint vestees, suggests that Beck[...] Earle was perhaps not the mother of John, Thomas and Mary, but a later wife of Thomas Earle whose interest the Company did not extend into the freehold. The earlier Fox mortgage of August 1709 had recognised the goods of the children of late Thomas Earle as held during Martha Fox's natural life only, indicating that the children's interest in their father's estate was preserved against their mother's remarriage. The 1713 confirmation routed the small freehold around the widow to the children directly, perhaps continuing the same protective pattern. The pairing of two acres of freehold with nineteen acres of adjoining leasehold may reflect a deliberate institutional choice to give the Earle children a perpetual foothold of recognised tenure while keeping the bulk of their working estate under the Company's reversionary control. Such a structure secured the children's identity as Sandy Bay holders without committing the Company to perpetual alienation of the larger parcel, leaving the leasehold open to renegotiation or non-renewal once the children reached majority.  |
| 204 | 199          | Island St Helena 199 The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[...] United Comp[any] of Merch[ants] of England Trading to the East Indies, Do hereby Demisse [Comp[any]s Lease] Lett &amp; Sett unto John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle Sons &amp; Daughter of Thomas Earle dec[eased] [to] Nineteen Acres of Land Scituate Lying &amp; being in Rupert's Bay under the Maine Ridge [Earles Cop[ies]] butting towards y[e] North upon y[e] Land of Francis Wrangh[a]m towards y[e] East upon their own Eighteen Acres of Land towards y[e] West upon y[e] Land of | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to John, Thomas and Mary Earle, sons and daughter of the deceased Thomas Earle, nineteen acres of land in Rupert's Bay under the Main Ridge. The parcel was bounded northwards by the land of Francis Wrangham, eastwards by the Earle children's own eighteen acres, westwards by the land of John Cole, and southwards by land in the tenure and occupation of John Robinson. The lease ran for twenty-one years from 25                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------|-----------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | John Cole, and towards the South upon y[e] Land in [...]enure &amp; Occupation of John Robinson, To have and to hold The said Nineteen Acres of Land to them y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle their or any of their Executors Administrators and Assignes, for y[e] Terme &amp; Time of Twenty one Years commencing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and thirteen, Upon Condition, That they y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle their own either of their Executors Administrators and Assignees shall always Do, &amp; beare true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queene Anne her Heires &amp; Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, and shall duly obey all y[e] Lawes &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, The Yearly Pay or y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annuall Rent &amp; Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides any Lading duty being usually five Shillings per Anr[um] in good &amp; Curr[en]t money of the said Island, unto y[e] said Hon[our]able Comp[any] and their Successors, And that they y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle their or any of their Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes shall and do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Term of Twenty one Years Leave y[e] fences about y[e] said Land in as good repair as they are now, and not to alter y[e] Fences which are y[e] Land marks and which will occasion y[e] Alteration of y[e] Plott thereunto Annexed, nor dispose of this Lease or Interest in y[e] same without consent of y[e] Governour &amp; Councell for y[e] time being. We for Witness whereof y[e] said Honourable United Company y[e] Lords Proprietors to these Pres[en]ts have set their comm[on] Seale at their Castle in James Valley this fourth [...] day of [...]nu[a]ry in y[e] Year of o[u]r Lord One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, and they y[e] said John Thomas &amp; Mary Earle to the other part have set their Hands &amp; SealsOrlando Bridg[man] [...] [...]Sealed and Delivered In the Presence of Tho[mas] [...]ome Jn[o] Fr[en]ch Jn[o] Alexander | March 1713. The Earle children, their executors, administrators and assigns were bound to bear true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. Rent was payable yearly on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at four shillings per acre, with an additional loading duty of five shillings per annum, all in good and current island money. At the end of the term the lessees were to leave the fences in as good repair as they then stood. They were not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. They were not to dispose of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 4 [...] 1713. John, Thomas and Mary Earle set their hands and seals to the counterpart. Orlando Bridg[man] [...] [...]Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas [...]ome, John French and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease paired with the freehold confirmation of two acres given to the same three Earle children earlier in the present record. Together the two instruments created a composite working estate of twenty-one acres at Rupert's Bay under the Main Ridge, with the small freehold core anchored within the larger leasehold extension. The same institutional pattern of perpetual freehold tied to twenty-one-year leasehold appeared repeatedly across the 4 August 1713 sitting and parallel processings. The annual rent of four shillings per acre plus a five-shilling loading duty placed the Earle children's leasehold at the standard rate established under the 1711 framework. The total annual burden of four pounds one shilling represented a substantial commitment for an orphan estate, indicating that the Company expected the children to draw real productive value from the Sandy Bay ground. The covenant against altering the fences gave physical features the status of legal landmarks. Any change in the fence line would compel redrawing of the plan annexed to the deed, which the Company treated as the operative description of the parcel. The provision preserved the institutional cartographic record against unilateral adjustment by the tenant. The restriction on disposal of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the governor and council represented a substantial departure from the freely assignable ninety-nine-year leases of the earlier period, such as the Heath-Charles Sandy Bay assignment of 13 March 1705. Under the 1711 regime, leasehold tenure remained subject to active institutional supervision, with each transfer requiring governmental sanction. Rupert's Bay appears here as the location of the Earle leasehold, although the same parcel is described as lying in Sandy Bay in the companion freehold confirmation. The two descriptions probably refer to adjoining or overlapping areas under the Main Ridge that the institutional record treated as a single working zone. Francis Wrangham as the northern neighbour, John Cole as the western boundary, and John Robinson as the southern occupier of Company land place the Earle children's estate within the cluster of substantial 1711-1713 holders along the Main Ridge. The witness panel of Thomas [...]ome, John French and John Alexander, with the register Alexander attesting, places this instrument among the lease counterparts attended by John French, gunner of the island, rather than the Cason-Francis trio that attended most of the day's freehold confirmations. The variation in witness composition reflects the procedural distinction between confirmation and lease. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | The reference to Orlando Bridgman in the executorial or sealing line, with the manuscript unclear at that point, perhaps indicates that an adult was sealing the counterpart on the children's behalf during their minority. The role parallels the Orlando Bagley sealing for Margaret Bagley and Gabriel Powell sealing for Mary Hoskison observed earlier in the 4 August 1713 sequence. Speculations The discrepancy between Sandy Bay in the freehold confirmation and Rupert's Bay in the present lease suggests that the institutional record had not yet settled on a single name for the area under the Main Ridge where the Earle children's working estate lay. Rupert's Bay perhaps appears in the lease because the southern parcel reached the coast on the bay side, while the freehold core was identified by reference to the Sandy Bay region as a whole. The pairing of nineteen acres of leasehold around a two-acre freehold, with the freehold confirmation processed the day before sealing of the lease (or in close sequence), points to a deliberate institutional strategy of limiting the children's perpetual entitlement to a small protective core while keeping the bulk of their working ground under twenty-one-year terms. The Company retained the option to recover the larger parcel in 1734 while leaving the children with their small freehold anchor regardless of how the leasehold renewal might be resolved.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 205 | 200          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England [Comp[any] Deed] Trading to y[e] East Indies, Do hereby Confirm unto Robert Girling Free-Mason Twenty [to] Acres of Land lying Scituate in Peak Gut Abutting &amp; Bounding towards y[e] North &amp; South [Rob[er]t Girling] upon y[e] Honourable Companys Wast Land, towards y[e] East upon y[e] Land of Cap[tain] [...]allings Heires, and towards y[e] West upon Six Acres of Land y[e] said Rob[er]t Girling Kins[man] of the said Hon[our]able Comp[any] Which said Twenty Acres of Land he y[e] said Rob[er]t Girling Hath a just Right and Title too as may more largely appeare upon Examination in a Consultation of the Seventeenth day of March One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Thirteen, And Notice being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their claim on a certain day therein Limitted, but none appearing or any objection made, To have and to hold The said Premises to him y[e] said Robert Girling his Heires &amp; Assignes for ever, Upon Cond[ition] y[a]t he y[e] said Robert Girling his Heires &amp; Assignes shall alwayes Do &amp; beare true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queene Anne her Heires &amp; Successors and to y[e] said Honourable Company and their Successors And shall duly Obey all y[e] Lawes &amp; Constitutions of y[e] said Island, In witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these Presents have sett their Comm[on] Seale at their Castle on said Island this [...] day of August In the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen Sealed and Delivered In y[e] Pres[en]ce of Tho[mas] [...]ason Jn[o] Fr[en]ch Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to Robert Girling, freemason, twenty acres of land in Peak Gut. The parcel was bounded northwards and southwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, eastwards by the land of Captain [...]allings's heirs, and westwards by six acres of land that Girling hired from the Honourable Company. Girling's right and title to the twenty acres rested on examination in a consultation of 17 March 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to Girling, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on [...] August 1713. Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas [...]ason, John French and John Alexander. Interpretations Robert Girling appears here with the artisanal designation of freemason, placing him in the same skilled-trade category as Robert Bell the planter and mason and Isaac Wood the cooper. The Company favoured tenants with construction and maintenance skills who could meet the fencing and improvement covenants attached to the 1711 framework. The freemason classification gave Girling institutional standing as an artisan-holder, distinct from the free planter and soldier categories that dominated the earlier records. The Girling surname here may represent a variant rendering of Gurling, the family name carried by Richard Gurling (the younger), Robert Gurling, and the earlier |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | deceased Richard Gurling the elder, all documented across the Chapel Valley, Fryer Valley and Lemon Valley records. The shift to a freemason designation perhaps points to a distinct branch of the family, or to a different reading of the name applied to one of the active Gurlings as the institutional record adjusted its terminology. The twenty acres lay in Peak Gut, the same upland zone where the Hoskinson-Powell-Gurling parcel of May 1704 had passed through three hands in a single day for substantial mark-ups, where the Wrangham orphans held their ten acres confirmed earlier in the 4 August 1713 sitting, and where the heirs of Governor Keeling held adjoining ground. Girling's twenty acres place him within a documented cluster of substantial Peak Gut holders. The eastern boundary against Captain [...]allings's heirs, with the manuscript unclear at that point, perhaps reads as Captain Wallings, Stallings or a similar name. Captain Wills, the senior Fishers Valley holder, appears as a possible reading though his estates lay elsewhere. The captain designation places the deceased neighbour among the senior military or shipping officers whose estates persisted through their heirs after their deaths. The six acres of adjoining hired Company land on the west places Girling's perpetual freehold within a larger working estate of twenty-six acres, with the smaller leasehold extension following the standard 1711 pattern of paired tenure. The lack of a separate same-day leasehold instrument for the six acres in the present record suggests that the leasehold may have been processed under a different sitting or remained outside the 1711 framework. The consultation date of 17 March 1713, falling under the old calendar reckoning and read forward to March 1714, matches the same hearing that supported the Samuel Jersey and Earle children's confirmations processed in close sequence at the Castle. The witness panel of Thomas [...]ason, John French and John Alexander matches the composition that attended the Earle children's lease, with John French serving as gunner-witness alongside the register. The variation between the Cason-Francis-Alexander trio of the major confirmations and the Cason-French-Alexander trio here perhaps marks a procedural sub-cluster within the long 4 August 1713 sitting, with French attending instruments processed at a particular point in the day. Speculations The reference to six acres of adjoining hired Company land, without an accompanying lease instrument in the present record, suggests that Girling already held the leasehold under an earlier or separate arrangement and that the present confirmation regularised only the freehold core. The artisanal freemason classification points to Girling as a working tradesman whose Peak Gut estate served as a personal residential and productive base rather than as a substantial accumulating portfolio of the kind built up by figures such as Hoskinson, Powell or the Gurlings of the merchant line. The proximity of Girling's twenty acres to the heirs of Captain [...]allings and to the broader Peak Gut cluster, including the Wrangham orphans and the Keeling heirs, points to the area as a zone where multiple substantial estates passed into the hands of widows, children and successor purchasers during the 1711-1713 regularisation. Girling's confirmation perhaps marks the artisanal layer entering the Peak Gut cluster alongside the senior officer and gentleman holdings already established there. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
| 206 | 201          | St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[...] United Company of Merch[ants] of England Trading to the East Indies, Do [Comp[any]s Lease] hereby Demisse Lett &amp; Sea unto Robert Girling Freeholder Six Acres of Land Scituate [to] and being in Peak Gutt butting towards y[e] North &amp; East upon his own Property Acres [Rob[er]t Girling] of Land, and towards y[e] South &amp; West upon y[e] Honourable Companys Wast Land To have and to hold The said Six Acres of Land to him y[e] said Robert Girling his Executors Administrators and Assignes for the Terme &amp; Time of Twenty One years commencing from y[e] Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, Upon Condition That he y[e] said Robert Girling his Executors Administrators and Assignes Shall &amp; always Do beare true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne, her Heires and Successors, and to y[e] said Honourable United Company and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all the Lawes and constitutions of the said Island And the Year[ly] Pay at y[e] Annunciation of y[e] Blessed Virgin Mary (being y[e] 25 day of March) the Annuall Rent and Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides any Lading duty being u[su] all Five Shillings per Ann[um] of good &amp; Currant money of the said Island, unto y[e] said Hon[our]able Company and their Successors, And that he the said Robert Girling his Executors Administrators and Assignes Shall and do at y[e] Expiration of y[e] said Terme of Twenty one Years Leave y[e] fences about y[e] said Land in as good repair as they are now, and not to alter the Fences which are the Landmarks, and which will occasion y[e] Alteration of y[e] Plott hereunto Annexed nor dispose of this Lease, or interest in y[e] same, without consent of y[e] Governour and Councell for y[e] time being, In witness whereof the said Honourable United Company [Lords] Proprietors to these presents have set their Common Seale, at their Castle in James Valley this fourth [...] day of August In the Year of o[u]r Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And the said Robert Girling to the other part hath sett his Hand and Seal Rob[er]t GirlingSealed and Delivered In the Presence of Tho[mas] Ea[s]on Jn[o] Fr[en]ch Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Robert Girling, freeholder, six acres of land in Peak Gut. The parcel was bounded northwards and eastwards by his own freehold land and southwards and westwards by the Honourable Company's waste land. The lease ran for twenty-one years from 25 March 1713. Girling, his executors, administrators and assigns were bound to bear true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable United Company and their successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. Rent was payable yearly on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at four shillings per acre, with an additional loading duty of five shillings per annum, all in good and current island money. At the end of the term Girling was to leave the fences in as good repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. He was not to dispose of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713. Robert Girling set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Robert GirlingSealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas Eason, John French and John Alexander. Interpretations The lease paired with the earlier same-day freehold confirmation of twenty acres to Robert Girling, completing the standard 1711 pattern of perpetual freehold tied to twenty-one-year leasehold. Together the two instruments gave Girling a working estate of twenty-six acres in Peak Gut, with the leasehold extension surrounded on the north and east by his own freehold and opening onto Company waste on the south and west. The shift in Girling's classification from freemason in the freehold confirmation to freeholder in the present lease reveals the institutional record adapting designations to the procedural moment. The freemason term identified him by trade for the confirmation; the freeholder term identified him by tenure for the leasehold extension, marking the perpetual confirmation as the qualifying basis for the additional twenty-one-year grant. The annual rent of four shillings per acre plus a five-shilling loading duty produced a total annual burden of one pound nine shillings on the six acres, placing Girling's leasehold at the standard 1711 rate. The modest sum reflected the marginal Peak Gut location away from the more developed Sandy Bay and Chapel Valley zones. The covenants against altering fences and disposing of the lease without governor and council consent reproduced the standard 1711 framework restrictions. The fence-as-landmark provision tied the operative description |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | to the annexed plan, while the disposal restriction kept the leasehold under continuing institutional supervision. The lease was sealed at the Castle in James Valley on 4 August 1713, the same major sitting that processed the freehold confirmation. The pairing of confirmation and lease within a single day's processing matches the coordinated administrative cohort observed across the wider sitting. Girling signed in his own hand, placing him within the literate circle of free planters and artisans who could attest their own instruments. The signature contrasts with the marks made by less literate holders such as William Marsh, John Bagley's wife Margaret, or Owen Bevean. The witness panel of Thomas Eason, John French and John Alexander reproduces the Cason-French-Alexander trio of the freehold confirmation. The reading of Eason here, against Cason in the earlier instrument, perhaps reflects a scribal variation across the two deeds rather than a different witness, since the long 4 August 1713 sitting drew on a stable rotation of attending witnesses. Speculations The signing of the leasehold counterpart in Girling's own hand, despite his trade designation as freemason rather than as a member of the merchant or planter elite, points to the spread of literacy across the skilled artisan layer by 1713. The pairing of an own-hand signature with an artisanal classification places Girling among the lettered tradesmen who participated directly in the documentary regime, rather than relying on a substitute sealer as Margaret Bagley or Mary Hoskison did in their leasehold counterparts.  |
| 207 | 202          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby confirme unto Elizabeth Bowman [Comp[any]s Deed] (daughter of John Bowman deceas'd) Forty five Acres of Land lying Scituate at [to] the Head of one branch of Chappell Vally under the Maine Ridge, butting &amp; bounding [Eliz[abeth] Bowman] towards the North upon the Land of George Powell Freeholder, towards the East upon the Land of Henry Francis, towards the South upon the Land of Francis Wrangham and John Bagley, and towards the West upon the Honourable Companys great Pasture, Also Thirty Acres of Land more Scituate at y[e] Head of Swine Gully being formerly the Land of William Bowman deceas'd Butting and Bounding towards y[e] North upon the Land of Edward Bryan dec[eas]d his Heires, Towards the East upon y[e] said Honourable Companys Wast Land, Towards the South and West upon there Hutts Pasture being two parcells of Land and in the whole contains Seventy five Acres, Which Hs the said Elizabeth Bowman hath a just Right | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to Elizabeth Bowman, daughter of the deceased John Bowman, two parcels totalling seventy-five acres. The first parcel of forty-five acres lay at the head of one branch of Chapel Valley under the Main Ridge. It was bounded northwards by the land of George Powell, freeholder, eastwards by the land of Henry Francis, southwards by the land of Francis Wrangham and John Bagley, and westwards by the Honourable Company's great pasture. The second parcel of thirty acres lay at the head of Swine Gully and had formerly belonged to the deceased William Bowman. It was bounded northwards by the land of the heirs of the deceased Edward Bryan, eastwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, and southwards and westwards by their hut pasture. Elizabeth Bowman's right and title to the seventy-five acres rested on examination in a consultation of 3 March 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | and Title too As may appear more largely Upon Examination in a Consultation of the Third [...] day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, and Notice being given by beat of Drum for any person to make their clayme on a certain day therein Limmitted, But none appearing or any Objection made, To have and to hold The said premises to her the aforesaid Elizabeth Bowman her Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition That she y[e] said Elizabeth Bowman her Heires and Assignes shall and Do alwayes beare true faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors And shall duly Obey all the Lawes and constitutions of the said Island In Witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this fourth [...] day of August in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen Sealed and Delivered In the Presence of Tho[mas] [...] Jason Jn[o] French Jn[o] Alexander | granted to Elizabeth Bowman, her heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas [...] Jason, John French and John Alexander. Interpretations The confirmation vested seventy-five acres directly in Elizabeth Bowman as an unmarried adult daughter, without joint vesting with brothers, sisters or any wider sibling group. The direct vesting in a single named female holder gave her institutional standing equivalent to a male freeholder, departing from the joint-and-several vesting that the Company had used for other orphan estates such as the Harding children, the Maxwell orphans or the Earle children. Elizabeth held the perpetual title in her own name with full power of inheritance and assignment. The seventy-five-acre estate placed Elizabeth among the substantial individual landholders of the 4 August 1713 sitting, on a scale comparable to Mary Hoskison's eighty-six acres and Frances Goodwin's eighty-nine acres of confirmed freehold. The Bowman confirmation marks the third substantial female holding of the major sitting, indicating that the Company recognised significant female tenure across widows, widow-with-heirs and unmarried daughters within the 1711 framework. The two parcels traced two distinct chains of prior tenure. The forty-five acres at the head of Chapel Valley arrived through Elizabeth's father, the deceased John Bowman, who had earlier appeared in the records as the seller of a Fort James Valley dwelling house to John Nicholls and as the eastern boundary of the Orlando Bagley senior gift of August 1695. The thirty acres at the head of Swine Gully had formerly belonged to the deceased William Bowman, perhaps a brother, uncle or other kinsman of John Bowman, indicating that two Bowmans had held substantial original allotments that now reached Elizabeth as the surviving family beneficiary. Swine Gully appears here as a previously undocumented working byname, joining Diana's Geak, Two Gun Ridge, Black Egea, Writing Stone Ridge, Sexton's Ground and the other topographical names recorded across the 4 August 1713 sitting. The byname identifies the parcel by reference to its working use rather than by a formal place name. George Powell, freeholder, on the northern boundary of the Chapel Valley parcel, is probably Gabriel Powell under a variant first name, given his confirmed substantial Chapel Valley holdings and the boundary configuration. The Powell-Francis-Wrangham-Bagley clockwise sweep around the forty-five acres places Elizabeth's largest parcel at the centre of the most active Chapel Valley cluster. Edward Bryan as the deceased northern neighbour of the Swine Gully parcel connects to the earlier holder of the James Valley house later rebuilt by Richard Cleve and sold to James Greentree in June 1715. Bryan's heirs appear here as a boundary unit, indicating that his estate had passed into family hands by 1713. The consultation date of 3 March 1713, falling under the old calendar reckoning and read forward to March 1714, matches the same hearing cycle that supported the John Goodwin, James Greentree, Robert Addis, James Draper, Simon Whaley, Dorothy Hayes and several other confirmations of the same 4 August 1713 sitting. The witness panel of Thomas [...] Jason, John French and John Alexander reproduces the Cason-French-Alexander trio attending the present sub-cluster of confirmations, distinct from the Cason-Francis-Alexander trio that attended the morning instruments. The procedural variation places Elizabeth's confirmation within the later sequence of the long sitting. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Speculations The direct vesting of seventy-five acres in an unmarried daughter, with no recorded brother or co-heir, suggests that Elizabeth Bowman was the sole surviving child of John Bowman and the institutional successor to William Bowman as well. The configuration perhaps reflects a strategic family settlement under which two Bowman estates were consolidated into a single female line on the assumption that the perpetual title would later reach a husband through marriage. The Company's willingness to confirm the full estate in Elizabeth's name, rather than holding part in trust against future male heirs, indicates that female inheritance of substantial freehold had become institutionally established by 1713. The two-parcel configuration, with the larger forty-five acres at the head of Chapel Valley and the smaller thirty acres at the head of Swine Gully, perhaps points to two separate inheritances drawn together in the 1713 regularisation. Elizabeth's father John Bowman had probably held the Chapel Valley parcel during his lifetime, while the Swine Gully parcel came through William Bowman by separate succession. The Company's consolidation of both parcels under a single Elizabeth Bowman confirmation gave her institutional recognition as the focal heir of the wider Bowman family, with the perpetual title providing the basis for any future marriage settlement or estate disposition.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 208 | 203          | Island St Helena 203 The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Confirm Unto John Bryan Uldest Son and Heire of Edward Bryan decess'd [Comp[any] Deed] Thirty Acres of Land being formerly the Land of William Bowman also dec[ess]d Lying [to] Scituate at or n[e]igh the Head of Swine Valley, Butting and Bounding towards y[e] North [J[ohn] Bryan] East and West upon the Honourable Companys Wast Land, and towards the South upon the Land of Elizabeth Bowman Spinster, Which said Thirty Acres of Land He the said John Bryan (now absent off the said Island) Hath a just Right and Title Too as may more largely appear Upon Examination in a Consultation of the Third day of March One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, and Notice being given by beat of Drum for any Person to make their Claym on a day certayn therein Limmited, But none appearing or any Objection made, To have and to hold The said Premises to him the said John Bryan, or any other, the Heire of the said dec[ess]d Edward Bryan his or their or any of their Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he the said John Bryan his Heires and Assignes or any other, the Heire of the said Edward Bryan now living on said Island or any of them shall always Do and bear true faith and Alle giance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors and shall duly Obey all the Lawes &amp; Consti tutions of the said Island, In witness whereof the said Honourable Company to these Presents have sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this fourth day of August In the year of our Lord, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen Sealed and Delivered in the Presence of Tho[mas] [..]ason Jn[o] French Jn[o] Alexander | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to John Bryan, eldest son and heir of the deceased Edward Bryan, thirty acres of land formerly belonging to the deceased William Bowman. The parcel lay at or near the head of Swine Valley and was bounded northwards, eastwards and westwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, and southwards by the land of Elizabeth Bowman, spinster. John Bryan was absent from the island. His right and title to the thirty acres rested on examination in a consultation of 3 March 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to John Bryan, or to any other heir of the deceased Edward Bryan, and to his or their heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that John Bryan, his heirs and assigns, or any other heir of Edward Bryan then living on the island, bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on 4 August 1713. Sealed and delivered in the presence of Thomas [..]ason, John French and John Alexander. Interpretations The confirmation regularised the inheritance of Edward Bryan's estate in his eldest son John Bryan under the rule of primogeniture, despite John's absence from the island. The Company processed the deed in his name with a flexible substitutional clause allowing for the alternative vesting in any other heir of Edward Bryan then resident on the island. The mechanism kept the title open against the contingency of John's death overseas or his permanent failure to return, while still recording the primary inheritance line in the eldest son. The thirty acres at the head of Swine Valley had previously belonged to the deceased William Bowman, the same prior holder named in the Elizabeth Bowman confirmation earlier in the present record. Two distinct Bowman parcels at the head of Swine Gully or Swine Valley were therefore divided in 1713 between the Bryan and Bowman lines, with John Bryan receiving the thirty acres confirmed here and Elizabeth Bowman retaining the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | matching thirty acres confirmed in her own name. The configuration reveals that the William Bowman estate had been split between two heirs through inheritance routes that the Company recognised under its regularisation. The boundary clause records the same parcel as bounded southwards by Elizabeth Bowman, spinster, confirming her status as an unmarried adult and providing institutional reciprocal mapping between the two same-day Bowman-derived confirmations. The phrase Swine Valley appears here against Swine Gully in the Elizabeth Bowman deed, with both names referring to the same upland zone under variant scribal renderings. Edward Bryan, the deceased holder whose estate passed to John Bryan, connects to the earlier holder of the James Valley house later rebuilt by Richard Cleve and sold to James Greentree in June 1715. Bryan's death therefore predates the 1715 sale, with his estate moving into the hands of his heirs through inheritance and disposition. The 1713 confirmation also names him as the northern boundary holder in the Elizabeth Bowman deed of the same day, indicating that Edward Bryan held adjoining land at the head of Swine Gully in his own right alongside the William Bowman parcel now confirmed to his son. The substitutional clause covering any other heir of Edward Bryan represents a procedural departure from the standard sole-heir vesting used in most primogeniture confirmations of the 1711 framework. The flexibility perhaps reflects the Company's recognition that absent overseas heirs created institutional risk and that the deed should provide for transmission to a resident family member if the eldest son did not return. The consultation date of 3 March 1713, falling under the old calendar reckoning and read forward to March 1714, matches the same hearing that supported Elizabeth Bowman's confirmation and several other instruments processed on 4 August 1713. The witness panel of Thomas [...]ason, John French and John Alexander reproduces the trio attending the Bowman and Earle confirmations and the Girling instruments earlier in the sequence. Speculations The absence of John Bryan from the island at the moment of confirmation, with the deed processed in his name and with a substitutional clause for any resident heir of Edward Bryan, points to the Company's deliberate use of the 1711 framework to keep estates within recognised family lines even when the principal heir was overseas. The procedure perhaps anticipated the possibility that John would not return, with the substitutional clause acting as a fallback to a resident sibling or cousin without the need for a fresh consultation. The division of the William Bowman estate between Elizabeth Bowman and John Bryan, with thirty acres confirmed to each on the same day, perhaps reflects an earlier family settlement under which the Bowman ground had been partitioned between the Bowman and Bryan lines through marriage, inheritance or testamentary arrangement. The Company's 1713 regularisation gave institutional form to the partition by issuing two parallel confirmations rather than treating the William Bowman ground as a single block descending to one heir. Elizabeth's confirmation as spinster and John's confirmation in absentia together secured the family settlement against the risks of unmarried life and overseas residence. |
| 209 | 204          | [St] Helena 204 [Island St Helena] To all Christian People To whom these presents shall come I Mary Jewister of y[e] Island of S[t] Helena Widdow sendeth Greeting in our Lord God everlasting Know yee, That I [Mary Jewister] the said Mary Jewister for y[e] naturall Love &amp; Affection, that I the said Mary Jewister have and [to] do beare unto Francis Wrangham my Grandson and Plantor of | Island of St Helena To all Christian people to whom these presents come, Mary Jewister of the island of St Helena, widow, sent greeting in our Lord God everlasting. For the natural love and affection she bore towards Francis Wrangham, her grandson and a planter of the island, and being of perfect mind and memory, Mary Jewister freely and absolutely gave, granted and confirmed to Francis Wrangham all her                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | this Island being in perfect [Fra]ncis] Wrangham] Mind and Memory Have Given Granted and for divers good &amp; other my present writing fully Freely and Absolutely Give Grant and Confirm unto y[e] said Francis Wrangham all my Right Title Claim and Demand to one Black Man comonly called or knowne by y[e] name of Ned To have and to hold To him y[e] said Francis Wrangham his Heires and Assignes for ever to his own proper Use or &amp; behoof without any manner of Claim or Demand whatsoever, of or by any person or persons, Provided and it is promised and agreed to by y[e] said Francis Wrangham That he y[e] said Francis Wrangham Doth Covenant promise and Agree to give to y[e] said Black Coat in Sicke and Cloches for and dureing y[e] Terme of y[e] naturall Life of her y[e] said Mary Jewister, with y[e] use and benefit of y[e] work of y[e] said Black, both for y[e] [...] Decease of y[e] said Mary Jewister, then y[e] said Black to go to and be for ever to y[e] use and behoof of y[e] said Francis Wrangham his Heires Executors Administrators and Assignes for ever, In full and peaceable Possession by y[e] gift and delivery of y[e] said Black which to y[e] said Francis Wrangham I have given the [...] Day of y[e] date of these p[rese]nts I do give and deliver in Presence of y[e] said Black Have and possession of him In Witness whereof I have hereunto sett my Hand &amp; Seale the Twenty sixth day of February One Thousand Seven hundred and Eleven Twelve Her Mary + Jewister mark Sealed and Delivered and Quiett Possession given and delivered by y[e] said Mary Jewister in token of y[e] delivery of y[e] said Black, have according to y[e] Effect of y[e] said Pres[en]t Writing in y[e] Presence of us (no Stampt paper on y[e] Island) John Coulson James Vesey Samuel Pittman Island St Helena Know all men by these presents that I Lucas mason do hereby Acknow ledge to have received off and from Mr Francis Wrangham, the whole full and Entire Portion belonging to my wife formerly by the name of Elizabeth Wrangham and Do Discharge the Said Francis Wrangham and his Heirs for ever from any further Claim Challenge or Demand to or for the said Elizabeth Wrangham's Portion or any Part thereof either by Dividend of her deceased Father Mr Samuel Wranghams Estate or any Legacie otherwise Since Left or given her by any person whatsoever And De he by Wither Acknowledge to have received of Mr aforesaid Mr Francis Wrangham the full Sume of Eighty Nine pounds in good and Curr[en]t money and is in full payment for Ten Acres of Free Land and two Acres of Wood Land that did belong to my Said wife The Witness whereof I have hereunto sett my hand &amp; Seale this [...] Day of March 17[12] Witness hereto John Goodwin Lucas mason James Vesey | right, title, claim and demand to one black man commonly called or known by the name of Ned. The grant was to Francis Wrangham, his heirs and assigns for ever, to his own proper use and benefit, without any claim or demand from any person. Francis Wrangham covenanted, promised and agreed to provide the said black with coat, shirt and clothes during the natural life of Mary Jewister, with the use and benefit of the black's work going to her during her lifetime. On Mary Jewister's death, the black was to pass to Francis Wrangham, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns for ever. Mary Jewister gave full and peaceable possession by the gift and delivery of the black to Francis Wrangham on the day of the present writing, in the black's presence. Mary Jewister set her hand and seal to the deed on 26 February 1712. Her mark + Mary Jewister Sealed and delivered, and quiet possession given and delivered by Mary Jewister in token of the delivery of the black, according to the effect of the present writing, in the presence of John Coulson, James Vesey and Samuel Pittman. No stamped paper was available on the island. Island of St Helena Lucas Mason acknowledged that he had received from Mr Francis Wrangham the whole, full and entire portion belonging to his wife, formerly named Elizabeth Wrangham. He discharged Francis Wrangham and his heirs for ever from any further claim, challenge or demand to Elizabeth Wrangham's portion or any part of it, whether by dividend of her deceased father Mr Samuel Wrangham's estate or any legacy since left or given to her by any person whatsoever. Mason further acknowledged the receipt of eighty-nine pounds in good and current money from Francis Wrangham, in full payment for ten acres of free land and two acres of wood land that had belonged to his wife. Mason set his hand and seal to the deed on [...] March 1712. Witnessed by John Goodwin, Lucas Mason and James Vesey. Interpretations The first instrument constructed a life-interest arrangement over the slave Ned, with Mary Jewister retaining the use and benefit of his work during her lifetime while immediately vesting the perpetual ownership in her grandson Francis Wrangham. The structure parallels the reserved-room and reserved-yam arrangements seen in earlier conveyances, such as Owen Bevean's reservation of a single room when selling the Chapel Valley house to James Greentree in October 1705 or Jasper Jaye's reservation of yams and fowls when selling to Edward Edmunds in 1683. The Company recognised reversionary structures applied to slave labour in the same form as those applied to land and provisions. The clothing covenant required Francis Wrangham to provide coat, shirt and clothes to Ned during Mary Jewister's lifetime. The obligation transferred maintenance of the slave's basic upkeep onto the perpetual owner during the life-interest period, separating the labour value (which Mary retained) from the maintenance burden (which Francis assumed). The arrangement gave Mary the benefit of Ned's work without the cost of his keep. Mary Jewister's identification as widow, combined with the gift to her grandson, places her at the head of a three-generation family line ending in Francis Wrangham. The arrangement preserves slave property within the family by routing the gift through a generation rather than by sale, demonstrating that slaves were treated as inheritable family assets to be retained across kinship transfers. The phrase no stamped paper on the island, recorded after the witness list, marks the absence of the formal taxed paper required for legal instruments in metropolitan England. The notation gave institutional recognition to the practical reality of overseas administration, where the documentary regime operated on whatever paper was |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | available. The phrase appears as standard procedural protection against later challenge based on technical paper-stamping requirements. The second instrument records a financial settlement between Lucas Mason and his brother-in-law Francis Wrangham, closing off any further claim by Mason or his wife Elizabeth (formerly Wrangham) against the estate of the deceased Samuel Wrangham. The eighty-nine pounds in full payment of ten acres of free land and two acres of wood land released to Francis Wrangham the consolidated freehold and wood land that had passed through the family settlement. The settlement parallels the 29 January 1718 endorsement on the Samuel Wrangham orphans' confirmation and lease, where Lucas Mason assigned his interest (in right of his wife Elizabeth) in the freehold to John Wrangham and in the leasehold to Francis Wrangham. The present March 1712 instrument predates the 1718 endorsement by nearly six years, indicating that the family settlement between the Mason-Wrangham line and the Wrangham siblings unfolded across multiple stages of cash payment and formal assignment. John Coulson appears here as a witness to the slave gift, joining the wider Coulson family cluster that included Grace Coulson, Benoney Coulson, the late Leonard Coulson and Widow Coulson. James Vesey appears as a witness to both instruments, placing him within the literate circle of the period alongside John Goodwin and Samuel Pittman. The 26 February 1712 date for the slave gift falls under the old calendar reckoning and converts forward to 26 February 1712 in modern style. The March 1712 date for the Mason settlement, with the day uncertain in the manuscript, falls within the same calendar period before the 25 March year change. Speculations The reservation of Ned's work to Mary Jewister during her lifetime, with the perpetual title vesting in Francis Wrangham, perhaps reflects an elderly widow's decision to secure her labour supply during her remaining years while ensuring that the slave would not be sold off after her death by an executor under pressure from creditors or other heirs. By making the gift immediately and reserving only a life interest in the work, Mary fixed the ownership against any post-mortem challenge from rival family members or institutional claimants. The arrangement converted what might otherwise have been a testamentary disposition (subject to probate and challenge) into an inter vivos gift with reserved life enjoyment. The eighty-nine pounds paid by Francis Wrangham to Lucas Mason in March 1712 perhaps represents the working price of Elizabeth Wrangham's portion under her father Samuel Wrangham's estate, with the ten acres of free land and two acres of wood land identified as the underlying assets. The settlement enabled Francis to consolidate the Wrangham freehold and wood land in his own hands before the formal 1718 endorsement assigned the residual leasehold interest as well. The two-stage process, with cash settlement in 1712 and formal assignment in 1718, perhaps reflects the time required to secure each tranche of the divided family estate against the various Wrangham siblings and their spouses. |
| 210 | 205          | Island St Helena 205 The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies [Comp[any]s Lease] Do hereby Demisse Lett and Sea unto Mary Conaway Widow Thirty Acres of Land Scituate [to] at the Head of Doggwood Valley Butting and Bounding towards the North Sou[t]h and Eas[t] [Mary Conaway] upon the said Hon[our]able Comp[any] Wast Land and towards the West upon the lands of Eliz[abeth] Smith p[ar] [Wido[w]] hen and | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Mary Conaway, widow, thirty acres of land at the head of Dogwood Valley. The parcel was bounded northwards, southwards and eastwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, westwards by the lands of Elizabeth Smith, and to the east by the land of William Worrall, formerly in the possession of Phil Cleeve. The lease ran for twenty-one years from 25 March 1713.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | towards the East to the Land of Will[iam] Worrall formaly in the Pos[s]es[s]ion of Phill Cleeve To have and to hold the said Premisses to her the said Mary Conaway her Executors Administrators and Assignes for the Terme and Time of Twenty one years commencing from the Twenty fifth day of March One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, Upon Condition That she the said Mary Conaway her Executors administrators and Assignees shall always Do and bare true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to the said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all the Lawes and Constitutions of the said Island, And yearly pay at the Annuntiation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25th day of March) the Annuall Rent and Sum of fower Shillings per Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shillings per Acre in good and Currant money of the said Island, Unto the Hon[ourable] Comp[any] and their Success[ors] And that she the said Mary Conaway her Executors Administrators and Assignees shall and do at the Expiration of the said Terme of Twenty one years Leave the fences about the said Land in as good repaire as they are now, and not to alter the said Fences which are the Landmarks, and which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plot hereunto Annexed, nor dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same without Consent of y[e] Gov[ernour] and Councell for the time being, In witness whereof the said Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] and Lords Proprietors to these Pre[se]nts have sett their Common Seale, at their Castle in James Valley this first [...] day of December One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen The Mark of Mary M ConawaySealed and Delivered In y[e] Pres[en]ce ofJn[o] Alexander | Mary Conaway, her executors, administrators and assigns were bound to bear true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. Rent was payable yearly on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, in good and current island money. At the end of the term Mary Conaway was to leave the fences in as good repair as they then stood. She was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. She was not to dispose of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 1 December 1713. The mark of Mary M ConawaySealed and delivered in the presence of John Alexander. Interpretations The leasehold confirmation extended a thirty-acre frontier estate at the head of Dogwood Valley to Mary Conaway as a widow, recognising her independent tenure of substantial Company ground in her own name. The pattern of widow leasehold tenure parallels the documented holdings of Margaret Cotgrave, Margaret Bagley, Margaret Sich and Grace Coulson, indicating that the 1711 framework provided institutional recognition for widows holding leased Company land outside the freehold confirmation pattern. The annual rent of four shillings per acre plus a one-shilling duty produced a per-acre rate of five shillings, generating a total annual burden of seven pounds ten shillings on the thirty acres. The duty here is rendered as a per-acre charge rather than the flat-sum loading duty of five shillings per annum applied to other 1713 leases such as the Earle children's and Robert Girling's. The variation reveals two distinct duty structures operating side by side within the 1711-1713 framework, with the per-acre formulation appearing on substantial larger holdings. Dogwood Valley appears here as a new working byname, joining Swine Gully, Swine Valley, Diana's Geak, Black Egea, Writing Stone Ridge and the other topographical names recorded across the 1711-1713 regularisation. The valley name carries no documented earlier use, indicating that Mary Conaway's leasehold is the first institutional record of the location. The triple boundary against Company waste on the north, south and east, with only a single neighbour on the west, places the parcel at the outer margin of regularised settlement, similar to John Knipe's frontier four-acre leasehold at the bottom of Pleasant Valley and the Joshua Johnson estate under the King's Peak. The Company used the 1711 framework to extend documented tenure into previously unenclosed ground, drawing institutional perimeters around marginal estates. The boundary description records two distinct east-facing references, with Elizabeth Smith on the west (correcting the apparent mistranscription that places her on the west while another east boundary appears to William Worrall). The internal inconsistency reflects the institutional record's tolerance of variances within a single deed, with the operative description resting on the annexed plan rather than on textual precision. William Worrall as an adjoining holder connects to John Worrall senior named as a boundary holder in the 4 August 1713 Thomas Allis lease at Deep Valley. The Worrall family persisted across multiple parts of the island, with William perhaps a son or kinsman of John Worrall. Phil Cleeve as the earlier holder of the Worrall parcel connects to Richard Cleve, the soldier who rebuilt the James Valley house sold to James Greentree for one |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | hundred and fifty pounds in June 1715. Phil Cleeve perhaps represents a kinsman of Richard Cleve, with the family carrying surname into the Dogwood Valley area before the 1713 lease. Mary Conaway's mark, set as M, places her among the unlettered female holders whose institutional standing rested on the documentary regime rather than on personal literacy. The pattern parallels Grace Coulson's mark, Margaret Bagley's M, and Owen Bevean's O B. The witness panel reduced to John Alexander alone places this lease at the closing margin of the institutional process, with the register attesting in his sole capacity. The reduction from the standard council quorum of three witnesses to the register alone marks the leasehold as a routine extension rather than a substantive confirmation requiring senior council attendance. The 1 December 1713 sealing date places this lease in the closing months of the year, several months after the major 4 August 1713 sitting. The continued processing of leases across the following months indicates that the 1711 framework operated as a continuing administrative regime rather than as discrete annual events. Speculations The processing of Mary Conaway's lease on 1 December 1713 with only John Alexander attending as witness perhaps reflects the institutional pattern of holding routine leasehold extensions at smaller administrative gatherings outside the major coordinated sittings. The Company used the major sittings such as 4 August 1713 to clear coordinated reciprocal-boundary instruments, while leases on outlying frontier estates were processed individually when the holder's situation permitted attendance at the Castle. The grant of thirty acres at a frontier location to a widow holding only by mark, without recorded previous ownership in her own name or documented kinship to a substantial freeholder, perhaps points to a widow's resettlement or a fresh allocation of marginal ground rather than the regularisation of long-established occupation. The Company's willingness to extend a substantial leasehold to a widow on these terms indicates that frontier development took priority over the social profile of the tenant, with the documented covenants on fences and disposal providing institutional protection against the risk of poor management on outlying ground. |
| 211 | 206          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietor of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] of Merchants of England trading to the [Comp[any] Deed] East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto William Seale Freeholder Twenty Acres of [to] Land Lying Scituate in Stocks Valley being formerly the Lott Land of one J[o]s Bartlett [W[illiam]m Seale] Deceased, Butting and Bounding towards the North and South upon the said Honourable Companys West Land, upon the East and West upon the Land of Robert Bell late Walter Edwards, Which said Twenty Acres of Land he the said William Seale hath a Just Right and Title to as may appear more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of the [...] day of [...] One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, and Notice being given by Beat of Drum For any Person to make their Claim on a Day certaine therein limitted But none appearing or any objection made To have and to hold the said Premises to him the said William Seale his Heires and Assignes for ever, Upon Condition That he the said William Seale his Heires and Assignes Do bear allwayes true faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne Her Heires and Successors, and to the said Hon[ourable] Company and their Successors, And shall duly obey all the Laws and constitutions of the said Island In Witness whereof the said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island, this [...] day of [...] In | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to William Seale, freeholder, twenty acres of land in Stocks Valley, formerly the lot land of the deceased Jos Bartlett. The parcel was bounded northwards and southwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, and eastwards and westwards by the land of Robert Bell, late Walter Edwards. William Seale's right and title to the twenty acres rested on examination in a consultation of [...] [...] 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to William Seale, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on [...] [...] 1713. The plat and plan of the land were annexed to the deed, and a copy of the deed and plan were entered in the register book. Scaled and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The confirmation regularised William Seale's tenure of twenty acres in Stocks Valley under the 1711 framework, drawing on a prior allotment held by the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|--------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen The Platt and Plan of the abovesaid Land being hereunto Annexed Also a Coy of this Deed and Plan enter'd in the Register Book Sealed and Delivered In the Presence of | deceased Jos Bartlett. The recital of Jos Bartlett as the former holder preserves an earlier name within the institutional memory, with Bartlett perhaps representing the John Bartlett in Sharks Valley named in the 1682 inquest, although Stocks Valley as the location here does not match the inquest's Sharks Valley reference. The variation may reflect either a different Bartlett holding or a later relocation of the lot land under intermediate transfers. Stocks Valley appears here as a working byname, joining Dogwood Valley, Swine Gully, Swine Valley, Diana's Geak, Black Egea, Writing Stone Ridge and the other topographical names that the 1711-1713 regularisation drew into the institutional record. The valley name carries no documented earlier use and is not recorded elsewhere in the 4 August 1713 sitting, indicating that William Seale's confirmation is the first institutional record of the location. Robert Bell's holdings as the eastern and western neighbour reproduce his Sandy Bay accumulation built through the 1 August 1712 Company sale of ten acres for two hundred dollars and the same-day leasehold assignment of Walter Belward's six acres. The Stocks Valley confirmation extends his recorded position beyond Sandy Bay, indicating that his planter-and-mason classification supported a wider working estate by 1713. The land was identified as late Walter Edwards's, with Edwards as the earlier holder before Robert Bell. Walter Edwards perhaps connects to Humphrey Edwards, the single-acre Sandy Bay lessee from the 4 August 1713 sitting who signed in his own hand, or to a separate family member of the same surname. William Seale connects to the wider Seale family. His own 4 August 1713 confirmation in twenty acres near the head of Sharks Valley placed him as the son of the deceased Beer Seale, with adjoining boundaries against Jane Mudge widow, Matthew Bazett and John Knipe. The present Stocks Valley confirmation gives him a second separate twenty-acre freehold, expanding his documented holdings to forty acres across two valleys. The Beer Seale identification in the Sharks Valley confirmation is distinct from the Benjamin Seale of the 1682 inquest and the 1694 gift to Praise Pledger, although the Seale surname runs through the wider family network. William Seale's accumulation of two separate twenty-acre freeholds within a single year places him among the rising second-generation holders consolidating their position under the 1711 framework. The deed is incompletely engrossed, with the consultation date, the sealing date and the witness panel all left blank in the manuscript. The pattern matches the other incompletely engrossed instruments of the 1713 sitting, including the Keeling heirs' confirmation, the Daniel Griffeth heirs' confirmation, the Giles Smith confirmation and the Margaret Sich instruments. The blanks reflect documents drafted in advance and held pending later proxy or family completion when practical obstacles such as absent witnesses or unresolved title questions were resolved. The closing note records that the plat and plan of the land were annexed to the deed, with a copy of the deed and plan entered in the register book. The notation gives institutional recognition to the cartographic record as the operative description of the parcel, alongside the textual deed. The annexation of the plan reproduces the standard 1711 framework requirement that physical landmarks tied to surveyed plans gave the boundary description its legal force. Speculations The incomplete engrossment of the deed, with the consultation date, sealing date and witness panel all left blank, suggests that William Seale's Stocks Valley confirmation was drafted in anticipation of later completion at a moment when the documentary obstacles |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | could be resolved. The Company perhaps held the deed in suspended form pending verification of the boundary against Robert Bell's adjoining estate, the location of Stocks Valley relative to neighbouring areas, or the identification of the deceased Jos Bartlett as the original allottee. The institutional pattern of preparing regularised records in advance and finalising them as practical circumstances permitted operated across multiple confirmations of the 1713 period. William Seale's accumulation of forty acres across two separate freeholds in the same regularisation year, in addition to his Sharks Valley confirmation under his father Beer Seale's name, points to a deliberate consolidation of family ground at the moment of the 1711 framework's full operation. By regularising both inherited and newly acquired parcels under perpetual title within a single year, William fixed his institutional position as a substantial second-generation freeholder, with the documented forty-acre base providing the foundation for any later marriage settlement, inheritance disposition or further accumulation.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 212 | 207          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto John Crosby Eldest Son of [Comp[any] deed] Edward Crosby deceased (since Decease of his Mother Sarah &amp; now Wife of Christopher Hall) [to] Ten Acres Land Lying Scituate in Plyers Valley butting and bounding towards the [John Crosby] North East and West upon the said Hon[oura]b[le] Comp[any] West Land, and upon the South upon the Lands of Edward Bayleys Children now in y[e] Pos[s]es[s]ion of Thomas Southern Which said Ten Acres of Land he the said John Crosby hath (at the decease of his Mother aforesaid) a just Right and Title to as may appeare more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of the [...] day of [...] One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, and Notice being given by beat of Drum for any person to make their Claim on a day certaine therein limmited, but none appearing to any Objection made, To have and to hold the said Premises to him the said John Crosby his Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he the said John Crosby his Heires and Assignes, do bear always true faith and allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to the said Hon[oura]b[le] Comp[any] and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In Witness whereof the said Hon[oura]b[le] Comp[any] to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at there Castle on the said Island, this [...] day of [...] In the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen The Platt and Plan of y[e] abovesaid Land being hereunto Annexed Also a Copy of this Deed and Plan entered in y[e] Register Book Sealed and Delivered In the Presence of | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to John Crosby, eldest son of the deceased Edward Crosby (the confirmation taking effect on the death of his mother Sarah, now the wife of Christopher Hall), ten acres of land in Plyers Valley. The parcel was bounded northwards, eastwards and westwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, and southwards by the lands of Edward Bagley's children, then in the possession of Thomas Southern. John Crosby's right and title to the ten acres, taking effect on the death of his mother, rested on examination in a consultation of [...] [...] 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to John Crosby, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on [...] [...] 1713. The plat and plan of the land were annexed to the deed, and a copy of the deed and plan were entered in the register book. Sealed and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The confirmation vested ten acres in John Crosby as the eldest son of the deceased Edward Crosby, but the operative grant was conditional on the death of his mother Sarah, who had since remarried Christopher Hall. The construction reproduces the standard widow's-life-interest pattern, with Sarah retaining the present use and benefit of the ground during her natural life while the perpetual title was institutionally fixed in her eldest son. The Company's recognition of the reversory structure prevented Sarah's remarriage from transferring the Crosby family ground out of the family line into the hands of her new husband. The interposition of Christopher Hall as Sarah's second husband created the institutional risk that the Crosby family ground might pass into Hall's hands through his marital rights over Sarah's interest. The deed's express vesting of the perpetual title in John Crosby on his mother's death closed off that risk, preserving the original Crosby line against the consequences of remarriage. The mechanism parallels the protective structures used in the Earle children's freehold confirmation, where the children's interests were preserved against their stepmother Beck[...] Earle's claims. Edward Crosby connects to the earlier records as the soldier who sold two acres at the side of the Little Horse |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | Pasture to Thomas Goodwin on 19 March 1695 for six pounds, completing Goodwin's reassembly of the James Wakefield parcel. The Edward Crosby of the 1695 sale also appeared as a witness to the John Young sale to Thomas Goodwin in May 1693. His death now reaches the institutional record through the 1713 confirmation of his son's inheritance. Plyers Valley appears here as a new working byname, joining Dogwood Valley, Stocks Valley, Swine Gully, Swine Valley and the other topographical names entering the institutional record through the 1711-1713 regularisation. The valley name carries no documented earlier use. Edward Bagley's children as the southern neighbour reproduce the orphan estate already documented in the 4 August 1713 Richard Gurling confirmation. The children's land was then in the possession of Thomas Southern, the same Thomas Smithen named in the Gurling lease (with the surname appearing under variant scribal rendering). The institutional pattern of letting orphan ground to an adult tenant during minority continued across multiple boundary references. The deed is incompletely engrossed, with the consultation date, the sealing date and the witness panel all left blank in the manuscript. The pattern matches the William Seale Stocks Valley confirmation processed in close sequence, along with the Keeling heirs, Daniel Griffeth heirs, Giles Smith and Margaret Sich instruments of the earlier sitting. The Company prepared regularised records in advance and finalised them as practical circumstances permitted. The closing note records that the plat and plan of the land were annexed to the deed, with a copy of the deed and plan entered in the register book. The institutional cartographic record gave the boundary description its operative force, consistent with the standard 1711 framework requirement. Speculations The express conditioning of John Crosby's freehold on the death of his mother Sarah, with her remarriage to Christopher Hall named in the deed, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional choice to formalise the protective structure within the perpetual title itself rather than relying on later challenge or family settlement to defeat any rival claim by Hall. By recording the reversionary structure in the freehold confirmation, the Company gave John Crosby an immediate institutional foothold against any attempt by Hall to assert marital rights over the Crosby family ground. The pattern of substitutional or contingent vesting clauses across multiple 1713 confirmations, including the John Bryan substitutional clause for any other heir of Edward Bryan, the protective construction around the Earle children against their stepmother, and the present conditional vesting around Sarah Crosby's life interest, points to the Company's active use of the 1711 framework to manage inheritance risks created by remarriage, overseas residence and minority. The documented confirmations operated as instruments of family settlement as well as land regularisation, fixing property lines against the contingencies of generational transition.  |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 213 | 208          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England [Comp[any] Deed] Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Confirm unto Isaac Leach Freeholder [to] Ten Acres of Land Lying Scituate at the Head of Pleasant Valley Butting towards [Isaac Leach] the North upon the Land of William Seale, towards the West upon the Land of W[illia]m Cales, towards the East and South upon the Lands of Giles Smith, Which said Ten Acres of Land he the said Isaac Leach hath a just right and Title too, As may appear more largely upon Examination in a Consultation of the [...] day of [...] One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And Notice being given by Beate of drum for any person to make their claim on a Day certaine therein Limmited but none appearing or any Objection made, To have and to hold The said Premises to him the said Isaac Leach his Heires and Assignes for ever Upon Condition That he the said Isaac Leach his Heires and Assignes Do bear alwayes true faith and allegiances to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, And shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, In Witness Whereof the said Honourable Company to these Presents have sett their Common Seale at their Castle on said Island this [...] day [...] In the year of our Lord one Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen The Platt and Plan of the above said Land being hereunto Annexed, Also a Copy of this Deed and Plan entered in the Register Book Sealed and Delivered In the Presence of | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, confirmed by Company deed to Isaac Leach, freeholder, ten acres of land at the head of Pleasant Valley. The parcel was bounded northwards by the land of William Seale, westwards by the land of William Cales, and eastwards and southwards by the lands of Giles Smith. Isaac Leach's right and title to the ten acres rested on examination in a consultation of [...] [...] 1713, with public notice given by beat of drum for any person to make a claim on a fixed day. No one came forward and no objection was raised. The land was granted to Isaac Leach, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that they bore true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Honourable Company set its common seal to the deed at the Castle on the island on [...] [...] 1713. The plat and plan of the land were annexed to the deed, and a copy of the deed and plan were entered in the register book. Sealed and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The confirmation regularised Isaac Leach's tenure of ten acres at the head of Pleasant Valley under the 1711 framework, adding a further documented Leach freeholder to the wider family network already evident in the records. The Leach family appears across the registers in multiple branches and renderings, including Richard Leach the free planter of the early Sharks Valley exchange with William Bishop, Robert Leach who sold fifteen acres in Fryer Valley to Mr George Carne in January 1705 and later took Susanna Doveton as apprentice in March 1708, Daniel Leach as boundary holder to the Giles Smith Pleasant Valley parcel, and the variant rendering Leech used for the same family. Isaac Leach extends the documented family presence into Pleasant Valley as an institutional freeholder in his own right. Pleasant Valley as the location of the ten acres places Isaac Leach within the same upland cluster that included John Knipe's four-acre leasehold at the bottom of the valley and Giles Smith's combined freehold and leasehold at the head of the valley, both confirmed earlier in the 4 August 1713 sitting. The Leach confirmation completes the documented Pleasant Valley cluster of three small adjoining holders. William Seale's northern boundary places his Pleasant Valley holding adjacent to Isaac Leach's parcel, extending Seale's documented position beyond his earlier confirmed Sharks Valley and Stocks Valley freeholds. The accumulation of three separate twenty-acre and ten-acre holdings under the Seale name across the 1713 regularisation places him among the active second-generation accumulators consolidating land under the 1711 framework. The ten-acre adjoining position here perhaps represents a further parcel held by William Seale under a separate prior tenure not regularised in the records already documented. William Cales as the western neighbour perhaps represents a variant rendering of Henry Cales or Henry Coales, the long-standing holder named in earlier records including the deceased Henry Coales as intermediate owner of the James Valley house in the 1715 Cleve-Greentree sale. The William Cales identification may indicate a son or kinsman of the wider Cales/Coales family who had taken over part of the family ground by 1713. Giles Smith on the eastern and southern boundaries reproduces the same Giles Smith confirmed in ten acres of freehold and twenty acres of leasehold near the head of Pleasant Valley on the 4 August 1713 sitting. The reciprocal boundary mapping with Isaac Leach's parcel places the two confirmations within a coordinated |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | administrative cluster, with each holder appearing in the other's boundary description. The deed is incompletely engrossed, with the consultation date, the sealing date and the witness panel all left blank in the manuscript. The pattern matches the William Seale Stocks Valley confirmation and the John Crosby Plyers Valley confirmation processed in close sequence. The Company prepared regularised records in advance and finalised them as practical circumstances permitted. The closing note records that the plat and plan of the land were annexed to the deed, with a copy of the deed and plan entered in the register book. The annexation of the cartographic record gave the boundary description its operative force. Speculations The reciprocal boundary mapping between Isaac Leach and Giles Smith, with each holder appearing on adjoining sides of the other's freehold, points to a coordinated regularisation of the Pleasant Valley cluster within a single administrative pass. The Company processed the Leach and Smith confirmations together to fix the working boundaries between the two adjoining freeholders, drawing on common surveying work and on the same beat of drum notice to extinguish any rival claim against either parcel. The pattern of clustered same-area confirmations operated as an efficient institutional mechanism for settling multiple titles in parallel. The incomplete engrossment of the deed with blanks for the consultation date, the sealing date and the witnesses perhaps reflects the Company's tolerance of suspended documents pending the resolution of practical obstacles such as Isaac Leach's availability to attend sealing or the verification of the William Seale northern boundary. The institutional regime treated the documentary regularisation as a continuing process rather than as a one-off event, with blanks held open for later completion as circumstances permitted. |
| 214 | 209          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the [Comp[any]s Lease] East Indies Do hereby Demisse Lett and Sett unto Isaac Leach Ten Acres of Land [to] Scituate at the Head of Pleasant Valley Butting towards the North upon the said Hon[oura]ble [Isaac Leach] Companys Wast Land, towards the West upon the Land of William Cales, towards the East upon the Land of Giles Smith, and towards the South upon the said Isaac Leaches own Ten Acres of Land To have and to hold The said Premises to him the said Isaac Leach his Executors Administrators and Assignes, for the Term and Time of Twenty on Years commencing from the Twenty fifth day of March, One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, Upon condition That he the said Isaac Leach his Executors Administrators and Assignes shall always do and bear true faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her heires and Successors, and to the said Honourable Comp[any] and their Successors, and shall duly obey all the Laws and constitutions of the said Island, and Yearly Pay at the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25th day of March) the Annuall Rent and Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides one shilling Duty being in all five Shillings per Ann[um] in good and Currant money of the said Island, unto the said Honourable Company and their Successors, And that he the said Isaac Leach his Executors Administrators and Assignes shall and do at the expiration of the Said Terme of Twenty one years Leave the fences about the said Land in as good repair as they are now, and not to alter the said fences w[hil]ch are the Land marks and which will occasion the alteration of the Plott hereunto Annex'd or not dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same without the | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Isaac Leach ten acres of land at the head of Pleasant Valley. The parcel was bounded northwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, westwards by the land of William Cales, eastwards by the land of Giles Smith, and southwards by Isaac Leach's own ten acres of land. The lease ran for twenty-one years from 25 March 1713. Isaac Leach, his executors, administrators and assigns were bound to bear true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. Rent was payable yearly on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per annum in all, in good and current island money. At the end of the term Isaac Leach was to leave the fences in as good repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. He was not to dispose of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Honourable Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on [...] [...] 1713. Isaac Leach set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Sealed and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The lease paired with the earlier same-period freehold confirmation of ten acres to Isaac Leach, completing the standard 1711 pattern of perpetual                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | consent of the Gov[ernor] and Councel for the time being, In Witness Whereof The said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this [...] day of [...] One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen, And the said Isaac Leach to the other part hath sett his Hand and Seale Sealed and Delivered In the Presence of | freehold tied to twenty-one-year leasehold. Together the two instruments gave Leach a combined working estate of twenty acres at the head of Pleasant Valley, with the leasehold extension positioned directly north of his freehold and opening onto Company waste on that side. The boundary description records Isaac Leach's own ten acres as the southern neighbour of the leased parcel, providing reciprocal cross-reference to the freehold confirmation. The Company used the matching boundary references between paired freehold and leasehold instruments to fix the spatial relationship between the two components of the same holder's estate, with each instrument anchoring the other through cartographic correspondence. The annual rent of four shillings per acre plus a one-shilling duty produced a per-acre rate of five shillings, generating a total annual burden of two pounds ten shillings on the ten acres. The duty here is rendered as a per-acre charge, matching the structure of Mary Conaway's Dogwood Valley leasehold but differing from the flat-sum loading duty of five shillings per annum applied to the Earle children's and Robert Girling's leases of the same regularisation. The two duty structures continued to operate in parallel. The covenants against altering fences and disposing of the lease without governor and council consent reproduced the standard 1711 framework restrictions. The fence-as-landmark provision tied the operative description to the annexed plan, and the disposal restriction kept the leasehold under continuing institutional supervision. William Cales as the western boundary holder reproduces the same boundary identification used in the freehold confirmation. The continued use of Cales here against the wider Coales family network indicates that the rendering held institutional standing within the Leach instruments specifically. Giles Smith as the eastern boundary holder reproduces the reciprocal mapping with Leach observed in the freehold confirmation. The matching boundary descriptions between the Leach freehold and Leach leasehold instruments, together with the cross-references to Giles Smith's own 4 August 1713 confirmation and leasehold at the head of Pleasant Valley, place all three holders within a tightly coordinated administrative cluster. The deed is incompletely engrossed, with the sealing date and the witness panel left blank in the manuscript. The pattern matches the matching incomplete state of the freehold confirmation processed in close sequence and the wider 1713 sitting's tolerance of suspended documents pending later completion. Speculations The pairing of the leasehold extension immediately north of the freehold core, with the leasehold opening onto Company waste on the same side, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional strategy of giving Isaac Leach a foothold for outward expansion at the boundary between regularised settlement and unenclosed Company ground. The leasehold operated as a buffer zone that the Company could recover at the end of the twenty-one-year term if frontier conditions changed, while preserving the perpetual freehold as the operative residential and productive core. The incomplete engrossment of both the freehold confirmation and the leasehold extension, with sealing dates and witnesses left blank in matching fashion, points to a coordinated suspended-document treatment of the Isaac Leach holdings. The Company perhaps held both instruments open for completion at a single later sealing event when Leach could attend in person and the witnesses could be assembled. The institutional pattern of suspended pairing across confirmation and |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | leasehold of the same holder operated as a procedural efficiency rather than as a sign of any defect in title.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
| 215 | 210          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Hon[our]ab[le] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies [Comp[any]s Lease] Do hereby Demise Lett and Sett unto Thomas Harper Free Planter one [to] Parcel of Land Scituate and being in S[wa]nleys Valley and doth contain Ten Acres More less [Tho[mas] Harper] Butting &amp; bounding upon y[e] North East South and West, upon the said Honourable Companys Wast Land To have and to hold The said Premises to him the said Thomas Harper, his Executors Administrators and Assignes for the Terme and Time of Twenty one years commen cing from the Twenty fifth day of March One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen Upon Condition That he the said Thomas Harper his Executors Administ[rators] and Assignees shall always do and bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lady Queen Anne her Heires and Successors and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all the Laws and constitutions of the said Island, And yearly pay at the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25th day of March) the Annuall Rent and Sum of Four Shillings per Acre besides one shilling duty being in all Five Shillings per Shill[ing] in good and Currant money of the said Island unto the said Honourable Comp[any] and their Successors, And that he the said Thomas Harper his Executors Administ[rators] and Assignes shall and do at the Expiration of the said Terme of Twenty one years Leave the fences about the said Land in as good repaire as they are now and not to alter the said sfences which are the Land marks and which will occasion the alteration of the Plott hereunto Annexed, nor dispose of this Lease or interest in the same without consent of the Governour and Council for the time being In witnesse whereof the said Honourable United Company and Lord Proprietors to these Presents have sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this First [...] day of December One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen Tho[mas] HarperSealed and Delivered In the Presence of | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Thomas Harper, free planter, a parcel of land in Swanleys Valley containing ten acres more or less. The parcel was bounded northwards, eastwards, southwards and westwards by the Honourable Company's waste land. The lease ran for twenty-one years from 25 March 1713. Thomas Harper, his executors, administrators and assigns were bound to bear true faith and allegiance to Queen Anne, her heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. Rent was payable yearly on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, at four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, in good and current island money. At the end of the term Thomas Harper was to leave the fences in as good repair as they then stood. He was not to alter the fences, which served as the landmarks and would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. He was not to dispose of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 1 December 1713. Thomas HarperSealed and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The lease extended a fully isolated ten-acre parcel in Swanleys Valley to Thomas Harper, free planter, with all four boundaries against Company waste land. The parcel sat as a documented enclave within unenclosed Company ground, similar to John Knipe's four-acre frontier leasehold at the bottom of Pleasant Valley and to the small isolated parcels confirmed under the 1711 framework at the outer margins of regularised settlement. Swanleys Valley appears here as a working byname, joining the topographical names recorded across the 1711-1713 regularisation. The valley name carries no documented earlier use and may represent a previously unrecorded location or a variant rendering of an established place name. The phrase ten acres more or less attached to the area description gave the survey a small margin of variation, recognising that the cartographic record might not exactly match the operative ground. The annual rent of four shillings per acre plus a one-shilling duty produced a per-acre rate of five shillings, generating a total annual burden of two pounds ten shillings on the ten acres. The duty here is rendered as a per-acre charge, matching the structures of Mary Conaway's Dogwood Valley leasehold and Isaac Leach's Pleasant Valley leasehold processed in the same regularisation cycle. The per-acre duty operated as the dominant pattern across the December 1713 leases. The covenants against altering fences and disposing of the lease without governor and council consent reproduced the standard 1711 framework restrictions, with the fence-as-landmark provision tying the operative description to the annexed plan and the disposal restriction keeping the leasehold under continuing institutional supervision. Thomas Harper appears here with the free planter classification. The Harper surname connects to several earlier holders, including the deceased Thomas Harper senior named in the chain-of-title recital for the Fort James Valley dwelling sold by George Dweight to William Marsden in April 1709 and by Marsden to Thomas Toster in March 1711. The 1709 sale established Thomas Harper senior as a substantial urban Fort James Valley property holder before his death. The present Thomas Harper is |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | distinct from Thomas Harper senior and from the earlier Thomas Harper, planter, who appeared as the seller of twenty acres at Sarahs Valley to James Casthope in March 1694 and to Thomas Goodwin in May 1694. A previous Thomas Harper had also taken a forward-dated twelve-acre leasehold on 4 August 1713 under the Main Ridge towards Manatee Bay head, commencing 25 March 1714. The present Swanleys Valley leasehold, commencing 25 March 1713 and sealed on 1 December 1713, represents a separate same-name allocation back-dated to the standard 1712-1713 commencement window. Two leasehold parcels held by Thomas Harper may indicate that the institutional record drew distinct grants under variant locations to the same holder or that two Harper free planters operated under similar identification within the regularisation. The lease was sealed at the Castle in James Valley on 1 December 1713, the same date that produced Mary Conaway's Dogwood Valley leasehold. Both leases share the December processing window, indicating that a sub-sitting at the close of the calendar year produced a coordinated cohort of frontier leasehold extensions on outlying ground. Thomas Harper signed in his own hand, placing him within the literate circle of free planters and artisans who could attest their own instruments. The absence of any recorded witness panel and the lack of a visible council quorum point to the reduced institutional procedure used for routine leasehold extensions at small administrative gatherings outside the major coordinated sittings. Speculations The sealing of the Thomas Harper Swanleys Valley leasehold on 1 December 1713, alongside Mary Conaway's Dogwood Valley leasehold processed on the same day, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional pattern of clearing routine frontier extensions at end-of-year smaller sittings. The Company used the December window to process individual leases that did not require the reciprocal-boundary coordination of the major 4 August 1713 sitting, with the modest witness requirements and the smaller administrative footprint enabling efficient processing of outlying allocations. The fully isolated configuration of the parcel within Company waste on all four sides, combined with the back-dated 25 March 1713 commencement, perhaps points to a regularisation of established working occupation rather than a fresh allocation. Thomas Harper may have been cultivating or improving the ten acres for some months before the December 1713 sealing, with the back-dated lease bringing his existing operations within the documentary regime. The Company's tolerance of such retrospective formalisation operated as a flexible mechanism for drawing frontier activity into the 1711 framework as practical circumstances permitted.  |
| 216 | 211          | Know all Men by these presents that I George Earne of the Island of S[t] Helena Merchant, Do hereby acknowledge and bind my Self my Heirs Executors Administrators and Assignes to stand justly Indebted to John Goodwin the Surv[ivor] [Geo[rge] Earne] | Island of St Helena George Earne, merchant of the island of St Helena, acknowledged himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns bound to John Goodwin, the surviving executor of Captain Thomas Goodwin, for the true                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|--------------------|-----------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | [Exec[uto]r] of the True payment thereof to be made to the aforementioned John Goodwin his Heires Executors and Administr[ato]rs [to Cap[tain]] I have hereby tied of my Heire] Executors Administrators or assigns formly by these presents appeared the Hundred [Goodwin Cap[ta]in] Whereof I have hereunto sett my hand and Seal this Fourteenth [...] day of February One Thousand Seven hundred and Thirteen [Comp[any]] The Condition of this Obligation is such that whereas Cap[ta]in Thomas Goodwin of the Island of by his Last Will and Testament constitute Frances Goodwin of his Wife his Sole Heir and Executrix leaving in [...] of [...]parsell that she might to enableth the Better to provide for her Children as well all the real as personall Estate, She the said Frances Goodwin having resolved to alter her Condition and out of her affection to the above bound George Earne to receive him in Mariage on this this presents agree to the Articles of Marriage following [Imp[rimi]s] That the said George Earne shall well and truly Pay or cause to be paid to each of the Children viz Thomas Goodwin Sarah Goodwin Richard George Frances Goodwin Elizabeth Goodwin the Sum of one Hundred [...] Currant pound Sterling either at their day of marriage of age and in case of Mortality the Survivor [...] Shall be equally [...]ed Sealed amongst her Brethren [2[d]ly] That the above bound George Earne shall for and in Consideration of the said Sum of [...] pounds reposed in his Inrust bring up the said Children above named in such Education and necessary as his owne Children leaving to the abovenamed Frances Goodwin a full and ample Powe[r] to act therein as she shall think most Expedient [3[d]ly] The above bound George Earne doth further Obligate himself beyond what the abovemention[ed] bond Expressed in all the Plate Linn[en] in the possession of the above said Frances Goodwin to make good to the Children of her Children being for the Sum of [...] Hundred pounds [4[t]hly] The said George Earne doth by these presents bind himself and his owne Goods Real and Personall that if any Children for the said Frances of Frances Goodwins Children being for the Sum of five hundred pounds and by any willfull Action in the said Earne up more fall to the [...] and proceeds above mentioned to agree thereto after the said George Earne Marriage with the said Frances Goodwin Sealed Signd and Delivered George Earne in the Pres[en]ce of us no Stampt paper being upon the Island Richard Garling Joshua Johnson To all Christian People To whome these presents shall come I Frances Goodwin the Relict of Thomas Goodwin of the Island of S[t] Helena Widdow send greeting in our Lord God Everlasting Know yee that [Frances Goodwin] I the said Frances Goodwin for and in consideration of the Love good Will and affection which I have and doe bear [to] towards my well beloved Son John Goodwin, the Son of Thomas Goodwin aforesaid have given and granted [John Goodwin] and by these p[rese]nts Doe freely and absolutely give and grant to the said John Goodwin his heire Executors Administrators and Assignes all the Right Title and interest that I have or may have to or stand assigned the real Estate belonging unto John Goodwin the Brother of the abovenam'd Thomas Goodwin willed by his last will and testament &amp; T[el]queath part of his Real Estate to his Son Robert Goodwin who is Lately deceased in his Minority, with the whole Lands and Tens of cropping and arrecicing from the same since this S[ai]d Robert Goodwin's Death by any meanes of mortality whatsoever to his or their own proper use and behoofe, for ever To have and to Hold all and Singullar the said Frances Goodwin real Estate as aforesaid unto the Said John Goodwin his Heire Executors Administrators and | payment of the sums to be made to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns under the present obligation. George Earne set his hand and seal to the bond on 14 February 1713. The condition of the obligation was that Captain Thomas Goodwin of the island, by his last will and testament, had constituted his wife Frances Goodwin his sole heir and executrix, leaving her in [...] of [...] so that she might be the better enabled to provide for her children, with all the real and personal estate. Frances Goodwin, having resolved to alter her condition and out of her affection towards George Earne, agreed to receive him in marriage on the terms of the articles of marriage following. First, George Earne was to pay, or cause to be paid, to each of the children Thomas Goodwin, Sarah Goodwin, Richard George Frances Goodwin, and Elizabeth Goodwin, the sum of one hundred [...] current pounds sterling, either on the child's day of marriage or on coming of age. In case of the death of any child, the survivor's share was to be equally divided among the remaining brothers and sisters. Secondly, George Earne, in consideration of the sum of [...] pounds reposed in his trust, was to bring up the named children in such education and necessities as his own children, leaving to Frances Goodwin full and ample power to act in the matter as she thought most expedient. Thirdly, George Earne further obligated himself beyond the bond expressed above in respect of all the plate and linen in the possession of Frances Goodwin, to make good to her children the sum of [...] hundred pounds. Fourthly, George Earne bound himself and his own goods, real and personal, that if any of Frances Goodwin's children should be entitled to the sum of five hundred pounds, and by any wilful action of Earne should fall short of the sums and proceeds above mentioned, he agreed to make good the shortfall after his marriage with Frances Goodwin. Sealed, signed and delivered by George Earne in the presence of Richard Garling and Joshua Johnson. No stamped paper was available on the island. To all Christian people to whom these presents come, Frances Goodwin, the relict of Thomas Goodwin of the island of St Helena, widow, sent greeting in our Lord God everlasting. For the love, good will and affection that she bore towards her well-beloved son John Goodwin, the son of Thomas Goodwin, Frances Goodwin freely and absolutely gave and granted to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns all the right, title and interest that she had or might have to the real estate belonging to John Goodwin, the brother of Thomas Goodwin. That brother had, by his last will and testament, bequeathed part of his real estate to his son Robert Goodwin, who had lately died in his minority. The gift included all the lands and the income from cropping and use of those lands since Robert Goodwin's death by whatever means of mortality. The grant was to John Goodwin's own proper use and benefit for ever. The gift was to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns from then on as his proper goods for ever absolutely, without any claim, vexation or contradiction from Frances Goodwin. Frances Goodwin, of her own free will and accord, put John Goodwin in possession of the property without any further ceremony. Frances Goodwin set her hand and seal to the deed on 14 February 1713. The mark of Frances F G Goodwin Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Richard Garling and Joshua Johnson. No stamped paper was available on the island. Both of the above-written Company deeds were attested as true copies of the originals by John Alexander. Interpretations The two instruments together formed a coordinated family settlement on the eve of Frances Goodwin's |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|--------------------|-----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | assignes from henceforth as his or their proper Goods for ever absolutely without any meaner of Claim Vexation or contradiction of y[e] said Frances Goodwin have absolutely and of my own free will and accord put the said John Goodwin in Possession thereof without any further Ceremony In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seale the fourteenth day of February in the Year of our Lord one Thousand Seven hundred and Twelve The Frances F G Goodwin mark ofSealed Signd and Delivered in the Pres[en]ce of us no Stampt paper being upon y[e] IslandRichard Garling Both the above written Comp[any]Joshua Johnson of y[e] Origin[al] attested by Jn[o]Alexander | remarriage to George Earne. The bond of obligation secured the position of her children by Thomas Goodwin against the institutional risk that her new husband might absorb the family estate through his marital rights over her interest. The companion deed of gift redirected a separate inheritance line, derived through her late brother-in-law John Goodwin and his deceased minor son Robert Goodwin, to her eldest son John Goodwin before any marital incidents could attach. The bond of obligation operated as a pre-marital articles-of-marriage agreement. George Earne bound himself in advance of the marriage to pay each named child of Frances and Thomas Goodwin a fixed sum of one hundred pounds sterling on their marriage or coming of age, with survivorship provisions equalising the share among the remaining siblings on any death. The mechanism converted parental responsibility into contractual obligation, fixing the children's portions before the marriage altered the legal position of the maternal estate. The four named Goodwin children Thomas, Sarah, Richard George Frances and Elizabeth represent a previously undocumented broader family beyond the John Goodwin (the younger) confirmed in his own fifty-two-acre freehold on 4 August 1713. The Richard George Frances compound name suggests a single child carrying multiple given names rather than two separate children, reflecting the family practice of recording the father, the previous king and the family name within a single child's identification. The third clause extended Earne's obligations to the plate and linen in Frances's possession, marking out a separate category of movable household assets distinct from the cash portions. The structure preserved both the cash inheritance and the movable family goods against any future creditor claim or marital disposition by Earne. The fourth clause covered a contingent five-hundred-pound liability, with Earne agreeing to make good any shortfall arising from his own wilful action after the marriage. The contingent guarantee gave the children institutional protection against any deliberate dissipation of the estate by their stepfather. The companion deed of gift restructured a separate inheritance chain. John Goodwin, the brother of Thomas Goodwin, had died and bequeathed part of his real estate to his own son Robert Goodwin. Robert had since died in his minority, with the lands and the income from cropping since his death falling open. Frances Goodwin, as the surviving party with a claim through her late husband, transferred her entire interest in this chain to her son John Goodwin. The gift consolidated the wider Goodwin family ground in the eldest son's hands before the Earne marriage closed the matter. The Richard Garling and Joshua Johnson witness pair appears on both instruments, sealed on the same day. The coordinated processing through a single witness panel reinforces that both deeds were part of a single pre-marital settlement event held privately rather than at a major Castle sitting. The phrase no stamped paper being upon the island appears on both instruments, reproducing the institutional notation observed earlier on the Mary Jewister slave gift of February 1712. The repeated notation gave continuing institutional recognition to the absence of formal taxed paper, protecting the deeds against any later technical challenge based on paper-stamping requirements. The 14 February 1713 dating falls under the old calendar reckoning and converts forward to 14 February 1714 in modern style. The marriage articles therefore predate the Earne-Goodwin marriage of 25 May 1715, when George Earne (the same merchant under variant rendering) and his wife Frances sold Captain Goodwin's House to Henry Francis for two hundred and eighty-five pounds. The bond appears in the records under the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | rendering George Earne, while the May 1715 sale used George Carne. Frances Goodwin's marking F G as her signature, rather than signing in her own hand, places her among the unlettered female holders who relied on the documentary regime rather than on personal literacy. The mark contrasts with the in-own-hand signatures of George Earne and the witnesses, reflecting the unevenness of literacy across the elite circle. John Alexander's attestation closes both deeds as true copies of the original, continuing his long-standing register role and his certification of documentary authenticity. Speculations The construction of a four-tier obligation in the bond, ascending from individual children's portions, through education and maintenance, to plate and linen, and finally to a contingent five-hundred-pound guarantee, perhaps reflects a deliberately layered approach to securing the children's position against the unknown consequences of their mother's remarriage. By committing Earne to escalating tiers of obligation, the settlement provided cascading institutional protection against different categories of risk: economic dissipation, neglect of education, alienation of household property, and wilful misconduct. The layered structure converted the marriage from a private family decision into a formal financial arrangement enforceable against Earne's own estate. The simultaneous execution of the Robert Goodwin inheritance redirection alongside the marriage articles points to a deliberate strategy of removing the John Goodwin (Thomas's brother) ground from Frances's marital estate before the Earne wedding. By transferring the inheritance to her son John on the same day as the bond, Frances perhaps closed off any future claim by Earne against the wider Goodwin family ground that had reached her through her late brother-in-law's line. The two-track settlement preserved the principal Goodwin estate within the existing family while opening the marriage to Earne on terms protective of the children's specific portions. The contingent five-hundred-pound guarantee in the fourth clause, predicated on wilful action by Earne to defeat the children's portions, perhaps reflects an institutional acknowledgement that pre-marital settlements alone were not sufficient to prevent misconduct by a remarried stepfather. The wilful action language gave the children's interest a remedy specifically targeted at deliberate misdealing, distinct from ordinary commercial misfortune or honest failure. The construction provided a long-term hedge against the most likely sources of family conflict arising from a remarried widow's stepchildren. |
| 217 | 212          | Island St Helena Articles of Agreement Indented made &amp; fully concluded upon this 26 July 17[14] Between Antipas Tovey Gent of y[e] one part and Richard Swallow planter of the other part Therewith That the said Richard Swallow for &amp; in consideration of three [Antipas Tovey] men Blacks known by the Name of K[a]tea, Lewis, &amp; Plaire to Likewise Ten Bonds upon [to] Orlando Bagley of y[e] Island planter, one for Twenty &amp; the other for Thirteen pounds odd [Rich[ard] Swallow] money (or part paid) immediately to be Assigned and delivered by the said Antipas Tovey into the hands of y[e] s[ai]d Richard Swallow, to provide for and bring up Margaret Bagley an Infant the only Surviveing Issue of Thomas Bagley Decl[ared] until She come of Age or is Married and at that time the said Richard Swallow doth bind himself his heirs or Assigns to pay unto her, the full Summ of one Hundred and Thirty Pounds, &amp; in case the Worship[ful] Governour &amp; Councell do find that Land which is now in the posses[s]ion of Thomas Sargent | Island of St Helena Articles of agreement, indented, were made and concluded on 26 July 1714 between Antipas Tovey, gentleman, of the one part, and Richard Swallow, planter, of the other part. Richard Swallow received from Antipas Tovey three slave men called K[a]tea, Lewis and Plaire, together with ten bonds owed by Orlando Bagley, planter of the island. One bond was for £20 0s 0d and another for £13 0s 0d odd money (or part paid). Antipas Tovey was to assign and deliver the slaves and the bonds immediately into Richard Swallow's hands. In return, Richard Swallow undertook to provide for and bring up Margaret Bagley, an infant and the only surviving issue of the deceased Thomas Bagley, until she came of age or was married. At that time Richard Swallow, his heirs or assigns were to pay her the full sum of £130 0s 0d. If the Worshipful Governor and Council found that the land then in the possession of Thomas Sargent properly belonged to Margaret Bagley as successor to the deceased Thomas Bagley, the land was to be delivered into                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | doth properly belong to Margaret Tovey as Successour to Tho[mas] Bagley Deceas[ed] the said Land is to be delivered into the hands of Rich[ard] Swallow, to pay the Hon[ourable] Company's Rents &amp; Revenues and to pay Margaret Bagley at the time appointed Forty Six Pounds more, and in case the s[ai]d Margaret Bagley die before she come of age or is married, that the said Richard Swallow at her decease do pay back to Mr Tovey the summ of Eighty Pounds, and thereof the bond of Twenty Pound at the time when it becomes pay[ab]le and Thirty Pounds more at the time she would have been at Age, the whole being, One Hundred &amp; Thirty Pounds and in case the aforesaid Land be put into the posses[s]ion of Richard Swallow that instead of Thirty pounds to do Pay unto Antipas Tovey Seventy Six Pound at the time she would have been at Age and Richard Swallow have Eighteen months time for removing provisions out of the Land when the time is expired and for the true performing of all and every the Covenants and Agreements herein contained Each party doth bind himself his heirs Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes unto Each other, by these p[rese]nts In Witness Whereof they have hereunto Interchangeably sett their hands and Seale, the day and Year above Written Rich[ard] SwallowSigned Sealed &amp; Delivered in the Presence ofJn[o] Alexander Edward Holliwell | Richard Swallow's hands. He was then to pay the Honourable Company's rents and revenues on the land, and to pay Margaret Bagley a further £46 0s 0d at the time appointed. If Margaret Bagley died before she came of age or was married, Richard Swallow was, on her death, to repay Antipas Tovey the sum of £80 0s 0d. The repayment included the bond of £20 0s 0d at the time when it became payable and a further £30 0s 0d at the time she would have come of age, with the whole repayment standing at £130 0s 0d. If the land had been put into Richard Swallow's possession, Richard Swallow was to pay Antipas Tovey £76 0s 0d (instead of £30 0s 0d) at the time she would have come of age. Richard Swallow was to have eighteen months to remove provisions from the land at the end of the term. Each party bound himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to the other for the true performance of every covenant and agreement contained in the articles. Both parties set their hands and seals interchangeably on the day and year written above. Richard SwallowSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of John Alexander and Edward Holliwell. Interpretations The articles constructed a guardianship arrangement under which Richard Swallow took on the maintenance of Margaret Bagley, the surviving infant daughter of the deceased Thomas Bagley, in return for an immediate transfer of slave labour and debt instruments. The instrument converted the responsibility of guardianship into a self-funded contractual operation, with the assets transferred to Swallow generating both the means of maintenance and the source of the deferred payments owed to the ward on her coming of age or marriage. The three slave men K[a]tea, Lewis and Plaire were treated as fungible working assets transferred alongside the financial instruments. Their labour value supported the cost of Margaret Bagley's upkeep during her minority, with the perpetual ownership passing to Swallow as the maintaining guardian. The arrangement parallels the Doveton apprenticeship of Susanna with Robert Leech in March 1708, where the black boy Peter's services were transferred for the term to support the placement, although in the present case the transfer is outright rather than for a fixed term. The ten bonds owed by Orlando Bagley, totalling at least £33 0s 0d odd money across the two specified instruments, formed the second tier of the asset transfer. Swallow took over the collection of the Orlando Bagley debts as part of his consideration, becoming the assignee of the existing creditor position. The construction routed the debts of one Bagley family member (Orlando) towards the maintenance of another (the infant Margaret, daughter of the deceased Thomas), with Antipas Tovey acting as the institutional intermediary in the family transfer. The £130 0s 0d undertaking at majority or marriage gave Margaret a substantial portion fixed at the time of the contract, providing her with institutional protection against the uncertainties of her minority. The deferred payment structure converted the guardianship into a long-term obligation enforceable against Swallow's heirs, executors, administrators and assigns through standard contractual mechanisms. The conditional clause concerning the land in Thomas Sargent's possession opens a question of disputed title within the wider Bagley estate. If the governor and council determined that the land properly belonged to Margaret Bagley as her father's successor, Swallow was to take possession on her behalf, paying the Honourable Company's rents and revenues during his tenure and adding a further £46 0s 0d to her portion at majority. The provision reveals that Thomas Bagley's estate included |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | disputed ground in the hands of a third party, with the resolution turning on a future council adjudication. The mortality-of-the-ward clause structured the consequences if Margaret died before coming of age or marrying. Swallow's obligation reverted to repaying Antipas Tovey £80 0s 0d in total, comprising the £20 0s 0d bond at its maturity and £30 0s 0d at the date Margaret would have come of age. The total of £130 0s 0d mentioned at the close of the clause reflects the rounded sum across the original portion calculation. The two outcomes (£130 0s 0d to Margaret if she survived, £130 0s 0d repayable to Tovey if she did not) gave Tovey institutional security against the loss of his initial transfer regardless of Margaret's mortality. The land-in-possession contingency added a further £76 0s 0d adjustment if the Sargent land had been transferred to Swallow. The increased return reflected the value of the productive ground passing through Swallow's hands, with the upward adjustment compensating Tovey for the larger asset base ultimately deployed. The eighteen-month removal-of-provisions period at the end of the term granted Swallow a transitional window to harvest and remove crops and provisions from the land after the contract expired. The provision recognised the agricultural cycle as institutionally distinct from the formal end of the contractual term, with growing crops protected against immediate forfeiture. Antipas Tovey appears here as gentleman, marking his elevation in social status alongside his register role. His earlier 18 June 1713 gift to Mary Maxwell, the 22 December 1714 attestation of the Carne reassignment, and the 5 September 1712 Hayes-Wood witness role all placed him within the literate circle, but the gentleman designation here gives him a formal social rank. Richard Swallow as planter, taking on Margaret's guardianship, reproduces his earlier trustee role for the Greentree family ground confirmed in the 4 August 1713 sitting (where he held leasehold for and on behalf of Benjamin Greentree and possessed the John Greentree orphans' lands). His pattern of acting as institutional intermediary across multiple orphan estates places him within a recognised role of substantial planter guardian. The witnesses John Alexander and Edward Holliwell reproduce the standard register-plus-one panel attached to private deeds of the period. Edward Holliwell appears here as a new individual in the documented circle. Speculations The conditional structure of the agreement, with one financial outcome if Margaret survived to majority or marriage and a different outcome if she died in minority, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional design to allocate the mortality risk between Tovey and Swallow without litigation. The contract converted the demographic uncertainty of infant survival into a calculated financial arrangement, with both parties accepting a fixed return regardless of the outcome. The structure resembles a hedged investment more than a charitable guardianship, with Swallow effectively acquiring slave labour and debt instruments today in return for a deferred payment that depended on the ward's life span. The further conditional clause concerning the Sargent land, with the additional £46 0s 0d payable to Margaret if the land was recovered, perhaps points to an active dispute over Thomas Bagley's estate in which Antipas Tovey held an interest as the family arranger. By making Swallow's obligation contingent on the council's future determination, the contract enlisted Swallow as an interested party to support the title recovery, with his own additional payment to Margaret turning on the success of the institutional adjudication. The arrangement aligned Swallow's financial incentive with Tovey's pursuit of the disputed ground. The transfer of three named slaves to Swallow as part of the consideration, with the corresponding mortality-of- |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | the-ward repayment obligation set at a fixed sum rather than at a returned-asset basis, perhaps reveals an asymmetric treatment of human and financial capital within the contract. Swallow took the slaves outright, with no obligation to return them if Margaret died, while the financial instruments were calibrated against the survival outcome. The structure perhaps reflects that the labour value of the slaves had already been absorbed into Swallow's working operation by the date of any future contingency, while the bond debts could still be re-tracked through the mortality-adjusted accounting.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
| 218          | 213          | Island St Helena. The two Letts and severall Sam[uel] Algate Deed of Sale of all his father in Law's Tho[mas] Earles Estate where of he is personell &amp; by Marriage Agreen[men]t with the Da[ugh]ter of Whereas Sam[uel] Algate Corp[ora]l of the [...] &amp; on the behalf of Mary Earle Daughter to Tho[mas] Earle Earle in the [...] of [...] Mary Earle [...] Whereas Samuel Algate Corp[ora]l and Mary Erle Spinster, Intendeing by Gods leave to Solemnize a Marriage with Each other, very Shortly, and for that the s[ai]d Mary [Sam[uel] Algate] Earle having an Estate consisting of Eighteen Acres of Erbl Land and a House Situate in [to] James Valley, being formerly belonging to one Theodor Wilkin dec[ea]sed and Since in the posses[s]ion [Orlando] of The Earle Aforesaid Doe the said Sam[uel] Algate in the knowledge consent and Privety of her [Bagley &amp;] the said Margaret Earle Doth for himself his Heirs Execu[to]rs heires &amp; assigns Covenant Agree [Cha[r]les Steward] sett and make over unto Orlando Bagley and Charles Steward, all and Singular the s[ai]d eighteen[...] Eighteen acres of Land and a House in James Valley, to do and Dispose of at their Will and pleasure, it being the true meaning and intent of this Present writeing that the s[ai]d Sam[uel] Algate shall not pretend to make Sale or any other way Dispose of y[e] afores[ai]d p[re]misses to any person whosoever to prevent any Mischeife or Ill consequence that may happen to the s[ai]d Mary Earle by disposing of the afores[ai]d p[re]misses untill such time as he is married and goes off the Island or he promotes to Effsoon[?] by his Summer Repping hereby acquitting his full power right Title Claime or Demand to Either the aforesaid Land or house, Delivering the same by this presence Writeing into the pos[s]ession of them the s[ai]d Orlando Bagley &amp; Charles Steward their Heirs &amp; but w[i]th this proviso that after the Sclemnization of s[ai]d Marriage and Licence to Depart of s[ai]d Island then to receive the s[ai]d house and Land into his s[ai]d Algates Posses[s]ion in order of makeing Sale of y[e] same taking the amount with him for the Suppoll and maintenance of his intended wife Mary Earle, In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seale this Eight day of April 1714 Samuell AlgateSealed Sign'd &amp; deliver'd in the Plance of: True Copy.Jn[o] Alexander being Examin'd Sam[uel] BrowneAntipas ToveyIsland St Helena Know all men by these P[rese]nts y[a]t I Samuell Algate of the s[ai]d Island Corp[ora]l [Sam[uel] Algate] For and in Consideration of the Sum of one Hundred and Seventy pounds, where of one third [to] and ten pounds of the abovesaid Sum to be Repaid in y[e] Hon[our]able Companys Stores and the other thirty [Cha[r]les Steward] pounds to be paid in Cash by Charles Steward of the s[ai]d Island Free Holder whereof I do twenty acknowledge ye Receipt and my Self therewith fully and intirely Satisfied have bargaind Sold sett over and Deliverd and by these p[rese]nts according to y[e] use and due form of Law in that case made and provided do bargain sett over and deliver unto y[e] s[ai]d Charles Steward Eighteen Acres of Free Land w[i]th all the | Island of St Helena Samuel Algate, corporal, and Mary Earle, spinster, intended by God's leave to marry shortly. Mary Earle had an estate of eighteen acres of arable land and a house in James Valley, formerly belonging to the deceased Theodor Wilkin and since in the possession of Thomas Earle. With the knowledge and consent of Mary Earle, Samuel Algate covenanted, agreed and made over to Orlando Bagley and Charles Steward, for himself, his heirs, executors and assigns, all of the eighteen acres of land and the house in James Valley, to be held and disposed of at their will and pleasure. The true meaning of the writing was that Algate could not sell or otherwise dispose of the premises to any person whatever, in order to prevent any mischief or ill consequence to Mary Earle through disposal of the property, until the time he was married and went off the island or otherwise [...]. Algate gave up his full power, right, title, claim or demand to either the land or the house, delivering them by the present writing into the possession of Orlando Bagley and Charles Steward and their heirs. The arrangement was subject to a proviso that after the solemnisation of the marriage and the licence to depart the island, Algate was to receive the house and land back into his own possession in order to sell it and take the proceeds with him for the support and maintenance of his intended wife Mary Earle. Samuel Algate set his hand and seal to the deed on 8 April 1714. Samuel AlgateSealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Samuel Browne and Antipas Tovey. True copy, examined by John Alexander. Island of St Helena Samuel Algate, corporal of the island, in consideration of £170 0s 0d, of which £140 0s 0d was to be repaid in the Honourable Company's stores and the other £30 0s 0d to be paid in cash by Charles Steward, freeholder of the island, acknowledged receipt and full satisfaction. Algate bargained, sold, set over and delivered to Charles Steward eighteen acres of free land with all the effects, house, land and tenants' goods, as the property had been formerly left by his deceased father-in-law Thomas Earle, except one house at the [...] to have paid to hire that Algate bargained separately unto Charles Steward, his executors, administrators and assigns. Algate covenanted for himself, his executors and administrators that he would warrant and for ever defend the property against all manner of persons by the present writing. Samuel Algate set his hand and seal to the deed on 8 May 1714. Samuel AlgateSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of Antipas Tovey, P[h]arpee H Litz and Richard Brown. True copy, examined. Interpretations The two instruments together constructed a sequenced protective arrangement around Mary Earle's estate, with the first deed of April 1714 freeing Algate's power of disposition by transferring the eighteen-acre James Valley estate into trustee hands before the marriage, and the second deed of May 1714 then completing the outright sale of the same property to Charles Steward one month later. The interval of one month between the trustee assignment and the absolute sale reveals that the |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Effects a House Land and Tenants goods &amp;c as it was formerly Left by my Father in Law Tho[mas] Earle Deceased Except one house at y[e] [...] to have paid to hire that I bargained pleasantly unto y[e] said Charles Steward his Execut[o]rs administrators and Assigns and do promes me a behave of all y[e] Charles Steward by Covenan[t] Promise &amp; Assigns to Live, And the Samuell Algate Covenant for my self my Execu[to]rs Adminstrato[r]s do bargain p[ar]ticipate unto y[e] s[ai]d Charles Steward his Executors Administrato[r]s and Assigns against all and all manner of Persons shall and will warrant &amp; for ever Defend by these Pres[en]ts In Wit[n]es[s] where of with my Delivery of the s[ai]d bargain S[i]mp[l]y I have hereunto Set my hand and Seale, this Eighth Day of May one Thousand Seven Hundred and fourteenSamuell AlgateSigned Sealed and Delivered Tru[e] Copy being Examin[e]d in the Presence of us Antipas Tovey P[h]arpee H Litz Ric[hard] Brown | marriage had been solemnised within the intervening period, with the protective trust dissolving on completion of the wedding and the licence to depart the island. The eighteen-acre arable land and house in James Valley had passed through three documented holders by 1714. The original allotment had belonged to the deceased Theodor Wilkin, then reached the deceased Thomas Earle, and was now held by his daughter Mary Earle. The chain identifies Theodor Wilkin as an otherwise undocumented earlier holder and confirms that Thomas Earle held the James Valley parcel separately from the two-acre Sandy Bay confirmation given to his children John, Thomas and Mary on 4 August 1713. The pattern reveals that the Earle estate comprised multiple parcels across the island. Mary Earle as spinster, marrying Samuel Algate, corporal, places the marriage within the soldier-and-planter-daughter pattern documented across the records. The corporal designation marks Algate as a junior member of the garrison without independent landed standing, making the institutional protection of Mary's estate against his marital rights particularly significant. Without the trust arrangement, Algate's marital rights would have given him immediate control over the property and the power to dispose of it without Mary's consent. The interposition of Orlando Bagley and Charles Steward as trustees reproduces the joint-trustee role they had already taken in the August 1709 Fox mortgage, where they had jointly held the security for £32 0s 0d during Martha Fox's natural life. The same pair returns here as the trusted institutional intermediaries for managing family property at moments of remarriage or marital transition. The two senior figures provided cross-witness protection against any single-trustee misuse of the property. The proviso for Algate to receive the property back after the marriage and the licence to depart the island indicates that the trust was specifically designed for the transitional period only, dissolving once Algate was committed to leaving with Mary. The licence to depart the island reflects the institutional control the Company exercised over the movements of its personnel, with departure requiring formal authorisation rather than free choice. The trust mechanism kept the property out of Algate's reach until that institutional permission was granted, ensuring that the proceeds of any subsequent sale would actually fund Mary's support overseas rather than being absorbed by Algate before departure. The £170 0s 0d total price in the May 1714 sale comprised £140 0s 0d to be repaid in the Company's stores and £30 0s 0d in cash. The two-tier payment structure reveals the limited cash circulation on the island, with the bulk of the consideration routed through the Company's store credit system. The reference to repayment in stores indicates that Algate had a prior credit balance with the Company that Steward agreed to assume, or that the Company would extend store credit to Algate against Steward's payment. The construction parallels the £170 0s 0d Lufkin-Alexander sale of June 1712, also settled through Company store credit. The exception of one house in the May 1714 sale, with the wording incomplete in the manuscript, perhaps reflects a separate arrangement for an outbuilding or tenement included in the original Theodor Wilkin estate but excluded from the present sale. The phrase to have paid to hire suggests that the excepted house was subject to a separate rental arrangement that Algate retained or transferred separately. Charles Steward's purchase of the eighteen-acre James Valley estate adds substantially to his documented holdings. His earlier 4 August 1713 confirmation of seventeen acres under Sandy Bay Ridge and twenty-seven acres of leasehold across four parcels, combined with the present eighteen acres, brings his documented working estate to over sixty acres across multiple zones. The |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | continued expansion places him among the major accumulators of the 1713-1714 period. The witnesses to the April 1714 trust deed are Samuel Browne and Antipas Tovey, with John Alexander attesting as true copy examiner. The witnesses to the May 1714 sale deed are Antipas Tovey, P[h]arpee H Litz and Richard Brown. The variation in the witness panel between the two instruments reflects the distinct administrative occasions, with Tovey appearing on both as a continuing presence. Samuel Browne and Richard Brown are perhaps related individuals appearing under variant renderings, or two separate figures of the same surname. The P[h]arpee H Litz witness identification, with the manuscript unclear at multiple points, appears to record a distinctive name that the documentary regime preserved imperfectly. The reading suggests a non-English origin within the garrison or merchant circle, perhaps connected to one of the continental European holders documented elsewhere in the records such as Samuel Des Fontaine and Bartrant Audouart. Speculations The sequencing of trust deed and sale deed exactly one month apart, with the trust freezing Algate's disposition power before the wedding and the sale completing the disposal immediately after, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional design to compress the period of marital vulnerability for Mary Earle's estate into the narrowest possible window. The trust mechanism held the property out of Algate's reach during the most legally sensitive period, while the prompt post-marriage sale converted the immovable asset into portable funds for the couple's departure. The arrangement maximised the protective effect of the trust while minimising the institutional overhead of maintaining it long-term. The choice of Orlando Bagley and Charles Steward as the joint trustees, with Steward then emerging one month later as the buyer of the property, perhaps points to a pre-arranged disposal route in which Steward had agreed to purchase the estate from the outset. The trust deed of April 1714 may have placed the property in Steward's hands precisely because he was already the intended buyer, allowing him to take immediate working possession through the trust role while the formal price was negotiated and the marriage was completed. The £170 0s 0d sale of May 1714 then converted the existing institutional arrangement into a documented absolute transfer. The two-tier payment structure of £140 0s 0d in Company stores and £30 0s 0d in cash perhaps reveals the practical limits of cash settlement on the island in 1714. Even at the level of a substantial £170 0s 0d transaction between an outgoing corporal and a substantial freeholder, the bulk of the price had to be routed through the Company's institutional credit system rather than settled in coin. The pattern reinforces the dependence of the island economy on the Company's store as the principal medium of large-scale exchange. |
| 219 | 214          | St Helena Copy of Bill of Sale of a house of Jephthah Fowlers to John Finnwick the Heirs &amp;c[t] Know all Men by these P[rese]nts that I Jephthah Fowler Soldier, for and in consideration of the Sum of Thirty Nine Pounds in good and Currant money of the s[ai]d Island by me [Jephthah] already received of Jn[o] Finnwick Soldier the receipt of w[h]ich I hereby acknowledge and my self [Fowler] therewith to be fully Satisfyed Contented and paid, Have given granted bargained and Sold, and do [to] by these presents absolutely give grant bargain Sell and Deliver unto the said Jn[o] Finnwick, his [Jn[o] Finnwick] heirs Execut[o]rs Adm[i]n[i]strators and Assigns One Messuage House standing s[i]tuat[ed] in James Valley now adjoining to the house of Sam Augustus the Earles dec[ea]sed], Together with all and Singular, the | Island of St Helena, copy of a bill of sale of a house of Jephthah Fowler to John Finnwick, his heirs and successors Jephthah Fowler, soldier, in consideration of £39 0s 0d in good and current island money received from John Finnwick, soldier, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. Fowler gave, granted, bargained, sold and delivered to John Finnwick, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns one messuage house in James Valley, adjoining the house of Sam Augustus Earle, deceased, together with all the appurtenances belonging to it. The grant was to Finnwick and his heirs for ever, to hold, use and dispose of at their own will and pleasure. Fowler and his heirs, executors and administrators covenanted with Finnwick and his heirs that Finnwick and his successors might peaceably and quietly possess and                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Appurtenances thereunto belonging or any way appertaining To have and to Hold the said house w[ith] the Appurtenances above written, to him him the s[ai]d Finnwick and his heirs for ever, Do and Dispose of the same at his or their own Proper Will and pleasure, And it is further Covenanted &amp; agreed by and between the said Jephthah Fowler his Heirs Execut[o]rs and Administrat[o]rs and y[e] s[ai]d J[oh]n Finnwick his heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs or Assigns That He, They or any of them shall &amp; may from time to time and at all times hereafter Peaceably and quietly possess &amp; Enjoy the said hereby Bargained Premises, without any manner of y[e] Interruption or molestation whatsoever by any person or Persons Claiming n to y[e] same any Matter or thing in the said Premises, and do quiet all Persons w[hil]ch Warrants to Defend &amp; keep harmless the said J[oh]n Finnwick, his heirs &amp;c[t] In Witness whereof I have hereunto Set my hand &amp; Seale this 10 Day of June 17[14] his Jephthah + Fowler mark Sealed Sign'd &amp; D[elivered] in the Presence of us A True Copy being Examined Edward Halliwell Antipas Tovey Francis Junge Copy of a Deed of Sale of One house of [...] [Henry Francis] Henry Francis to Francis Wrangham [to] [Francis] Wrangham] Know all men by these presents That I Henry Francis of y[e] Island S[t] Helena Free holder for &amp; in consideration of the Sume of Seventy Pounds in good &amp; Currant money of the said Island to be well &amp; truly paid by or upon the 25 Day of June next ensueing the Date hereof by Francis Wrangham of y[e] s[ai]d Island Likewise free holder, or his heirs &amp;c Have given Granted Bargained &amp; Sold and do by these Presents De firmly &amp; Absolutely give grant bargain Sell &amp; deliver unto the aforesaid Francis Wrangham his heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs or Assigns one dwelling house Scituate in James Valley with all &amp; Singular y[e] Appurtenances &amp; priviledges of any nature &amp; kind Soever thereunto belonging or any way Appertaining there formerly the house of Prudence Sherwin next adjoining to the house of Richard Garling that Lately Ben[amin] Pickt deceas'd, together with One black Woman known by the name of Patt, To have &amp; to Hold the aforesaid house with its appurtenances, &amp; black Wench unto him the said Francis | enjoy the premises without interruption or molestation by any person claiming through Fowler. Fowler covenanted to defend and keep harmless John Finnwick and his heirs against all claims. Jephthah Fowler set his mark and seal to the deed on 10 June 1714. The mark + of Jephthah Fowler Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Edward Halliwell, Antipas Tovey and Francis Junge. A true copy, examined. Copy of a deed of sale of one house from Henry Francis to Francis Wrangham Henry Francis of the island of St Helena, freeholder, in consideration of £70 0s 0d in good and current island money to be paid by Francis Wrangham of the island, freeholder, or his heirs, on or before 25 June next, gave, granted, bargained, sold and delivered to Francis Wrangham, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns one dwelling house in James Valley, with all the appurtenances and privileges of any kind belonging to it, formerly the house of Prudence Sherwin, adjoining the house of Richard Garling that had lately belonged to the deceased Benjamin Pickt, together with one black woman known by the name of Patt. The grant was to Francis Wrangham, with the house, the appurtenances and the slave woman. Interpretations The Fowler-to-Finnwick sale records a small soldier-to-soldier transaction in James Valley, with both parties identified as soldier and the transfer made in island money. The £39 0s 0d price places the house at the lower end of the urban range, similar to other modest dwellings in the garrison cluster around Fort James. The transaction reproduces the pattern of internal garrison property exchange documented across earlier records, such as the Ashby-Bodley transaction of May 1703 and the Higham-Bell sales of August 1704. Sam Augustus Earle as the deceased adjoining neighbour represents a new individual within the Earle family network. The Augustus middle name carries a distinctive identification, perhaps marking a connection with the metropolitan or continental practice of compound naming. His death now reaches the institutional record through the boundary reference. The quiet enjoyment covenant and the warranty to defend the property against all claims reproduce the standard urban conveyancing pattern. The mechanism gave Finnwick institutional protection against any later challenge by Fowler's creditors, heirs or assignees, with the warranty enforceable through Fowler's residual estate. Jephthah Fowler signed by mark, placing him among the unlettered soldier holders of the period. The mark reproduces the pattern of garrison members holding urban property without personal literacy. The witnesses Edward Halliwell, Antipas Tovey and Francis Junge place the sale within the Tovey-led literate circle of 1714, with Halliwell appearing as a recent addition to the witness panel alongside his July 1714 witnessing of the Tovey-Swallow guardianship deed. Francis Junge appears as a new individual, perhaps a continental European member of the garrison or merchant circle, paralleling the earlier appearances of names such as Samuel Des Fontaine and Bartrant Audouart. The second deed records a substantial £70 0s 0d urban sale from Henry Francis to Francis Wrangham, with the price double the Fowler-Finnwick transaction of the same month. The two adjoining sales reveal a graduated urban market within James Valley, with prices reflecting the size and condition of individual properties. The dwelling house had previously belonged to Prudence Sherwin, the same wife and attorney of the absent Thomas Sherwin who had sold the Chapel Valley tenement to Thomas Goodwin in July 1694 for £26 0s 0d. The James Valley house here represents a separate Sherwin holding distinct from the Chapel Valley tenement, |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | indicating that the Sherwins had held multiple urban properties before Prudence's departure from the island. The chain now reaches Henry Francis as the seller after passing through unrecorded intermediate stages. Richard Garling as the adjoining neighbour places his urban holdings beside the Sherwin house. The Garling identification here parallels the Robert Gurling freemason of the August 1713 Peak Gut confirmation, both perhaps representing variant renderings of the wider Gurling family network or distinct branches under similar surname. The deceased Benjamin Pickt as the prior holder of the Garling-adjoining house adds a new urban figure to the documented circle. His death and the transfer to Garling reach the institutional record only through the boundary reference, with no separate documentary chain established. The 25 June 1714 payment deadline indicates a deferred-payment arrangement, with Wrangham given approximately a month from the sale date to deliver the £70 0s 0d in island money. The pattern parallels the bonded-payment arrangements documented in earlier sales, such as the Casthoke-Wells phased payment of 1694. The slave woman known as Patt was included as part of the conveyance, treated as an appurtenance to the dwelling house alongside the privileges and physical elements of the property. The construction reproduces the integration of slave labour into urban property transfers, with the working asset moving with the building rather than being sold separately. Speculations The two June 1714 sales recorded in close sequence, with one at £39 0s 0d and the other at £70 0s 0d, perhaps reflect a coordinated period of James Valley property turnover at the start of the summer. The processing of multiple urban conveyances within a short window suggests that the market for garrison housing was active in mid-1714, with departing soldiers and rotating personnel creating opportunities for substantial freeholders such as Henry Francis to acquire and onward-sell urban property. The transfer of the slave woman Patt as part of the dwelling-house sale, rather than as a separate transaction, perhaps points to an institutional preference for keeping slave labour tied to specific residential properties. The arrangement allowed the buyer to take over the household with its existing working population in place, avoiding the costs and disruption of negotiating separate labour arrangements. The pattern integrates slavery into the routine machinery of urban property transfer. The transfer route by which the former Prudence Sherwin house reached Henry Francis, with no documented intermediate sales, perhaps reflects a private chain of disposition through executors, family members or close associates that the institutional register did not record. The Sherwins had been absent from the island by 1694, and the house may have passed through informal arrangements within the literate circle before Francis emerged as the documented holder by 1714. |
| 220 | 215          | Francis Wrangham &amp; his heirs for Ever to do &amp; dispose of at his or their Own proper Wills &amp; Pleasure And the said Henry Francis doth for himself his heirs Execut[o]rs &amp; Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs Covenant &amp; agree to &amp; with the said Francis Wrangham his heirs Executors Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs &amp; Assignes, that they, they, or any of them shall at all times here after Peaceably &amp; Quietly enjoy &amp; possess the before mentioned house &amp; black Wench Woman without any manner of claim Challenge or demand of me the said Henry Francis or my heirs &amp;c and from all persons claiming any right or Title thereto Do Warrant to Save &amp; keep harmless the said Francis Wrangham his heirs &amp;c In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Seal this Fifteenth day of March 1714 | Francis Wrangham and his heirs for ever, to use and dispose of at his own will and pleasure. Henry Francis covenanted and agreed with Francis Wrangham, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns that they should at all times thereafter peaceably and quietly possess and enjoy the house and slave woman without any claim, challenge or demand by Henry Francis or his heirs, and that he would warrant and keep harmless Francis Wrangham and his heirs against all persons claiming any right or title to the property. Henry Francis set his hand and seal to the deed on 15 March 1715. Henry Francis (seal) Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Joshua Johnson, James Vesey and Antipas Tovey. The above is a                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Henry Francis (Seal) Seal'd Sign'd &amp; deliv[er]ed in y[e] presence of The above is a true Copy from the Original Joshua Johnson Examin'd &amp; Enter'd by Order of Council of John Alexander the day of James Vesey Antipas Tovey The Receipt on the backside of the Said Deed is as foll[ows] (Vide:) I Do acknowledge to have received the full Sum of Seaventy pounds which is within mention'd for a House &amp; a Black Woman of Francis Wrangham I say received by me (Sign'd) Henry Francis Witness: Richard Garling True Copy Enter'd &amp; Examin'd Antipas Tovey Island St Helena Copy of a deed of Gift of Eli[s] Steward Wid[ow] to her Son Tho[mas] Steward Deceas'd Vi[de] To All Christian People to whom These presents Shall come, I Elizabeth Steward Widdow Send Greeting in Our Lord [Eliz[abeth] Steward] God Everlasting Know Ye That I the said Elizabeth Steward for &amp; [to] in consideration of the Love good Will &amp; affection which I have &amp; do bear [Tho[mas] Steward] towards my Well Beloved Son Thomas Steward &amp; Nephew [J[n]o] Long [J[r] John Long Son of John Long Sen[ior] &amp; Mary his Wife Have given and [obit] [Infant?] Granted, And by these presents Do freely clearly &amp; Absolutely give and Grant to the above named Thomas Steward his heirs Execut[o]rs Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs &amp; Assignes the Sum of Fifty Pounds in good &amp; Currant mony of the said Island as Also One heifer to be putt into a distinct Mark for all the Increas immediately to run on &amp; bring him a Stock &amp; in case of his the said Thomas Stewards Death before he attains to Age or Marriage that then I give the said Sum of fifty pounds with (turn to f[oli]o 218) the | true copy from the original, examined and entered by order of council by John Alexander. The receipt on the back of the deed read as follows. Henry Francis acknowledged the receipt of the full sum of £70 0s 0d, mentioned within, for a house and a slave woman of Francis Wrangham. Signed by Henry Francis. Witnessed by Richard Garling. True copy, entered and examined by Antipas Tovey. Island of St Helena, copy of a deed of gift of Elizabeth Steward, widow, to her son Thomas Steward, deceased To all Christian people to whom these presents come, Elizabeth Steward, widow, sent greeting in our Lord God everlasting. For the love, good will and affection that she bore towards her well-beloved son Thomas Steward, and her nephew John Long the younger, son of John Long senior and his wife Mary, Elizabeth Steward freely and absolutely gave and granted to Thomas Steward, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns the sum of £50 0s 0d in good and current island money, together with one heifer to be put into a distinct mark for all the increase to run on and immediately bring him a stock. If Thomas Steward died before he came of age or married, Elizabeth Steward gave the sum of £50 0s 0d with [...] Interpretations The completion of the Henry Francis to Francis Wrangham sale fixed the legal warranty against future claims by Francis, his heirs, executors and administrators, with the standard quiet enjoyment covenant giving Wrangham institutional protection against any later challenge. The seller's warranty represented the principal protection available to urban purchasers under early modern English property practice, transferring the risk of latent title defects from the buyer to the seller's residual estate. The 15 March 1715 dating of the deed (with the manuscript reading 1714 under the old calendar reckoning and converting forward to 1715 in modern style) places the sale in the spring of 1715, with the £70 0s 0d payment deadline of 25 June 1715 set approximately three months ahead. The deferred-payment structure gave Wrangham a substantial window to assemble the cash, while Henry Francis retained the institutional protection of the formal deed already sealed and delivered. The receipt endorsed on the back of the deed recorded the actual payment of the £70 0s 0d, with Henry Francis acknowledging receipt and Richard Garling witnessing the discharge. The two-part documentary structure (the principal deed and the back-endorsed receipt) reproduces the standard early modern practice of recording payment evidence on the same document as the conveyance, with the endorsement providing institutional proof that the consideration had moved. Joshua Johnson and James Vesey reappear as witnesses, both having attended the Mason-Wrangham settlement of March 1712 and the slave gift to Francis Wrangham by his grandmother Mary Jewister of February 1712. The witness panel reproduces the documented Wrangham-circle of literate participants who underpinned the family's institutional dealings across multiple years. The second instrument records a deed of gift from Elizabeth Steward, widow, to her son Thomas Steward, also recorded as deceased in the marginal note. The structural arrangement gave Thomas a fixed cash portion of £50 0s 0d together with one heifer to be marked into a distinct identifying mark, with the increase from the heifer immediately accruing to Thomas as a building stock. The use of a distinct mark for the heifer and her increase replicates the standard livestock-management practice of the period, with each owner's animals identified by an individual mark cut, branded or notched onto the beast. The institutional recognition of marks gave Thomas an enforceable property right in both the original heifer and the subsequent calves, separating his estate from other livestock running on shared ground. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                        | The phrase to run on and bring him a stock captures the institutional purpose of the gift, which was not merely to transfer a single beast but to establish Thomas as a livestock holder with a self-reproducing herd. The arrangement converted the gift from a one-off transfer into a long-term productive asset designed to grow over time. The mortality-of-the-recipient clause structured the consequences if Thomas died before coming of age or marrying, with the £50 0s 0d sum redirected through a substitute mechanism (the continuation of which lies beyond the present recoverable point). The construction parallels the survivor provisions in the Earne-Goodwin bond of February 1714 and the Tovey-Swallow guardianship deed of July 1714, indicating a recognised institutional pattern of contingent inheritance arrangements within family settlements. John Long the younger, son of John Long senior and his wife Mary, appears as Elizabeth Steward's nephew, establishing a previously undocumented kinship link between the Long and Steward families. The relationship indicates that Elizabeth's husband (the deceased Steward whose surname she carries) was either a brother of John Long senior or married to a sister of his. The Long family connection extends the documented Steward network beyond the Onesiphorus Steward line and the Francis-Mary-Martha Steward children of the August 1713 confirmation. The Elizabeth Steward of the present deed is distinct from the Elizabeth Allis (widow of Thomas Allis senior) confirmed in the August 1713 Deep Valley confirmation, although both shared widow status. She is also distinct from the Elizabeth Bowman (daughter of John Bowman) confirmed in the seventy-five acre Chapel Valley and Swine Gully estate of August 1713. The marginal note recording Thomas Steward as deceased indicates that the contingent mortality clause was eventually triggered, with the £50 0s 0d gift redirected under the substitute provisions. The annotation perhaps reflects a later reading of the deed after the institutional register had absorbed the news of Thomas's death. Speculations The pairing of a fixed cash portion with a self-reproducing heifer perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional strategy for funding a child's establishment that balanced immediate liquidity against long-term productive capacity. The £50 0s 0d provided immediate purchasing power for clothing, education or short-term needs, while the marked heifer gave Thomas a permanent income stream as the herd grew. The two-tier gift structure mirrors the broader institutional pattern of layered family settlements observed across the records. The inclusion of the nephew John Long the younger alongside the son Thomas as a beneficiary perhaps reflects Elizabeth Steward's strategic management of her relationship with the wider Long family. By extending part of her gift to her brother's (or sister's) son alongside her own son, Elizabeth strengthened the cross-family bonds that bound the Steward and Long lines together. The arrangement perhaps anticipated future cooperation between the cousins or secured institutional goodwill from the Long family in support of her own estate. The early documentation of Thomas Steward as deceased through the marginal note, written into the original deed of gift after the fact, perhaps reveals an institutional practice of updating gift documents with post-execution annotations. The register treated such notations as part of the documentary record, enabling later readers to track the operation of contingent clauses without consulting separate probate or estate records. |
| 221 | 216          | To all Christian People To whome These Presents shall come Know Yee That I Benjamen Pledger [Benj[amin] Pledger] of the Island S[t] Helena Soldier and | Benjamin Pledger of the island of St Helena, soldier and freeholder, in consideration of a valuable sum paid before the sealing and delivery of the deed by Robert Bell                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Freeholder For a valluable consideration [to] to me in hand paid before the Ensealing &amp; delivery hereof by Robert Bell of the militia [Rob[er]t Bell] Store Cutter and Freeholder the Receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge &amp; my self fully satisfied, And for other good causes and Considerations me thereunto moving Have bargained, Sold, Aliemated and Sett over and Do hereby absolutely bargain Sell alienate, Assign and Sell over unto the said Robert Bell his Heirs or Assigns for ever One House with the Land thereunto belonging lying and being in Suthwarks street in James Town Chapple Vally known by the name of Arabe Pledgers next unto the Vacant ground between that and John Coles to the Southward and the waste ground of the said Robert Bells next French Orphans house to the Northward To have and to hold the aforesaid house or parcell of Land with all the rights, proffits and Enjoyments that I, my Predecessors or Heirs, had, might or could do, And I do also for my Self, my Heirs Executors or Administrators Warrant that at the Ensealing &amp; delivery hereof full power and Lawfull Authority to dispose of and make Sale of the aforesaid House &amp;c And obligeing my self (as aforesaid) to keep harmless the said Robert Bell from all and all manher of Sleyms, Suits, troubles Charges or Vexations that may happen unto him thereby In Witness whereof I have hereunto sett my hand &amp; Seal this 13 day of April 1715 and in the first Year of his Majesties Reign Benjamen PledgerSign'd Seal'd and Deliver'd in p[re]sence of the words (house and) between the 24 and 25 lines &amp;c (had) between the 30 and 31 lines being first interlined Joseph Thomlinson Edward Holliwell Rec[eived] the day &amp; Year above Written of the abovesaid Robert Bell the sum of twenty five pounds in full of the within mencioned consideration Witness my hand Benjamen PledgerTest: Joseph Thomlinson This is a true Copy Edward Holliwell Examined Antipas Tovey | of the militia store, cutter and freeholder, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. Pledger bargained, sold, alienated and set over to Robert Bell, his heirs or assigns for ever, one house with the land belonging to it in Southwark Street in James Town, Chapel Valley, known by the name of Arabe Pledger's. The property adjoined the vacant ground between that and John Coles's to the southward, and the waste ground of Robert Bell next to the French orphans' house to the northward. The grant was to Robert Bell, his heirs and assigns, with all the rights, profits and enjoyments that Pledger, his predecessors or heirs had held or could exercise. Pledger warranted that at the sealing and delivery of the deed he had full power and lawful authority to dispose of and sell the house, and bound himself, his heirs, executors and administrators to keep Robert Bell harmless against all claims, suits, troubles, charges or vexations. Benjamin Pledger set his hand and seal to the deed on 13 April 1715, in the first year of His Majesty's reign. Benjamin PledgerSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of Joseph Thomlinson and Edward Holliwell. The words house and were first interlined between lines 24 and 25, and the word had was first interlined between lines 30 and 31. The receipt below recorded that on the same day and year Pledger had received from Robert Bell the sum of £25 0s 0d in full payment of the consideration mentioned within. Witnessed by Pledger's hand. Benjamin PledgerWitnessed by Joseph Thomlinson. A true copy, examined by Edward Holliwell and Antipas Tovey. Interpretations The deed recorded the sale of an urban dwelling house in James Town, Chapel Valley, from Benjamin Pledger to Robert Bell for £25 0s 0d. The price places the property at the modest end of the urban range, similar to the small soldier-to-soldier transactions recorded in James Valley earlier in 1714, and reflects the limited scale of the parcel within the wider Southwark Street cluster. Southwark Street appears here as a previously undocumented street name within the James Town urban fabric. The naming pattern, drawn from the London borough of Southwark south of the Thames, suggests a deliberate institutional importing of metropolitan place names onto the St Helena urban landscape. The use parallels the wider documented practice of naming island features after metropolitan precedents. The property was known as Arabe Pledger's, a working byname that perhaps preserved the identity of an earlier holder within the Pledger family or recorded a distinctive feature of the house. The Pledger surname connects to the Praise Pledger of the earlier records, the son-in-law of Benjamin Seale who received the ten acres at the head of Sharks Valley as a gift in January 1694. Benjamin Pledger here is perhaps the son of Praise Pledger, with the family name continuing into the next generation through both rural ground and urban property. The boundary descriptions identify two distinct categories of adjoining ground. On the south, the property bordered vacant ground between the Pledger house and John Coles's property, marking out an undeveloped parcel sitting between two built premises. On the north, the property bordered Robert Bell's waste ground next to the French orphans' house, with the buyer himself appearing as the adjoining neighbour. The pattern indicates that Bell was consolidating his position along the same street by buying out the adjacent Pledger parcel. The French orphans, named only through the boundary reference, represent the inheriting children of the deceased William French, the gunner identified in the earlier records as having held the Box land and Lemon Valley parcels with his wife Mary. His death by 1713 had already entered the institutional record through references to William French's orphans as boundary holders in the |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                   | Mary Hoskison confirmation of August 1713. The French orphans now appear in an urban context, indicating that the family had also held a James Town house that had passed into the children's inherited estate. Benjamin Pledger appears here as soldier and freeholder, combining the military and landholding designations. The dual classification places him within the literate circle as a member of the garrison with documented property rights, distinct from the unlettered soldier holders such as Jephthah Fowler who signed by mark. Robert Bell appears here under the new classification of cutter and freeholder of the militia store, expanding the documented trades attached to him across earlier records. He had previously been recorded as planter and mason in the 4 August 1713 sitting and again in the 1 August 1712 Company sale, with the cooper classification not previously attached. The militia store cutter role places him within the formal institutional supply chain of the garrison, with the cutter designation referring either to a specific trade (cutting cloth, leather or timber) or to a working role within the store. The continued accumulation of classifications across his name confirms his standing as a versatile artisan whose institutional position supported repeated property transactions. The interlineations recorded at lines 24-25 (the words house and) and lines 30-31 (the word had) gave institutional acknowledgement of the corrections made during drafting. The standard practice of noting interlineations within the witness clause protected the deed against any later challenge that the additions had been made after sealing. The first year of His Majesty's reign refers to George I, who succeeded Queen Anne on her death in August 1714. The 13 April 1715 dating thus falls within the first year of the new reign, with the institutional record adapting to the change of monarch in the regnal-year formula. Joseph Thomlinson appears as a witness, joining the wider Tovey-led literate circle of 1714-1715. He had previously appeared in the Goodwin-Francis sale of May 1709 alongside William Marsden and Gilbert Cotgrave. Edward Holliwell continues his recent witnessing role from the Tovey-Swallow guardianship deed of July 1714 and the Fowler-Finnwick sale of June 1714. The receipt endorsed within the deed records the actual payment of the £25 0s 0d on the same day, with Joseph Thomlinson witnessing the discharge. The endorsement gave institutional proof that the consideration had moved, matching the documentary pattern of the Henry Francis-Wrangham receipt of March 1715. Speculations The acquisition of an adjacent house by Robert Bell from Benjamin Pledger perhaps points to a deliberate strategy of consolidating an urban frontage on Southwark Street. Bell already held the adjoining waste ground next to the French orphans' house on the north of the Pledger property, and the present purchase added the Pledger house itself to his contiguous holdings. The consolidation perhaps anticipated future development of the combined site, with Bell's planter-mason-cooper-cutter range of trades giving him the institutional capacity to redevelop the ground for his own use or for sub-letting. The pricing of the Pledger house at £25 0s 0d, against the £39 0s 0d Fowler-Finnwick sale of June 1714 and the £70 0s 0d Henry Francis-Wrangham sale of March 1715, perhaps reflects the differential institutional standing of the three properties. The Pledger house occupied a modest position within the urban hierarchy, with a smaller footprint or less developed condition than the larger James Valley properties. The graduated pricing across the urban market documented within a year illustrates the depth of |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | differentiation already present in the James Town housing stock by 1715. The continued involvement of Antipas Tovey, Edward Holliwell, Joseph Thomlinson and the other literate witnesses across multiple sales of 1714-1715 perhaps marks the consolidation of a distinct urban-conveyancing circle separate from the rural land regularisation regime of the 1711-1713 sittings. The recurring witness panel attached to the urban deeds suggests an emerging specialism within the documentary regime, with Tovey and Holliwell operating as the principal attestors for James Town property transfers during the transition between the major rural confirmation sittings and the Carne-Goodwin-Francis cluster of high-value transactions of mid-1715.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 222 | 217          | Sold by Lieu[tenant] Gov[ernor] &amp; Rev[erend] Jn[o] Keeling to Fra[ncis] Wrangham Gov[ernor] Keelings right to Ten Acres of Land Memorandum 1[s]t right That James Eastings for the Consideration of Thirty Shillings paid to him by Thomas Goodwin Doth hereby Grant Bargain and Sell unto the said Thomas Goodwin Ten Acres of Land abutting upon the Right Hon[ourable] Comp[any]s waste Land Lying in Peak Gutt on the East upon the Lands now in the Possession of Sam[uel] Wr[an]gham being the Lott Lands of John Downing Carpenter, on the West upon The Right Hon[ourable] Comp[any]s waste, on the North, and upon the Land known by the Name of the Peak Gut, on the South, To have and to hold the said premises to him the said Thomas Goodwin his heirs &amp; Assignes for ever nevertheless under the Conditions contained in the Original Grant to James Eastings of the Premises from the Governour and Company of Merchants of London Trading to the East Indies to the said James Eastings bearing date the [...] day of [...] in the Year of our Lord one thousand Six hundred [...] Witness my hand and Seale this 18[t]h day of September 1694 James EastingsSealed in the presence ofTho[mas] Stevens John Alexander Memorandum that James Eastings never Rec[eiv]e[d] the Deeds for y[e] above Mentioned Lands but that he had a Grant of the same may appeare by the Grand Councell Book (the only Book of Record then Kept) at the Council held the [...] of Aprill 1685 folio (240) and at the Councell held y[e] 11[t]h day of Iuly following folio (255) made over. I Doe hereby sell over and freely give unto the Worshipfull Richard Keeling Governo[r] of y[e] s[ai]d Island All my Right Title Interest and Claime in all and Every Part of y[e] above mentioned Ten Acres of Land by me Bought of James Eastings unto y[e] said Richard Keeling his heirs and Assignes for ever Witness my hand and Seale this 18[t]h Day of Feb[ruary] 1699 Tho[mas] GoodwinSealed in y[e] Presence of usCourier Edm[und] Edmunds | Memorandum recording the first right of title, by which James Eastings, for £1 10s 0d paid to him by Thomas Goodwin, granted, bargained and sold to Thomas Goodwin ten acres of land in Peak Gut. The parcel was bounded on the east by the Right Honourable Company's waste land, on the west by the lands then in the possession of Samuel Wrangham, being the lot lands of John Downing, carpenter, on the north by the Right Honourable Company's waste, and on the south by the land known by the name of Peak Gut. The grant was to Thomas Goodwin, his heirs and assigns for ever, under the conditions contained in the original Company grant to James Eastings dated [...] [...] [...]. James Eastings set his hand and seal on 18 September 1694. James EastingsSealed in the presence of Thomas Stevens and John Alexander. A memorandum followed, recording that James Eastings had never received the formal deeds for the land. The grant nonetheless appeared in the Grand Council Book, the only book of record then kept, at the council held in April 1685, folio 240, and at the council held on 11 July following, folio 255. Made over by Thomas Goodwin. Thomas Goodwin sold and freely gave to the Worshipful Richard Keeling, Governor of the island, all his right, title, interest and claim in every part of the ten acres of land that he had bought of James Eastings. The grant was to Richard Keeling, his heirs and assigns for ever. Thomas Goodwin set his hand and seal on 18 February 1700. Thomas GoodwinSealed in the presence of Courier and Edmund Edmunds. Interpretations The composite instrument records a chain-of-title document drawn together to support the sale of ten acres in Peak Gut from Lieutenant Governor and Reverend John Keeling to Francis Wrangham, identified in the heading. The header above the document identifies the wider transaction as the conveyance of Governor Keeling's right to the ten acres, with the chain assembled to demonstrate clean title back through Richard Keeling, Thomas Goodwin and James Eastings to the original Company grant of 1685. The £1 10s 0d (thirty shillings) consideration paid by Thomas Goodwin to James Eastings in September 1694 places the early-stage rural transaction at a markedly low rate of three shillings per acre, well below the standard upland values documented elsewhere in the records. The price perhaps reflects the marginal Peak Gut location, the absence of any developed appurtenances, or the institutional fact that Eastings had never received the formal deeds and was selling only the underlying equitable right rather than a perfected legal title. The second memorandum, recording that Eastings had never received the deeds but that the grant appeared in the Grand Council Book at folios 240 and 255, gave institutional legitimacy to a documented chain that lacked |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                   | the standard sealed Company instrument. The reference to the Grand Council Book as the only book of record then kept gives institutional context for the period before the separate land register established under the 6 April 1711 consultation. The two council entries of April 1685 and 11 July 1685 provided the documentary anchor for Eastings's title in the absence of a formal grant. John Downing, carpenter, appears here as the holder of the lot lands now in the possession of Samuel Wrangham. The carpenter classification places him within the artisanal layer documented across the records alongside Robert Bell the mason and Isaac Wood the cooper. The recital that his lot lands had passed to Samuel Wrangham by 1694 documents a previously unrecorded transmission, with the Wrangham family holdings in Peak Gut extending back at least to the 1690s and continuing through the orphan estate confirmed in August 1713. Thomas Goodwin's onward sale to Richard Keeling, Governor of the island, in February 1700 (the 1699 date in the manuscript falling under the old calendar reckoning and converting forward to February 1700 in modern style) routed the ten acres into the Keeling family estate. The transfer perhaps explains how the Keeling heirs came to hold ten acres in Peak Gut as recorded in the 4 August 1713 confirmation, where the second parcel of the Keeling estate was identified as ten acres in Peak Gut bounded by Wrangham's orphans, Company waste and Robert Gurling. Richard Keeling here appears with the title Governor, distinct from his earlier identification as witness to the Rhodes-Cotgrave lease of 27 October 1687. The progression marks his rise from witness in 1687 to Governor by February 1700, fixing the institutional trajectory of his career. The terminology in the heading describing John Keeling as Lieutenant Governor and Reverend introduces a new figure within the Keeling family. The dual designation of military deputy and ordained minister marks an unusual combination, perhaps reflecting the merger of secular and ecclesiastical roles within a small island administration. John Keeling is distinct from Richard Keeling the Governor, and from Ellinor Keeling the daughter-in-law of George Carne who received the small Chapel Valley plot in May 1704. The witnesses Thomas Stevens and John Alexander for the 1694 Eastings deed reproduce the established literate circle of the period, with Alexander attesting in his long-running register capacity. The witnesses Courier and Edmund Edmunds for the 1700 Goodwin-Keeling deed mark a different pair, with Edmunds appearing alongside his documented sale of the large Chapel Valley tenement to Goodwin earlier in 1700. The boundary description identifies the Peak Gut location with four named neighbours and physical features, including the curious construction in which the southern boundary is described as the land known by the name of the Peak Gut itself. The phrasing suggests that Peak Gut operated as both a working byname for an area and the name of a specific feature within that area, with the deed using the term to identify both the larger zone and a particular bounded landmark. Speculations The compilation of the chain-of-title document, with the 1694 Eastings deed and the 1700 Goodwin-Keeling sale assembled together to support the later conveyance to Francis Wrangham, perhaps reflects the procedural requirement that a seller demonstrate clean title back to the original Company grant. The absence of the formal deeds from Eastings's hands made the chain particularly vulnerable to challenge, with the Grand Council Book entries providing the only institutional anchor for the underlying right. By gathering the supporting documents and presenting them as part of the conveyance, the Keeling-Wrangham transaction created a defensible |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | documentary record that could be examined in any later dispute. The unusually low price of £1 10s 0d paid by Goodwin to Eastings in 1694, against the £18 0s 0d that Goodwin himself paid to William French for ten acres in Oak Gutt in June 1703, perhaps points to the institutional discount applied to titles held without formal deeds. Eastings's inability to deliver a sealed Company grant reduced the marketable value of the parcel to a fraction of its underlying worth, with Goodwin acquiring the equitable interest at a steep reduction in anticipation of later regularising the title through his own institutional standing as deputy storekeeper. The pattern reveals an early instance of title-discount trading within the documented Goodwin accumulation strategy. The lengthy gap of approximately fifteen years between the Goodwin-Keeling sale of February 1700 and the present Keeling-Wrangham conveyance perhaps reflects the time required to clear residual documentary uncertainty before the ten acres could be onward sold. The 1711 consultation and the subsequent regularisation framework would have provided new institutional procedures for confirming title against beat-of-drum notice, with the Keeling family perhaps waiting for the documentary regime to mature before disposing of the parcel. The eventual sale to Francis Wrangham consolidated the Peak Gut ground within the Wrangham cluster, where his family already held adjoining property through Samuel Wrangham and the orphan estate.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 223 | 218          | John Keelings Deed to Fra[ncis] Wrangham Island St Helena Know all men by these presents That I John Keling Son and Heir of Rich[ard] Keling Esq[ui]r[e] and Govern[or] of said Island dec[ea]sed and thereby all Lands and other Reale Estate Descirding in Right to me the s[ai]d John Keling Do for this and other good Causes and Considerations me thereunto moveing, But more Specially for and in Consideration of the Sume of Twenty pounds in good &amp; Currant mony of the said Island, to me in hand paid by Francis Wrangham Free Hold[er] the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge and my self therewith to be fully satisfied contented and paid Have given granted bargained and Sold and Do by these presents firmly &amp; absolutely give grant bargain Sell and Deliver unto the before named Francis Wrangham and his Heirs for ever the within mentioned Ten Acres of Land w[i]th all and Singular the appurtenances thereunto belonging or any ways appertaining, to do and Dispose of at his their or any of their Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs or Assignes, and free from any and all Incumbrances whatsoever and do y[e] same Warrant and to save harmless the said Francis Wrangham his Heirs &amp;c, In Witness Whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Seale this Second Day of November One Thousand Seven Hundred &amp; fourteen John Keeling Sign'd Seald &amp; Deliv[er]ed In the Presence of us Registered &amp; Examined George Earne P[er] Antipas Tovey John Goodwin Henry Francis (brought from folio 215) Vide fol[io] the Heifer &amp; increase to my said beloved Nephew John Long Jun[i]o[r] to 215 whom I hereby give &amp; deliver immediately One other Heifer with the Tho[mas] Steward increase to run on as aforesaid to raise him a Stock &amp; in case of his Deed of Death before Age or Marriage then the said fifty pounds &amp; both Tho[mas] Steward Heifers to fall &amp; go with increase to all to the Surviving Child or Children dec[ea]s'd Gift of the before named John Long Sen[i]o[r] begotten of the Body of Mary his present Wife, and Sister to me the s[ai]d Eliz[ab]eth Steward, To have &amp; to Hold the said hereby Given Premises unto the said Thomas Steward &amp; John Long Jun[i]o[r] as before mentioned their Heirs | John Keeling's deed to Francis Wrangham. Island of St Helena. John Keeling, son and heir of Richard Keeling, esquire and Governor of the island, deceased, by whom all the lands and other real estate had descended to him, in consideration of £20 0s 0d in good and current island money paid by Francis Wrangham, freeholder, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. Keeling gave, granted, bargained, sold and delivered to Francis Wrangham and his heirs for ever the ten acres of land referred to within the chain of title, with all the appurtenances belonging to it. The grant was to Wrangham, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, to use and dispose of at their will, free from any encumbrances. Keeling warranted and undertook to save harmless Francis Wrangham and his heirs against all claims. John Keeling set his hand and seal to the deed on 2 November 1714. John KeelingSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of George Earne, John Goodwin and Henry Francis. Registered and examined by Antipas Tovey. The continuation of the Elizabeth Steward deed of gift (brought forward from folio 215). The heifer and her increase were given to her beloved nephew John Long the younger, to whom Elizabeth Steward immediately delivered one further heifer, with the increase to run on as before to raise him a stock. If Thomas Steward died before he came of age or married, the £50 0s 0d and both heifers, with their increase, were to fall and go to the surviving child or children of John Long senior begotten of Mary, his present wife and Elizabeth Steward's sister. The grant was to Thomas Steward and John Long the younger, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns from then on as their own proper goods and chattels for ever, absolutely and freely, without any money or thing to be paid or yielded. Interpretations The Keeling-Wrangham deed completes the chain-of-title sequence by which the ten acres in Peak Gut moved from John Keeling (as son and heir of the deceased Governor Richard Keeling) to Francis Wrangham at a price of £20 0s 0d. The transfer closed the documentary chain that had begun with James Eastings's grant in 1685 |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Execut[o]rs Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs or Assignes from hence forth as their &amp; either of their proper Goods and Chattels for ever absolutely &amp; freely without any money or thing to be paid or yielded | and passed through Thomas Goodwin and Richard Keeling before reaching the present buyer. The deed assembles inheritance succession, sale and warranty within a single instrument, with John Keeling appearing as the institutional heir of his deceased father's entire estate. The £20 0s 0d consideration paid by Wrangham places the ten acres at a per-acre rate of £2 0s 0d, well above the £1 10s 0d (or three shillings per acre) at which Goodwin acquired the parcel from Eastings in September 1694. The appreciation of approximately thirteen-fold over twenty years reflects the value added by clearer title following the 1700 Goodwin-Keeling sale and by the institutional regularisation under the 1711 framework. The Wrangham purchase consolidates the family's Peak Gut holdings into a documented cluster. John Keeling appears here as son and heir of Richard Keeling, esquire and Governor, with the inheritance described as descending by right to him. The formula gives institutional recognition to the principle of primogeniture within the Keeling family. The description matches the John Keeling identified in the heading as Lieutenant Governor and Reverend, although the present deed omits both designations and names him only as the heir. The variation reflects the institutional record's tolerance of differential identification across related instruments, with the principal title (son and heir) carrying the legal weight while the secular and ecclesiastical offices appeared in supplementary descriptions. The signing witnesses George Earne, John Goodwin and Henry Francis place the deed within a tight cluster of elite literate participants. George Earne (the same George Earne, merchant, who entered into the marriage articles with Frances Goodwin in February 1714 under the variant rendering Carne) appears alongside John Goodwin (the eldest son of Thomas Goodwin and the surviving executor of his father's estate) and Henry Francis (the substantial freeholder who had recently sold the James Valley house to Francis Wrangham). The three witnesses represent the inner circle of merchants, family executors and substantial freeholders bound together through the Goodwin-Carne-Francis nexus that had emerged across 1713-1715. Antipas Tovey's registration and examination of the deed closes the institutional record with his now-standard attestation role across the documents of the period. The repeated appearance of Tovey as the principal register-cum-attestor across the 1713-1715 instruments confirms his continuing operational position in the documentary regime. The continuation of the Elizabeth Steward deed of gift completes the contingent-mortality structure that the principal deed had begun. The arrangement gave each beneficiary (her son Thomas Steward and her nephew John Long the younger) a heifer with the increase running on to raise a stock, and added a fallback provision so that if Thomas died before majority or marriage the cash sum and both heifers passed to the surviving children of John Long senior by Mary, Elizabeth's sister. The construction created a three-tier inheritance pathway: primary distribution between the two named beneficiaries, with the contingent reversion to the wider Long-Mary family if Thomas's line failed. The relationship between Elizabeth Steward and Mary, identified here as her sister and as the wife of John Long senior, fixes a previously undocumented sister-in-law connection between the Long and Steward families through Mary's marriage to John Long senior. Elizabeth and Mary are therefore sisters by birth, with John Long the younger as Elizabeth's nephew (her sister's son) and Thomas Steward as her son. The contingent reversion to Mary's other children gave the gift institutional protection against the failure of either named beneficiary's line. The pure-gift language at the close of the deed (without any money or thing to be paid or yielded) marks the transfer as a settlement on natural love and affection, |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | protecting it against later challenge as a sale or commercial transaction. The Company's institutional recognition of such pure gifts under the formal documentary regime reproduced the wider pattern observed in the Mary Jewister slave gift of February 1712, the Frances Goodwin gift to John Goodwin of February 1713 and the Sutton Isaack gift to his grandson Stephen Audouart of October 1698. Speculations The selection of George Earne, John Goodwin and Henry Francis as the witness panel for the Keeling-Wrangham deed perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional choice to anchor the conveyance within the elite Carne-Goodwin-Francis nexus. By drawing the three witnesses from the principal circle of high-value transactions of 1714-1715, the deed gave the Wrangham purchase the imprimatur of the most influential figures on the island, providing maximum institutional protection against any later challenge to the title. The pricing of the ten acres at £20 0s 0d on a per-acre rate of £2 0s 0d perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional rate applied to regularised Peak Gut ground following the 1711 framework. The price falls within the upland market band rather than at the premium rate applied to Sandy Bay or Chapel Valley parcels, recognising the marginal location while attaching a fair institutional value to the cleared title. The Wrangham family's acquisition at this rate consolidates their Peak Gut cluster at a sustainable institutional cost. The contingent reversion to the surviving children of John Long senior by Mary, embedded within the Elizabeth Steward deed of gift, perhaps points to a strategic family settlement designed to keep the Steward-Long cross-generational ground within the wider extended kinship network. By providing that the gift would devolve to her sister's other children if her own son's line failed, Elizabeth treated the Long children as the family's secondary heirs of last resort. The construction perhaps anticipated the demographic risks of high infant mortality on the island, with the cascade of beneficiaries reaching across the wider sister-in-law relationship to ensure that the gift's productive value would not be lost to the family altogether. |
| 224 | 219          | to mee or my heirs &amp;c therefore, And that the said fifty Pounds be paid out of my Estate and Sett apart for the use aforesaid without any persons claim thereto but those who has the proper right &amp; herein before mention'd According to the true mean ing &amp; Intent of this present Deed of Gift, In Testimony Whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Seale this Second day of March in the Year of Our Lord One thousand Seven hundred &amp; Fifteen (Sign'd) Eliz[abeth] Steward Sign'd Seale &amp; deliver'd in the presence of Francis Junge Jn[o] Long The above is a true Copy Enterd &amp; Examin'd by Jn[o] Alexander me Antipas Tovey Mary Conway Wid[ow]: her Deed of Sale to Thomas Southern Ser[jean]t for the ground in Southwark Street in James town, whereon formerly Stood a house &amp;c To all Christian People to whom These Present Writing Shall come Know Yee That I Mary Conway of the Island of S[t] Helena Widdow &amp; Relect of Edith[?] Conway formerly of the said Island Carpenter &amp; Yanker but now deceased for a valluable consideracion to me in Hand paid before the En sealing &amp; delivery hereof By Tho[mas] Southern of said Island Ser[jean]t the receipt whereof I Do hereby acknowledge &amp; my Self fully Satisfied before other good cause &amp; consideracions me thereunto moveing, Have bargain'd Sold alienate &amp; Sett over &amp; do hereby Absolutely Bargain Sell Alienate &amp; Assigne or Sett over Unto the said Tho[mas] Southern his heires &amp; Assignes for ever, One part or | The £50 0s 0d sum was to be paid out of Elizabeth Steward's estate and set apart for the use described in the deed of gift, without any person's claim except those whose right had been properly identified within the deed. Elizabeth Steward set her hand and seal to the deed on 2 March 1716. Elizabeth Steward Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Francis Junge and John Long. The above is a true copy, entered and examined by John Alexander and Antipas Tovey. Mary Conway, widow, deed of sale to Thomas Southern, sergeant, of the ground in Southwark Street in James Town, where a house had formerly stood. To all Christian people to whom these presents come, Mary Conway of the island of St Helena, widow and relict of Edith[?] Conway, formerly of the island, carpenter and yanker, but now deceased, in consideration of a valuable sum paid before the sealing and delivery of the deed by Thomas Southern, sergeant of the island, acknowledged the receipt and her full satisfaction. Mary Conway bargained, sold, alienated and set over to Thomas Southern, his heirs and assigns for ever one parcel of land in Southwark Street in James Town, Chapel Valley, known by the name of Conway's Wash Yard. A house had formerly stood on the ground but only the ruins or remains then survived. The parcel was bounded southwards by the house formerly belonging to William Wexwell and southwards by Thomas Southern's own house, and northwards by the house of John Harris Steward, then in the possession of John Robinson. The                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | parcel of Land lying &amp; being in Southwark Street in James town Chapple Valley, knowne by the Name of Conways Wash Yard whereon formerly was a house built but now the ruins or Vestegies thereof only remaining; Butting &amp; Bounding between the House of W[illia]m S[ai]d Southern's formerly Wexwells to the Southward &amp; One John H[ar]riss Steward's now in the Posses[s]ion of John Robinson To the Northward To Have &amp; to Hold the aforesaid part or parcel of Lands with all the Rights, profits &amp; Enjoyments that I my Predecessors or Heirs, Did, might or Could do, w[i]th Likewise the right of Party Wall or Walls heretofore Enjoyed or paid for And I Do also to my Self, My Heirs Execut[o]rs Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs &amp; Assignes Warrant that I have full Power &amp; Lawfull Authority to dispose of the said ground as aforesaid, Hereby Obliging my Self my Heires Execu[t]ors &amp; Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs always to make good the same to s[ai]d Thomas Southern Harmless to Keep from all manner of Charges, Suites, troubles or Vexations that may Happen unto him thereof, In Witness Whereof I have hereunto Sett my Hand &amp; Seale this 14[t]h Day of April Anno[que] Dom[inij] 1715 her Mary + Conway MarkSign'd Seal'd &amp; Deliver'd In the presence of John Twack his Ebenezer + Leech mark Registered &amp; Examined Antipas Tovey | grant carried all the rights, profits and enjoyments that Mary Conway, her predecessors or heirs had held or could exercise, together with the right of party wall or walls previously enjoyed or paid for. Mary Conway warranted that she had full power and lawful authority to dispose of the ground, and bound herself, her heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to keep Thomas Southern harmless against all charges, suits, troubles or vexations arising from the conveyance. Mary Conway set her hand and seal to the deed on 14 April 1715. The mark + of Mary ConwaySigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of John Twack and Ebenezer Leech (his mark). Registered and examined by Antipas Tovey. Interpretations The closing clause of the Elizabeth Steward deed of gift fixed the £50 0s 0d as a charge on her own estate, payable from her residual property and set apart for the institutional benefit of the named beneficiaries without competing claims from her wider heirs or creditors. The mechanism converted the gift into a binding institutional obligation enforceable against her residual estate, distinct from the operative transfer of the heifers and their increase. The structure parallels the layered settlements observed in the Earne-Goodwin marriage articles of February 1714 and the Tovey-Swallow guardianship deed of July 1714. The 2 March 1715 sealing date in the manuscript falls under the old calendar reckoning and converts forward to 2 March 1716 in modern style, placing the final completion of the gift deed nearly a year after the principal text was drafted. The extended drafting period suggests that the gift had been composed in stages, with the contingent reversionary provisions and the residuary charge clause added over time as the institutional protections were strengthened. John Long, signing as one of the witnesses, is probably the same John Long senior named in the principal text as the husband of Mary, Elizabeth's sister, and as the father of John Long the younger. The arrangement is unusual, with a named beneficiary's father witnessing the gift instrument that included his children among the contingent reversioners. The pattern indicates that the institutional documentary regime tolerated such overlapping roles where the family relationships were transparent within the text. Francis Junge appears here as a witness for a third documented occasion in 1714-1715, following his June 1714 attendance at the Fowler-Finnwick sale. His repeated appearance places him within the active literate circle of the period, perhaps within the continental European or non-English merchant network on the island. The Conway-Southern deed records a small urban transaction in Southwark Street, James Town, with Mary Conway selling the ground of a ruined house to Thomas Southern, sergeant, for an unspecified consideration. The omission of the precise price marks an unusual gap in the documentary record, with the standard practice of recording the sum being absent here. Mary Conway appears here as widow of Edith[?] Conway, formerly of the island as carpenter and yanker, but now deceased. The yanker designation is obscure within the documented trades of the period and perhaps reflects either a scribal corruption or a specialist working role within the garrison or merchant supply. The carpenter classification places the deceased Edith[?] Conway within the artisanal layer documented across the records alongside Robert Bell, John Downing and others. Mary Conway connects to the same Mary Conway, widow, who had taken a twenty-one-year lease of thirty acres at the head of Dogwood Valley in December 1713 (which she had marked with M as her sign). The present urban |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | transaction adds her urban property activity to her rural leasehold standing. Conway's Wash Yard appears here as a previously undocumented working byname, preserving the institutional memory of the wash yard formerly operated on the ground. The naming pattern parallels the bynames observed earlier across the records, with working uses providing the principal source of urban and rural place names. William Wexwell, named as the former holder of the house to the southward, is a previously undocumented individual within the records. The reading Wexwell may represent a variant rendering of an established surname or a name not otherwise documented. Thomas Southern's own house was identified alongside the Wexwell house as the southward boundary, indicating that Southern already held adjoining ground that the present purchase extended. John Harris Steward, named as the holder of the house to the northward, then in the possession of John Robinson, links the Steward family network to the urban Southwark Street cluster. The Harris middle name marks a distinctive identification, perhaps preserving a maternal family name or compound naming pattern. The possession by John Robinson connects to the same John Robinson named as the freeholder bound to pay the children of the late Onesiphorus Sheado under the bond recorded in consultation book 15. The right of party wall or walls heretofore enjoyed or paid for gave Thomas Southern the institutional recognition of shared structural elements between his existing property and the newly purchased ground. The party wall provisions reproduce the dense urban building patterns observed earlier in the February 1716 Beale brothers' sale of Captain Beale's land to the Company, where party-wall rights were similarly transferred. Thomas Southern's sergeant classification places him within the senior non-commissioned military ranks. His earlier appearance as the working possessor of Edward Bagley's children's land, named in the August 1713 Richard Gurling confirmation and the John Crosby Plyers Valley confirmation, marks him as a recognised trustee figure across the urban and rural records. The present urban purchase adds his Southwark Street holding to his documented working possession of orphan ground. Mary Conway signed by mark, reproducing her unlettered status from the December 1713 Dogwood Valley lease. The mark contrasts with her active engagement in substantial property transactions across both rural and urban contexts, illustrating that unlettered holders participated fully in the documentary regime through the mark mechanism. The witnesses John Twack and Ebenezer Leech (also signing by mark) place the deed within a less elite witness panel than the Carne-Goodwin-Francis cluster of the Keeling-Wrangham conveyance. The pattern of differential witnessing across the urban transactions of 1714-1715 indicates that routine small-property transfers drew on a broader range of attestors than the high-value elite conveyances. Speculations The omission of the precise consideration from the Conway-Southern deed perhaps reflects the modest scale of the transaction, with the ruined-house ground worth only a small sum that the parties did not consider worth specifying in the formal document. The phrase a valuable consideration provides only the general institutional acknowledgement that consideration had moved, without committing the parties to a documented price. The pattern suggests that very small urban transfers could proceed under the standard documentary regime without the precise price recording attached to substantial transactions. The extended drafting timetable of the Elizabeth Steward deed of gift, with the principal text dated 2 March |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | 1715 and the residuary charge clause added a year later on 2 March 1716, perhaps reflects the family's preference for incremental strengthening of the gift's protections. By returning to the deed after a year and adding the explicit residuary charge clause, Elizabeth converted what had begun as a layered gift into a more durable institutional obligation enforceable against her own estate. The pattern reveals the documentary regime accommodating evolving family arrangements rather than treating gift deeds as fixed at the moment of initial execution. The institutional acquisition by Thomas Southern of the Conway's Wash Yard adjoining his own house, combined with his recorded position as the working possessor of orphan ground, perhaps marks the emergence of a recognised consolidation pattern within the urban Southwark Street cluster. By assembling adjacent parcels through purchase and trustee occupation, Southern was building a coherent working position within the street that complemented his sergeant standing. The pattern parallels Robert Bell's contemporaneous consolidation along Southwark Street through the Pledger purchase of April 1715.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
| 225 | 220          | Island St Helena I Do Acknowledge my Self fully Satisfyed Upon the payment of Ten pounds in the Store by Mr Thomas Southen for my Wives part of a House in James town formerly her fathers Mr Samuel Maxwell Deceased Witness my hand this 18[t]h June 1703. (Sign'd) Antipas Tovey Test: James Vesey Examined &amp; Registered Peter Finnick Antipas Tovey Island St Helena April y[e] 4[t]h 1715 I acknowledge the receipt of Ten pounds paid in Store &amp; Edit to Mary my present Wife for her Share &amp; part of a Dwelling House Scituate in James Valley &amp; formerly belonging to Samuel Maxwell Serj[ean]t Dec[reas]d I say rec[eive]d P[er] (Sign'd) Jn[o] Alexander Examined &amp; Registered Antipas Tovey Island St Helena Leech's Lodge This Indenture Witnesseth That Robert Leech Orphan Son of bound to Robert Leech Free Planter, decea[se]d, with the Rich[ard] Garling, James Grentree &amp; Tho[mas] Giles Smith Doveton Executors of the Last Will &amp; Testament of the s[ai]d deceas[ed] Robert Leech and by Our consent, as well as of His Own Free Will &amp; accord, hath &amp; do by these presents put him the said Robert Leech Son of Rob[er]t Leech aforesaid Apprentice unto Giles Smith Joyner &amp; Carpenter, to Learne his Art &amp; Trade &amp; with him after the manner of Apprentice &amp; to serve from the Date hereof, till he attains to the full age of Twenty One Years, during which time &amp; term the Said Robert Leech, shall Serve his Master faithfully, his Secrets keep &amp; Lawfull com[m]ands gladly do, He shall Do no Hurt or damage to his s[ai]d Master, or to his Goods, nor Suffer it to be done, by any other person &amp; he shall not com[m]it over Matrimony contract, At Cards, Dice or any other unlawfull Game, he shall not play whereby his said Master may Suffer either in Goods or Person, Day or Night he shall not absent himself from his said Masters Service without his leave possessed but in all things as a faithfull Servant behave himself as a faithfull Apprentice ought to Do during the Whole Term aforesaid And the Said Giles Smith for &amp; in consideration of the Sum of Fifteen pounds already paid in hand by the Said Executors doth for himself his Heirs Execut[o]rs Admin[i]s[trato]rs &amp; Assigns, hereby covenant &amp; Oblige himself to them to teach or cause to be taught the s[ai]d Apprentice &amp; Oblige himself in apparel (Reading, Writing) the Trade he now seek of a Joyner &amp; Carpenter, by the best method &amp; meanes he | Island of St Helena Antipas Tovey acknowledged his full satisfaction on the payment of £10 0s 0d in the store by Mr Thomas Southen for his wife's part of a house in James Town, formerly her father's, Mr Samuel Maxwell, deceased. Antipas Tovey set his hand to the receipt on 18 June 1703. Antipas Tovey Witnessed by James Vesey. Examined and registered by Peter Finnick and Antipas Tovey. Island of St Helena. 4 April 1715. John Alexander acknowledged the receipt of £10 0s 0d, paid in the store, for Mary his present wife's share and part of a dwelling house in James Valley, formerly belonging to Sergeant Samuel Maxwell, deceased. John Alexander Examined and registered by Antipas Tovey. Island of St Helena. Leech's lodge. The present indenture witnessed that Robert Leech, orphan son of the deceased Robert Leech, free planter, with the consent and by the act of Richard Garling, James Greentree and Thomas Doveton, executors of the last will and testament of the deceased Robert Leech, and by their consent and the orphan's own free will, was apprenticed to Giles Smith, joiner and carpenter, to learn his art and trade and to serve from the date of the indenture until he reached the full age of twenty-one years. During the term, Robert Leech was to serve his master faithfully, to keep his master's secrets and to obey all lawful commands gladly. He was to do no hurt or damage to his master or his goods, and was not to allow any other person to do so. He was not to enter into matrimony or contract during the term. He was not to play at cards, dice or any other unlawful game in which his master might suffer either in goods or in person. He was not to absent himself from his master's service by day or by night without leave. He was to behave in all things as a faithful apprentice during the whole term. In consideration of £15 0s 0d already paid in hand by the executors, Giles Smith bound himself, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to teach or cause to be taught Robert Leech the trade of joiner and carpenter by the best method and means he could, and to provide the apprentice with sufficient meat, drink, apparel (with reading and writing), washing and lodging, and all other necessities fitting for such an apprentice during the term. The parties further covenanted that if Giles Smith died before Robert Leech had learnt his trade or the term had expired, Smith bound himself, his heirs and executors to ensure that the apprentice was still taught the trade described, without any equivocation, dispute or controversy. All parties interchangeably set their hands |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | can, finding unto his said Apprentice Sufficient Meat Drink Ap[ar]el p[ar]el (Reading, Writing) Washing &amp; Lodging, &amp; all other necessary fitting for such an apprentice during the Term aforesaid And it is further Covenanted by &amp; between all parties herein concerned that in case of the said Giles Smith decease before his appren[ti] ces Robert Leech hath Learnt his Trade, or the Expiration of the time herein limited That then so much Case the s[ai]d Giles Smith doth bind himself His Heirs Execu[tors] &amp; every of them to Learne, teach or cause to be Learnt &amp; taught the said Apprentice the Trade before mention'd without any Equivocation Dispute or controversie whatsoever to the Contrary, In Witness where of all Party concern'd have interchangeably set their Hands &amp; Seals this twentieth Day of March Anno[que] Domini One thousand Seven hundred &amp; fifteen in the Second Year of y[e] Reign of Our Sovereign Lord George by y[e] Grace of God of Great Brit[ain] Sign'd Sealed am France &amp; Ireland King Defender of the Faith &amp;c[t] (Sign'd) Giles Smith &amp; deliver'd in p[rese]nce of us: Joshua Johnson, Jn[o] Alexander Mem[orandum] | and seals to the indenture on 20 March 1716, in the second year of the reign of King George I, by the grace of God of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King and Defender of the Faith. Giles SmithSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of Joshua Johnson and John Alexander. Interpretations The two acknowledgements together record successive £10 0s 0d settlements by Thomas Southen, paid in the Company's store, for the wives' shares in a James Town dwelling house formerly belonging to the deceased Sergeant Samuel Maxwell. The first receipt of June 1703, signed by Antipas Tovey for his wife's share, places the Maxwell house in the early stages of post-mortem division within the family. The second receipt of April 1715, signed by John Alexander for his present wife Mary's share, places the same property in a further round of share settlement twelve years later. The institutional arrangement reveals that Samuel Maxwell's daughters had married into the Tovey and Alexander families, with each husband acting as the receiving party for his wife's portion. The two receipts together identify two of the documented Maxwell orphans (whose nine acres in Sandy Bay were confirmed under the 1711 framework on 4 August 1713) as the wives of Antipas Tovey and John Alexander respectively. The marriages place the Maxwell family at the heart of the literate elite circle of the 1700s and 1710s. The £10 0s 0d figure paid in each settlement, exactly matching across twelve years, reflects an institutional fixity in the value attached to each daughter's share rather than a market-tested valuation. The mechanism converted the post-mortem division into a standardised arithmetic operation, with each share calculated at the same fixed sum regardless of intervening changes in the underlying property value. The reference to Mary as Alexander's present wife indicates that she was not his first wife, with the institutional record preserving the possibility of an earlier marriage or marriages that had ended in widowhood or otherwise. The phrase is unusual in the records, where most marital references identify wives without the temporal qualifier. The store-credit payment in both receipts continues the established pattern of substantial transactions routed through the Company's institutional credit system. The June 1703 store payment by Thomas Southen marks an early documented use of the store mechanism, with the same procedure recurring in the April 1715 settlement. Peter Finnick appears as a co-registering witness with Antipas Tovey on the 1703 receipt, marking a new individual within the early literate circle. The Finnick surname connects forward to the John Finnick, soldier, who bought the Fowler house in James Valley in June 1714, indicating a family network operating across multiple decades. The apprenticeship indenture binds Robert Leech, orphan son of the deceased Robert Leech the free planter, to Giles Smith, joiner and carpenter, for the period until the orphan reached the age of twenty-one. The arrangement reproduces the standard early modern apprenticeship form, with the orphan's labour exchanged for trade training, basic necessities and a fixed cash premium. The £15 0s 0d premium paid in hand by the executors places this apprenticeship within the documented range of recent placements. The Susanna Doveton apprenticeship to Robert Leech of March 1708 had been structured at £5 0s 0d cash plus slave labour and livestock to a value of approximately £11 0s 0d. The present arrangement converts the premium into a single £15 0s 0d cash payment, reflecting the institutional preference for monetary settlement by 1716. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The three executors named are Richard Garling, James Greentree and Thomas Doveton. The Garling identification connects to the Robert Girling freemason of the August 1713 Peak Gut confirmation and the Richard Garling witness to the Henry Francis receipt of March 1715, with the family name continuing across the institutional record. James Greentree appears as a substantial Sandy Bay accumulator whose acquisitions had included the Powell purchase of March 1703 with the slave Oliver, the Bevean Chapel Valley house of October 1705, the Cleve James Valley house of June 1715, and the Goodwin four acres of September 1715. Thomas Doveton is probably the Jonathan Doveton variant rendering, the same executor who had administered the William Doveton and William Dufton estates and held the substantial confirmed estate of 1711 and 1713. The deceased Robert Leech was the same free planter who had taken Susanna Doveton as an apprentice in March 1708 and who had been recipient of the fifteen acres in Fryer Valley sold by Robert Leach (with his wife Ann's portion from the Mary Dixon orphans) to George Carne in January 1705 through Mary Carne as attorney. His death now reaches the institutional record through the present apprenticeship of his son. The trade of joiner and carpenter combines two artisanal designations within a single apprenticeship, with Giles Smith providing instruction in both. The pairing reflects the practical overlap between the two trades in the limited specialist environment of the island, where a single artisan typically handled both fine joinery and structural carpentry. The covenants binding the apprentice include the standard early modern restrictions on matrimony, gambling, secret-keeping and absence from service. The matrimony prohibition gave the master institutional control over the apprentice's domestic arrangements throughout the term, preventing the apprentice from establishing a competing household before the trade was learnt. The card-and-dice prohibition reflects the institutional concern with idle pastimes that might dissipate the master's resources or expose the household to debt and loss. The master's obligations include the provision of reading and writing as part of the apparel clause. The institutional inclusion of basic literacy training within the apprenticeship represents a substantial commitment, with Smith bound to ensure that Robert Leech acquired both his trade and his lettering by the end of the term. The arrangement gave the orphan the means to enter the literate adult population on completion. The mortality clause binding Smith's heirs to complete the apprenticeship if Smith died before the term ended reproduces the standard protective construction observed in the Doveton apprenticeship of March 1708. The mechanism ensured continuity of training across the master's potential mortality, protecting the orphan's interest in receiving the full apprenticeship even if the original arrangement was disrupted. The second year of King George I's reign in the regnal-year formula confirms the 20 March 1716 dating in modern style, with the manuscript carrying 1715 under the old calendar convention. The accession of George I in August 1714 placed his second regnal year as the period from August 1715 onwards. Joshua Johnson and John Alexander witnessed the indenture, continuing their established roles in the literate documentary circle. Alexander's witnessing of the Leech apprenticeship marks one of his recurring appearances during this period, alongside his receipt for his wife's Maxwell share of the same month. Speculations The matching £10 0s 0d settlement for the Maxwell daughters' shares in 1703 and 1715 perhaps reflects the institutional pattern of paying out portions in a calibrated |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | sequence rather than at the moment of inheritance. By holding the property as a single working unit and paying out each daughter's share as the relevant household matured, the executors converted the family ground into a series of stable institutional transfers spread across more than a decade. The pattern enabled the property to retain its working value as a coherent dwelling while still discharging the family obligations. The placement of Robert Leech the orphan with Giles Smith for a full trade apprenticeship including reading and writing, at a premium of £15 0s 0d, perhaps reflects a deliberate strategy by the executors to ensure that the son of a free planter rose into the artisanal-literate class rather than into mere unskilled labour. The investment of cash and time in his comprehensive training represents an institutional commitment to his social mobility, with the executors using the apprenticeship mechanism to convert the orphan inheritance into long-term productive capacity. The reference to John Alexander's present wife Mary, with the temporal qualifier suggesting an earlier marriage, perhaps documents the otherwise unrecorded first marriage of the long-serving register. The institutional record's tolerance of the qualifier hints at a family history not otherwise preserved within the documented circle, with Mary's standing as the present wife signalling a recent or current marriage following an earlier widowhood.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| 226 | 221          | Mem[orandum] between the thirteenth &amp; fourteenth Lines the Words (Reading, Writing) were first interlin'd before the Insealing &amp; delivery hereof Test: Sam[uel] Vesey Rich[ar]d Swallow Jun[i]o[r] Examined &amp; Registered the foregoing Indenture Antipas Tovey Island St Helena, Whereas I Iane Mudge of the said Island Widdow &amp; Relict of John Mudge dec[ea]s'd who by his last will &amp; Testament Did make Constitute and appoynt me the said Iane Mudge whole &amp; Sole Executrix of his said will, and by the same Gave his whole Intire Estate Both Real [I am [...]] &amp; personall unto me the said Iane Mudge to Doe and Dispose of as I in my own Discretion [knowing] should after his decease think fitt of words to this Purport And as it has pleased Almighty [do hereby] God to vissett me w[ith] a long &amp; Tedious fitt of Sickness and render'd I[?] every way uncapable [Make &amp;] Languishing &amp; Deplorable Condition which has not only Occasioned Daily Expences [appoint?] but her Plantation &amp; Estate Run to Ruene and Layne Waste Severall, months by [Sam[ue]l Vesey] which means She the said Iane Mudge to her unspeakeable Grief is Likely to become [Crown Sole] a Perish Charge, And may live in such a Miserable, &amp; Lame Condition longer than [Executor of] She has any thing left to Subsist her and her Familie, Wherefore [my last Will] [&amp; Testam[en]t] Now Know Yee that I the said Iane Mudge on Mature Consideration of the [and to perform] premisses aforesaid, and other weighty Reasons me thereunto moveing Have and do by [&amp; Execute the] these presents freely absolutely and of my own free will and Accord give grant [same in such] and Deliver unto my trusty &amp; well beloved Friend Samuel Vesey of the said [manner as in] [the Will] Island &amp; to his Heirs for ever all &amp; Singular my whole and Intire Estate as well [Mention'd?] Reale as Personall, the same (Consisting of Ten Acres of Greenwood Land Lying [is mention'd] Scituate in Stocks Valley near Adjoyneing to ten Acres of Land now in the Posses[s]ion [A True Copy] of Thomas Leech and the Hon[our]a[b]le Comp[any]s waste Land together with an Old House &amp; some [Exam[in]d &amp; Registered] provisions standing &amp; being thereon, as also ten Acres of Lord &amp; y[e] Free Land lying in the same [Antipas Tovey] valley near Adjoyneing to the Land of Cap[tai]n Mathew Bagell, William Cale &amp; John Twack with all rights, Libertys, Privaledges and | A memorandum recorded that the words reading and writing had been interlined between the thirteenth and fourteenth lines of the apprenticeship indenture before its sealing and delivery. Witnessed by Samuel Vesey and Richard Swallow the younger. The foregoing indenture was examined and registered by Antipas Tovey. Island of St Helena. Jane Mudge of the island, widow and relict of the deceased John Mudge, who by his last will and testament had made her his whole and sole executrix and given his whole entire estate, both real and personal, to her, to dispose of as her own discretion should see fit after his death. Jane Mudge recorded that it had pleased Almighty God to visit her with a long and tedious fit of sickness and to render her every way incapable, in a languishing and deplorable condition that had not only caused daily expenses but had also left her plantation and estate to run to ruin and lie waste for several months. By this means she was likely to become a parish charge, and to live in a miserable and lame condition longer than she had anything left to subsist herself and her family. On mature consideration of the matters set out, and other weighty reasons, Jane Mudge freely and absolutely, of her own free will, gave, granted and delivered to her trusty and well-beloved friend Samuel Vesey of the island, and to his heirs for ever, all her whole and entire estate, both real and personal. The estate consisted of ten acres of greenwood land in Stocks Valley adjoining ten acres of land then in the possession of Thomas Leech and the Honourable Company's waste land, together with an old house and some provisions standing on it. The estate also included ten acres of lot and free land in the same valley adjoining the land of Captain Matthew Bazett, William Cale and John Twack, with all rights, liberties, privileges and other appurtenances belonging to the parcels, together with one slave man named Isaac, one slave woman named Hagar, and Jane Mudge's stock of cattle of all sorts (except such as had already been given away and listed in a separate paper). The grant was to Samuel Vesey, his heirs and assigns, to enjoy, possess and dispose of at their own will and pleasure, peaceably and without interruption, molestation or contradiction by Jane Mudge, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, or any other person. The grant was conditional on Samuel Vesey, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns providing fully for Jane Mudge during her natural life, in sickness and in |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | other the Appurtenances thereunto belonging Likewise one Negroe Man Slave Named Isaac &amp; one Negroe Woman Slave named Hagar, To have &amp; to hold all and Singular the before mentioned two parcells of Lands, Old House, Provisions and two Slaves with her the said Iane Mudges Stock of Cattle of all sorts Except such as are already given away and mentioned in a Seperate Paper) unto him the said Samuel Yesey his Heirs for ever and dispose of at his and their own proper Will &amp; pleasure And the same to Enjoy &amp; Posses[s]e to do and dispose of at his and their own proper Will &amp; pleasure And the same to Enjoy &amp; Posses[s]e Peaceably &amp; Quiety without any manner of Interruption mollestation or Contradiction of me the said Iane Mudge or my Heirs Executors Adminis[trato]rs or Assignes or any other person or persons whatsoever upon condition that he the said Samuel Yesey his Heirs Execut[o]rs Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs Assigns or either of them shall and Doth from the day of the date hereof fully Provide for and maintaine the said Iane Mudge during her naturall Life in Sickness and in health w[i]th all manner of necessarys fitting for a Woman of her age &amp; Condition and Likewise to maintaine her [Test:] Grand Daughter Sane Vidcarens w[i]th, all manner of Cloathing, Meat, Drink, washing &amp; Lodging [her] and teach or cause to be taught to read, write, and to do needle work till She arrives to full [I am Mudge] age or Marriage, no longer, and further the said Sam[uel] Yesey Doth alone Oblige himself to take [mark] Care of (what Stock of Cattle is belonging unto Said Child) and to pay unto her or her Heirs the Increase unto her at the time of her marriage or full Age and to pay unto her or her Heirs the Some of Ten Pounds in such payments as She shall at that time accept of and also to deliver unto her &amp; Successors or her Heirs all her Stock of Cattle (it is Excepted) Issues any ways belong Aceaungeable for those that shall from this time Decrease She being the true posseing &amp; Subject of the said Iane Mudge and the said Sam[uel] Yesey agreement, And the said Iane Mudge for preventing future controversies &amp; Disputes &amp; by these p[rese]nts Consequented &amp; make Voyd all former or other Will, Testament or Testament[s] coming &amp; acknowledging this to be the only Working &amp; Act or Instrument of writing that shall be Accounted binding or any wise to be regarded towards her relief, present condition or disposall of her the said Iane Mudges Estate, In witness whereof She the said Iane Mudge hath to these presents Sett her hand &amp; Seale this fourth day of February In the Year of our Lord one Thousand Seven hundred and Eighteen. a True Copy Exam[in]d &amp; RegisteredSigned Sealed &amp; Deliv[er]ed in the presence of herMatthew Bazett, Isaac Wood &amp; Antipas Tovey Iane + Mudge John Alexander Marke | health, with all necessities fitting for a woman of her age and condition. He was also to maintain her granddaughter Sane Vidcarens, providing her with clothing, meat, drink, washing and lodging, and arranging for her to be taught to read, write and to do needlework until she came of age or married, but no longer. Samuel Vesey further bound himself alone to take care of the stock of cattle belonging to the granddaughter and to pay her or her heirs the increase from the stock at the time of her marriage or coming of age. He was to pay her or her heirs the sum of £10 0s 0d, in such payments as she would then accept, and to deliver all her stock of cattle to her or her heirs at that time, the issues belonging to her as the true possessor and subject of Jane Mudge and Samuel Vesey's agreement. Jane Mudge revoked all former wills and testaments and acknowledged the present writing as the only operative instrument binding for her relief, her present condition or the disposal of her estate. Jane Mudge set her hand and seal to the deed on 4 February 1718. The mark + of Jane MudgeSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of Matthew Bazett, Isaac Wood and John Alexander. A true copy, examined and registered by Antipas Tovey. Interpretations The deed constructed a comprehensive life-maintenance arrangement under which Jane Mudge transferred her entire estate, both real and personal, to Samuel Vesey in return for his undertaking to support her, her granddaughter and the family establishment for life. The mechanism converted a wholesale property transfer into a perpetual maintenance obligation, with Vesey assuming responsibility for the elderly widow's subsistence and her granddaughter's upbringing in exchange for the immediate vesting of the perpetual title. The opening recital frames Jane Mudge's decision as a response to her long sickness, the daily expenses of her care and the institutional risk of her becoming a parish charge. The parish charge framework had earlier appeared in the September 1706 indenture of Mary Oliver to George Carne, where the Carne household had agreed to maintain Oliver and her children free from parish charge. The present deed reproduces the same institutional concern, with Jane Mudge using the asset transfer to convert a private welfare risk into a contractual obligation. The phrase parish charge marks the institutional category of public welfare burden that the island administration sought to avoid. By transferring her assets to a private maintainer, Jane Mudge removed herself from the potential parish-charge category, with Samuel Vesey assuming the support obligation that might otherwise have fallen on the institutional charity of the island. The estate transferred included twenty acres of land in Stocks Valley (ten acres of greenwood land and ten acres of lot and free land), an old house with provisions, two named slaves Isaac and Hagar, and the stock of cattle (except such as had already been given away under a separate paper). The composite transfer reproduces the institutional pattern of treating land, dwellings, slaves and livestock as a single working unit, with all components moving together within a single deed. Stocks Valley as the location of the Mudge estate connects to the earlier William Seale confirmation of twenty acres in Stocks Valley formerly the lot land of the deceased Jos Bartlett, processed at the major 1713 sitting. The Mudge estate's location next to ten acres in the possession of Thomas Leech places the Leech family within the Stocks Valley cluster, with Thomas Leech perhaps connecting to the wider Leech network already documented through Isaac Leach, Robert Leech and the Leach apprenticeships. Captain Matthew Bazett, William Cale and John Twack as the adjoining holders of the second ten-acre parcel place the Mudge estate within the documented |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                   | Stocks Valley network. The Captain designation now attached to Matthew Bazett reflects his elevation in social and institutional rank since his earlier identification as fifth in council in the 1711 framework. The captain title perhaps marks his rise to a senior military classification within the garrison hierarchy. The two named slaves Isaac and Hagar continue the institutional pattern of identifying slaves by personal names within working estate transfers. The biblical names assigned reproduce the convention observed earlier across the records, with Asher in the Trapp-Goodwin sale of February 1690, Oliver in the Powell-Greentree sale of March 1703, and Peter in the Doveton apprenticeship of March 1708 marking the broader use of biblical and classical personal names for slaves. The granddaughter Sane Vidcarens (the unusual surname perhaps representing a continental or non-English family name) emerges here as the second dependant of the Mudge household. Vesey's covenant to provide her with clothing, meat, drink, washing and lodging, and to arrange for her education in reading, writing and needlework until she came of age or married, reproduces the apprenticeship-style provision observed in the Doveton apprenticeships of 1707-1708 and the Audouart apprenticeship of 1709. The educational obligation matches the standard curriculum for young women in the period. The £10 0s 0d cash payment to the granddaughter at majority or marriage gave her a fixed institutional portion alongside the maintenance and education. The separate retention of her own stock of cattle, with the increase to be delivered to her at the same trigger event, provided a livestock-based portion in addition to the cash. The construction reproduces the institutional pattern of layered settlements that had emerged across the records, with cash, livestock and stock-increase combining to create a graduated portion structure. The revocation clause expressly extinguished all former wills and testaments, with Jane Mudge declaring the present deed as the only operative instrument binding for her relief and the disposal of her estate. The construction converts the testamentary regime into an inter vivos arrangement, providing greater institutional certainty than a will subject to probate and challenge. The mechanism resembles the Mary Jewister slave gift of February 1712 in its preference for inter vivos transfer over testamentary disposition. Jane Mudge appears here as widow and relict of the deceased John Mudge. The John Mudge identification connects to the earlier records, where Jonathan Mudge (late free planter, since died) had sold ten acres at the head of Deep Valley to Matthew Bazett. The institutional record's variation between John and Jonathan Mudge perhaps reflects a single individual under different scribal renderings, or two related family members. The 4 August 1713 William Seale confirmation in Sharks Valley had also named Jane Mudge widow as the northern boundary holder, indicating that her widow status by then had been institutionally recognised for some years. Jane Mudge signed by mark, reproducing her unlettered status. The mark contrasts with the comprehensive estate disposition she undertook through the deed, illustrating that unlettered widows participated fully in substantial property transactions through the mark mechanism. The witnesses Matthew Bazett, Isaac Wood and John Alexander reproduce a senior literate panel for the deed, with Bazett serving as both adjoining holder (in the second ten-acre parcel) and witness. The dual role reproduces the pattern observed in earlier 1713 instruments where adjoining freeholders attended deeds concerning their neighbours. Isaac Wood appears here in his recurring witnessing role, continuing his presence from the September 1712 Hayes-Wood sale. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | The 4 February 1718 dating places this deed in the documented continuation of the post-1716 sequence of large family settlements. Antipas Tovey's registration and examination closes the institutional record with his standard attestation role across the documents of the period. Speculations The complete transfer of the entire Mudge estate to Samuel Vesey in exchange for life maintenance, including the granddaughter's upbringing, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional design in which the widow exchanged the future security of her descendants for the immediate security of her own old age. By placing the granddaughter's upbringing within Vesey's household obligations rather than into a separate trust, Jane Mudge integrated the welfare of both generations into a single maintainable institutional unit. The arrangement perhaps reflects a calculated trade-off between continuity of family ground and immediate practical care during her sickness. The choice of Samuel Vesey rather than a closer kinsman as the recipient of the entire estate perhaps points to the absence of any surviving adult male heir within the Mudge family beyond the granddaughter Sane Vidcarens. By committing the estate to a trusted friend rather than to a family member, Jane Mudge addressed the institutional risk of failing inheritance with a contractual rather than a familial solution. The trusty and well-beloved friend formula gave the gift institutional standing equivalent to a kinship transfer. The granddaughter's compound surname Vidcarens, set against Jane Mudge's own widowed name, perhaps reveals an intermediate generation through whom the granddaughter descended. Jane's daughter or son would have married into a Vidcarens line (whose surname suggests continental European or non-English origin) before producing Sane. The institutional record provides no further detail on the intermediate generation, perhaps reflecting the death of Jane's child before the present deed was sealed. |
| 227 | 222          | Island St Helena The Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Let and Sett unto Samuel Price of the Said Island freeman twenty Acres of Land lying Scituate at the head of Manatee bay Buting toward the N. S. E. &amp; W every way upon the Hon[ourable] Comp[any] Wast Land, w[hilch] was formerly Posses[s]ed &amp; Occupied by Hugh Bodley Sen[io]r late free planter Dec[eased] To have and to hold the s[ai]d twenty Acres of Land unto the said Samuel Price and his present wife Sarah Price in case She should happen to be Left a Widd[ow] during the time of his life and of her Widd[ow]hood and one life more According as he Shall name and appoynt in his Last Will and Testam[en]t Renewable upon payment of one years Rent at Each admittance Upon the Conditions following 1[st]ly First To Improve the said Land in the manner hereafter Mention'd the Said Samuel Price and his Successors Shall Punctually observe and do hereby agree to and Confect that the Trees now Standing on the aforesaid Land Shall be Counsed and he the said Price and his Success[ors] before named Shall be Obliged in Some part of that land to plant and keep up the Same Number of Trees as there is at present in the room of those that Shall, hereafter Cutt Down or used or that fall by age or high winds, and that for every Acre of Ground, He, they or Either of them before Named Shall plant Tenn fruit Trees besides the Wood or Timber Trees before Mentioned, and that Plaintaine nor Figg trees Shall be Counsed in the Number of Trees to be So planted | Island of St Helena The Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Samuel Price of the island, freeman, twenty acres of land at the head of Manatee Bay. The parcel was bounded on the north, south, east and west by the Honourable Company's waste land. It had formerly been possessed and occupied by the deceased Hugh Bodley senior, late free planter. The lease was to Samuel Price and his present wife Sarah Price, if she should happen to be left a widow during his life, for the term of her widowhood, with one life more to follow according to whom Samuel Price would name and appoint in his last will and testament. The lease was renewable on payment of one year's rent at each admittance. The lease was held on the following conditions. First, Samuel Price and his successors were to improve the land by ensuring that the trees then standing on it were preserved. Price and his successors were obliged, in some part of the land, to plant and maintain the same number of trees as currently stood there, replacing any that were cut down, used, or fell through age or high winds. For every acre of ground, Price, his successors or either of them were to plant ten fruit trees in addition to the wood or timber trees preserved. Plantain and fig trees were not to be counted within the number of trees to be planted. Secondly, Samuel Price was immediately to proceed to build a house and to fence the land, leaving a drift way or passage for man and horse and all adjacent parts. The whole twenty acres was to be completely fenced within twenty months at the furthest from the date of the lease. Price was also to plant trees round the inside of every one of the fences.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | 2[d]ly That he the Said Price Shall Immediately proceed to Build a House and Fence in the Land Leaving adrift way or Pas[s]age to man and Horse and all adjacent Parts, And that all the whole twenty Acres of Land be Compleatly Fenced w[i]th in twenty months at furthest after the date hereof, and he Shall plant Trees round the Inside of all and Every of his fences 3[d]ly That for the Encouragem[en]t before Mention'd to Improve the Said twenty Acres of Land by first building a House thereon and by planting ten fruit Trees to Each acre of Land and in Consideration of the Said Price his Fencing in the same &amp; planting round those fences as aforesaid, He the Said Samuel Price or Successors Shall Peace[ably] Posses[s] and Enjoy the Said Land as aforesaid and Shall pay no more then the Usual and Accustomed Rents and Revenues as all other Tennants of the Said Hon[our]ab[le] Lords Propriet[ors], that have Areed Land Do pay, which in the whole is Six Shilling p[er] Acre p[er] ann[um] But in case he the Said Sam[ue]l Price or Success[ors] Do not Improve the S[ai]d Land According to the Intent and true meaning of this agreement That then he the Said Samuel Price and his Successors Shall forfeit and pay unto the Said Lords Propriet[ors] as a Pennalty for Such Neglect Ten Shillings p[er] ann[um] for the Rent of Each Acre to Comence from the time Such Defficiencies or Neglect Shall be Viewed and found to be So by the Governo[r] and Council or Some other Persons | Thirdly, in encouragement of the improvements described, including the building of a house, the planting of ten fruit trees per acre, and the fencing and tree-planting around the fences, Samuel Price or his successors were to peaceably possess and enjoy the land and to pay no more than the usual and accustomed rents and revenues that the other tenants of the Lords Proprietors then paid on arable land, namely six shillings per acre per annum in total. If Samuel Price or his successors did not improve the land according to the intent and true meaning of the agreement, they were to forfeit and pay to the Lords Proprietors as a penalty ten shillings per acre per annum, commencing from the time the deficiency or neglect was viewed and found by the Governor and Council or some other persons. Interpretations The lease introduces a significantly enhanced version of the 1711 institutional framework for tenancy, with improvement covenants that go substantially beyond the standard fence-maintenance and tree-replacement obligations recorded in the 1711-1713 instruments. The arrangement marks the emergence of a more demanding regulatory regime by the early 1720s or later, with a graduated rent structure that rewarded compliance and penalised neglect through the differential between six shillings and ten shillings per acre. The tenure structure innovates in three institutional directions. First, the lease was granted not for a fixed twenty-one-year term as under the 1711 framework, but for the lifetime of Samuel Price, the lifetime of his widow during her widowhood, and one further life to be named in his will. The lives-based tenure converts the lease into a long-term family settlement enforceable across two or three generations. Second, the renewal mechanism replaced the standard term-expiry pattern with a one-year-rent renewal fee at each admittance, providing the Company with a recurring institutional payment as each life took possession. Third, the conditional vesting in the widow only during her widowhood gave the institutional structure a built-in protection against the loss of the family ground through her remarriage. Manatee Bay had appeared earlier in the records through the August 1713 Thomas Harper forward-dated leasehold of twelve acres under the Main Ridge towards Manatee Bay head. The present Samuel Price lease places a new parcel at the head of the bay itself, extending the documented settlement into the area. Hugh Bodley senior, the deceased former possessor, connects to the Hugh Bodley soldier of the May 1703 Ashby-Bodley sale of a James Valley messuage house and the August 1707 Doveton apprenticeship. His progression from soldier to late free planter and the addition of senior in his designation document a settled family trajectory across three documentary appearances. The improvement covenants concerning tree planting and preservation match and elaborate the framework introduced in the 7 May 1717 Haswell lease, which had required ten fruit trees per acre with plantains and papayas counted within the total. The present lease elaborates the requirement by excluding plantain and fig trees from the count and adding a separate obligation to plant trees inside the perimeter fences. The tightening of the tree covenants reveals an institutional concern with sustained arboricultural improvement, perhaps reflecting the Company's recognition by the 1720s that earlier conservation measures had not produced the desired results. The mandatory house-building covenant goes beyond the 1711 framework by requiring an immediate construction obligation rather than merely tolerating existing structures. The institutional purpose was to convert frontier ground into settled habitation, with the tenancy positioned as an instrument of active settlement policy. The drift way or passage requirement preserved |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | public access for man and horse across the property, recognising that enclosed land could not be allowed to obstruct established routes of communication. The graduated rent structure represents the most substantial institutional innovation. Standard rent at six shillings per acre per annum (against the four shillings plus one shilling duty of the 1711 framework, totalling five shillings per acre) marks a significant increase in the underlying institutional charge. The penalty rent of ten shillings per acre applied to non-compliant tenants doubled the underlying rate, providing a powerful economic incentive to comply with the improvement covenants. The mechanism converts the lease into a graduated economic instrument rather than a fixed tenure. The institutional adjudication clause, providing that the Governor and Council or some other persons would determine whether deficiency or neglect had occurred, places enforcement within the regular institutional machinery rather than within a private dispute mechanism. The arrangement gave the Company a flexible administrative tool for managing tenant compliance without requiring formal litigation. The phrase the same number of trees as there is at present in the room of those that Shall hereafter be cut introduced the concept of a baseline tree inventory established at the moment of the lease, against which future deficits would be measured. The institutional pattern resembles modern conservation tenancies, with the Company treating standing tree cover as a measurable asset to be preserved in numerical terms. Samuel Price appears here under the classification of freeman, a status designation that differs from the standard free planter or freeholder used elsewhere in the records. The freeman designation perhaps reflects an institutional category of established island residents who had completed their initial term of service or apprenticeship and held independent civil status, distinct from the soldier, planter and merchant designations applied to most other holders. The recovery of the parcel from the deceased Hugh Bodley senior, with no documented transfer through his heirs or executors, indicates that the Company had taken back the ground on his death and was now letting it out afresh to a new tenant under the enhanced framework. The mechanism resembles the institutional purchasing and onward-selling pattern observed in the August 1713 Jonathan Doveton confirmation, where the Company had purchased the Leonard Hunt and William Marsh estates and onward-sold them to Doveton. Speculations The introduction of an explicit graduated rent structure with a non-compliance penalty perhaps reflects the institutional recognition that voluntary compliance with the 1711 framework's improvement covenants had been inconsistent. By converting the improvement obligations into directly enforceable economic incentives, the present lease shifts the institutional regime from a covenant-based to a market-based approach to tenant compliance. The mechanism harnesses tenant self-interest to achieve the Company's longer-term land management objectives. The lives-based tenure structure, with the lease running for Samuel Price's life, his widow's widowhood and one further appointed life, perhaps marks the Company's response to the institutional difficulty of maintaining substantial improvements over only twenty-one-year terms. By extending the secure tenure across multiple generations, the Company gave the tenant a longer time horizon for recovering the substantial investment in house-building, fencing and tree-planting required under the improvement covenants. The mechanism converts the lease into a quasi-perpetual settlement, with the Company retaining the institutional renewal fee at each generational transition. |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | The exclusion of plantain and fig trees from the counted tree obligation perhaps reflects the Company's institutional preference for slower-growing, harder-wood species over fast-growing fruit trees that provided less durable contributions to the island's wood economy. By directing the tenant's tree-planting effort towards more substantial species, the lease shifted the productive emphasis from quick-fruited species to longer-term timber and durable fruit production. The pattern reveals the institutional differentiation among tree categories within the wider conservation framework.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
| 228          | 223          | Person viewing the Same by their Order And it is hereby further Covenanted and agreed 4[t]hly That all and every Posses[s]or of this Parcell of Land for the future Upon his death the Same Shall be Enjoyed and Possesst by their Wid[ow] during the whole time She Shall remain a Widd[ow] in case the Posses[s]or left Children with her, But if there be no Children then it Shall remain to the Wid[ow] for the whole Terme of her Life whether She remain a Widd[ow] or not, the design and intent of this Lease being to provide for a due and Proper maintenance of the Children in case of their fathers death and and the Mothers or mother in Law making another marriage that then this Land Shall not goe with the Said mother in Law to be Embezeled But the Children Shall be in the Immediate possession thereof 5[t]hly That the last or third Posses[s]or is only named in case of default of an Heir, and to prevent Selling the Estate, But if the first Posses[s]or Shall Leave a Son or a Daughter for his Heir and Nominee to Enjoy this Land then He or She Shall be Succeeded by that next Heir in case they name him in their Said Last Will &amp; Testam[en]t or desire he Should Enjoy the Land after their decease, Yet if this Second Posses[s]or Shall Leave no Heir then She third or last named Shall Enjoy and Posses[s] the whole twenty acres 6[t]hly That the Said Samuel Price and his Successors Shall always doe and bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereign Lord the King his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Hon[our]ab[le] Company and their Successors and Shall duly obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island 7[t]hly And Lastly That after the Said Land is Compleatly Sfenced in, the Fences are to be kept in good Repair, and not to be altered So as to Occasion the Alteration of the Plots, nor to Dispose of this Lease or Sell it to any one that already Posses[s]es thirty Acres of Land upon this Island, but if ever it be alienated, Sold, or Disposed of, it Shall be to Some one upon the place that doth not Posses[s] more then thirty acres neither Shall it be Lawfull to alienate it them without Consent of the Govern[or] and Council for the time being, In Witness whereof the Said Hon[our]ab[le] United Company and Lords Propriet[ors] to these Presents have Set their Com =mon Seale at their Castle in James valley this [...] day of Aprill One Thousand Seven Hundred &amp; Seventeen and the Said Samuell Price to the other part hath Sett his hand and Seale Sealed &amp; Delivered in the presence of | The lease was held on the following further conditions. Fourthly, on the death of every future possessor of the parcel, the land was to be enjoyed and possessed by his widow during the time she remained a widow, if the possessor left children with her. If there were no children, the land was to remain to the widow for the whole term of her life, whether she remained a widow or not. The design and intent of the lease was to provide a due and proper maintenance of the children in the event of their father's death and their mother's or mother-in-law's later remarriage, so that the land would not pass with the mother-in-law to be embezzled. The children were instead to be in the immediate possession of the property. Fifthly, the last or third possessor was named only in case of default of an heir, and to prevent selling of the estate. If the first possessor left a son or daughter as his heir and nominee, that child was to enjoy the land, and was to be succeeded by the next heir if named in his or her last will and testament or if the parent desired that heir to enjoy the land after death. If the second possessor left no heir, the third or last named was to enjoy and possess the whole twenty acres. Sixthly, Samuel Price and his successors were to bear true faith and allegiance to the King, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and were to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. Seventhly, after the land had been completely fenced, the fences were to be kept in good repair, and were not to be altered so as to occasion the alteration of the plot annexed to the deed. The lessees were not to dispose of the lease or sell it to anyone who already possessed thirty acres of land upon the island. If the lease was alienated, sold or disposed of, it was to be transferred to someone resident on the island who did not already hold more than thirty acres. The lease was not to be alienated without the consent of the Governor and Council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the lease at the Castle in James Valley on [...] April 1717. Samuel Price set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Sealed and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The fourth clause introduced a graduated widow-and-children protection mechanism, distinguishing between two scenarios. Where the deceased possessor left both a widow and children with her, the widow retained the property only during her widowhood, with the children gaining immediate possession on her remarriage. Where the deceased left a widow but no children, the widow held the land for her whole life regardless of any later remarriage. The construction reflects an institutional design specifically aimed at protecting the inheritance of children against the consequences of a maternal remarriage, while ensuring that a childless widow retained continuing security. The phrase to be embezzled, applied to the risk of the property passing with a remarried mother-in-law, captures the institutional concern with a stepfather acquiring marital rights over family ground that should properly descend to the children of the first marriage. The |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                   | protective mechanism parallels the conditional vesting in the Earne-Goodwin marriage articles of February 1714, where Frances Goodwin's marriage to George Earne had been preceded by a four-tier obligation protecting the Goodwin children's portions. The 1717 lease applies a similar protective architecture at the level of the institutional tenancy itself. The mother-in-law terminology in the fourth clause carries the early modern English usage in which the term referred to a stepmother (a mother by virtue of marriage rather than birth) rather than to a wife's mother as in modern usage. The clause protects against a stepmother's potential marital appropriation of the children's inheritance, with the institutional mechanism preserving the children's interest against the maternal-line risks of remarriage. The fifth clause structured the lives-based tenure into a three-tier inheritance sequence. The first possessor (Samuel Price himself) was succeeded by his named heir under his will, and that heir was succeeded by the third life only if the second left no heir. The mechanism gave priority to family inheritance while providing institutional fallback protection against the failure of the family line. The construction parallels the John Bryan substitutional clause of August 1713, where any other heir of Edward Bryan resident on the island could take possession if the eldest son did not return. The phrase to prevent selling the estate, attached to the fifth clause's purpose, reveals the Company's institutional concern with maintaining the property as a coherent family settlement rather than allowing it to be liquidated piecemeal. By naming a third life of last resort, the Company gave the lease an institutional fallback that did not require a forced sale in case of failed inheritance. The seventh clause's restriction on alienation to a buyer holding no more than thirty acres reveals an explicit institutional policy of preventing land concentration. The Company sought to ensure that the lease, when transferred, would pass to a smaller landholder rather than to an existing substantial accumulator. The mechanism converts the lease into an instrument of distributive policy, with the Company actively shaping the social structure of land tenure through the conditions attached to individual instruments. The thirty-acre ceiling on transferees provides the first explicit numerical threshold for land concentration documented in the records. The figure perhaps reflects the Company's institutional assessment of the maximum holding consistent with productive family-scale farming on the island. By preventing onward transfer to holders above this threshold, the lease functioned as an active anti-monopoly mechanism within the broader land-management framework. The royal allegiance clause in the sixth condition refers to the King in general terms (his heirs and successors), without naming George I specifically. The omission of the specific monarch perhaps reflects an institutional preference for boilerplate language that would survive the death of the current sovereign without requiring re-execution. The pattern departs from the earlier 1711-1715 instruments that named Queen Anne or George I specifically in the allegiance clauses. The combination of the fourth, fifth and seventh clauses gives the institutional regime a comprehensive intergenerational protection scheme. The fourth protects the widow and children from a remarriage; the fifth structures the multi-life inheritance sequence; and the seventh prevents concentration through inappropriate transfer. The three mechanisms work together to maintain the lease as a coherent family-scale settlement across multiple generations, with the Company retaining institutional supervision throughout. The April 1717 sealing date places the lease in close sequence with the 7 May 1717 Captain George Haswell |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | lease and the 7 May 1717 William Alexander lease, indicating a coordinated spring 1717 cohort under the enhanced framework. The three leases together reveal the institutional shift towards more demanding improvement covenants and tighter tenure controls by 1717. Speculations The introduction of an explicit thirty-acre ceiling on the holdings of any future transferee perhaps reflects the institutional consequences of the substantial accumulations documented across the 1711-1715 period. Figures such as Jonathan Doveton (140 acres), Mary Hoskison (124 acres), Frances Goodwin and Mary Hoskison combined, and Orlando Bagley (99 acres) had built substantial estates under the earlier framework. The Company's introduction of the thirty-acre ceiling perhaps marks a deliberate policy reversal, with the institution seeking to prevent further concentration by restricting future transfers to smaller holders. The mechanism converts each new tenancy into a check on the inheritance and acquisition patterns of the broader landholding class. The two-tier widow protection (during widowhood for widows with children, for life for childless widows) perhaps reflects the institutional recognition that the demographic risks differed for the two categories. A widow with children would, on remarriage, transfer her interest to a new husband and thus expose the children's inheritance; a childless widow had no children's interest to protect and could safely hold the lease for life regardless of remarriage. By distinguishing the two cases at the institutional level, the lease addressed the specific risks of each demographic situation rather than imposing a uniform widow's life-interest pattern. The institutional preference for naming the third life of last resort within Samuel Price's will, rather than requiring the choice to be made at the moment of sealing, perhaps reflects the Company's recognition that the relevant heir might not yet be identifiable in April 1717. By deferring the nomination to the will, the lease gave Price institutional flexibility to choose the third life on the basis of circumstances at the time of his death. The mechanism converts the apparently rigid lives-based tenure into an adaptive instrument responsive to family developments across the first possessor's lifetime. |
| 229 | 224          | A Bill of Sale of 10 Acres Land from Rob[er]t Gurling to Isaac Wood Island St Helena, Know all men by These Presents That I Robert Gurling of said Island Planter, for &amp; in consideracon of Forty pounds Currant mony of this Island to me in hand paid before the Ensealing &amp; delivery hereof by Isaac Wood of the said Island Corporall &amp; Planter the receipt Whereof I Doe hereby acknowledge &amp; my Self fully Satisfyed &amp; for other good causes &amp; consideracions me hereunto moving have bargaind Sold Allienated &amp; Sett over &amp; Doe hereby Absolutely Bargain Sell, Allienate, Assigne &amp; Sett over Unto y[e] said Isaac Wood his heirs Execut[ors] Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs or Assignes, for ever All That my Ten Acres of Land in the Mountain part of y[e] Country vulgarly called Cabbidge Tree Land comonly knowne by the name of James Eastrops Land &amp; Since that in y[e] Pos[s]ession of Pipin Willis Butt ing &amp; bounding on the Land of the said Isaac Wood on the East &amp; the Said Pipin Wills toward the North &amp; West &amp; towards John Alexanders Land on the South To have &amp; to hold the aforesaid part or parcel of Land &amp; the Appurtenances together with all Inclosures Fruit or Timber Trees, Oaths or Priviledges thereon or thereunto belonging which I the said Robert Gurling my Prede cessors or Heirs Did might or Could Do, As Likewise the right of Party Wall or Walls heretofore enjoyed or Paid for And That I do for my Self my Heirs Exec[uto]rs &amp; Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs That do I Warrant Warrant That the said Rob[er]t Gurling have full power &amp; Lawfull | A bill of sale of ten acres of land from Robert Gurling to Isaac Wood. Island of St Helena. Robert Gurling of the island, planter, in consideration of £40 0s 0d in current island money paid before the sealing and delivery of the deed by Isaac Wood of the island, corporal and planter, acknowledged receipt and his full satisfaction. Gurling bargained, sold, alienated and set over to Isaac Wood, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns for ever all his ten acres of land in the mountain part of the country, commonly called cabbage tree land, known by the name of James Eastrop's land, and since in the possession of Pipin Willis. The parcel was bounded eastwards by Isaac Wood's own land, northwards and westwards by Pipin Wills's land, and southwards by John Alexander's land. The grant carried all the appurtenances, including all enclosures, fruit and timber trees, oaths or privileges that Gurling, his predecessors or heirs had held or could exercise, together with the right of party wall or walls previously enjoyed or paid for. Gurling warranted that he had full power and lawful authority to dispose of the ground, and bound himself, his heirs, executors and administrators to keep Isaac Wood, his heirs, executors and administrators harmless against all charges, suits, troubles and vexations arising from the conveyance. Robert Gurling set his hand and seal to the deed on 14 October 1717. Robert GurlingSigned, sealed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason and James Vaughn. The words to keep the said Isaac Wood were first interlined.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Authority to dispose of the said ground as aforesaid hereby Obliging my Self [to keep y[e] S[ai]d Isaac Wood] his heirs Exec[uto]rs &amp; Adm[in]is[trato]rs from all manner of Charges Suits troubles &amp; Vexations that may happen Unto them thereby In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Seale This 14[t]h Day of October 1717 (Sign'd) Robert Gurling Sign'd Sealed &amp; deliver'd in the P[re]s[en]ce of (the words [To keep y[e] s[ai]d Isaac Wood] Mem[orandum] This Land as mentioned above is that Ten being first interlined) Acres given p[er] me to Rob[er]t Gurling by Ver (Sign'd) Lucas Mason edict of the Iury at a Court held the 11[t]h of James Vaughn Feb[ruar]y 1714/15 (Sign'd) Robert Gurling Test: Antipas Tovey (Sign'd) James Vaughn Examined &amp; Registered this 15[t]h Oct[obe]r 1717 Antipas Tovey | A memorandum recorded that the land described in the deed was the ten acres given to Robert Gurling by verdict of the jury at a court held on 11 February 1715. Signed by Robert Gurling and James Vaughn. Witnessed by Antipas Tovey. Examined and registered on 15 October 1717 by Antipas Tovey. Interpretations The sale transferred ten acres of cabbage tree land in the mountain part of the country from Robert Gurling to Isaac Wood at £40 0s 0d. The price places the parcel at the upper end of the per-acre rate range, with a per-acre cost of £4 0s 0d that reflects the higher value of cabbage tree land in the upland zone. The valuation aligns with the documented preferences for cabbage tree ground as the most productive category of land within the institutional classifications. The land had passed through three documented holders before reaching Isaac Wood. The original allottee was James Eastrop, whose name connects to the James Eastings of the September 1694 sale to Thomas Goodwin in Peak Gut and to the James Easthope of the 1687 Fisher Valley sale to John Coole, all probably representing variant scribal renderings of the same surname. The parcel had then reached Pipin Willis (the same Ripin Wills of the August 1713 fifty-acre confirmation at the head of Fishers Valley, under variant rendering), and now passed from Robert Gurling to Isaac Wood. The chain of three previous holders preserves the institutional memory of the parcel's transit through multiple ownerships. The chain-of-title mechanism reproduces the institutional pattern observed in the 1714 Keeling-Wrangham conveyance of the Peak Gut ground, where successive holders were documented through linked memoranda. The repeated practice of recording previous owners within deed recitals provided buyers with documented evidence of clean title back through known stages, supporting the warranty against future challenge. The memorandum below the principal text identifies the source of Gurling's title as a jury verdict at a court held on 11 February 1715. The reference to a court of judicature and jury verdict reproduces the formal adjudicative procedure introduced earlier under the 1711 framework, with the 4 August 1713 Gabriel Powell confirmation also resting on a court of judicature trial. The jury verdict mechanism gave the Company a structured institutional procedure for resolving disputed inheritance or title questions through formal adjudication. The 11 February 1715 dating of the jury verdict (under the old calendar reckoning, converting forward to February 1716 in modern style) places the court adjudication two and a half years before the October 1717 sale. The intervening period perhaps reflects the time required for Gurling to consolidate his title after the favourable jury verdict, with the eventual sale to Isaac Wood resting on a now-mature institutional adjudication. Robert Gurling appears here as planter, marking a continuation of his established standing as a substantial Sandy Bay and Lemon Valley accumulator. His 4 August 1713 confirmation in thirty-one acres and an eleven-acre lease, his £500 0s 0d purchase from Hoskison of October 1706, his 1708 Belward acquisition, and his role as one of the executors in the March 1716 Robert Leech apprenticeship together place him as one of the principal documented free planters of the period. Isaac Wood appears here as corporal and planter, combining military and civil designations. His earlier classifications included cooper (in the September 1712 Hayes-Wood purchase) and corporal (in the August 1713 confirmation), reflecting the institutional pattern of layering trade, military and civil classifications on the same individual across multiple documents. The acquisition of the ten acres adjoining his existing eastern boundary consolidated his cabbage tree holdings into a working unit. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | John Alexander as the southern boundary holder reproduces his documented accumulation at the head of Fishers Valley and the surrounding cabbage tree zone, with his earlier acquisitions of the Bidott messuage, the Grandy ten acres, the Elinor Cotgrave seventy acres, the Lufkin tenement and the Haswell ten acres together placing him as one of the most substantial accumulators of the period. The present sale extends the documentary record of the cabbage tree cluster's interconnections. The phrase oaths or privileges within the appurtenances clause perhaps represents a scribal corruption of paths or privileges, with the institutional concept covering rights of way and other servitudes attached to the ground. The standard documentary regime treated such access rights as part of the conveyance, with the appurtenances clause sweeping in all the associated entitlements. The party wall provision continues the pattern observed in the Pledger-Bell sale of April 1715 and the Conway-Southern sale of April 1715, indicating that party wall rights were treated as a standard category of transferable appurtenance even on rural cabbage tree land. The institutional recognition of party walls in upland mountain ground perhaps reflects the practice of constructing boundary walls between adjacent holdings using shared masonry. Lucas Mason appears here as a witness, marking his recurring presence within the institutional record alongside his March 1712 settlement with Francis Wrangham concerning his wife Elizabeth's portion and the 29 January 1718 endorsement assigning his interests to John and Francis Wrangham. The continued appearance of Mason in the witnessing role places him within the documented literate circle of the period. James Vaughn appears as a new witness, signing alongside Mason on both the principal deed and the memorandum. His dual signing on the same instrument suggests a particular institutional connection with the Gurling-Wood transaction, perhaps reflecting his role in the underlying jury verdict or in the title-clearing process. Antipas Tovey's registration on 15 October 1717, the day after the principal deed was sealed, continues his standard attestation role. The prompt institutional registration reproduces the documentary pattern observed across the late 1710s instruments. Speculations The two-and-a-half-year gap between the February 1715 jury verdict and the October 1717 sale perhaps reflects Gurling's strategic decision to hold the cabbage tree ground for a period after the favourable adjudication before disposing of it. By maturing the title through institutional time and continuing improvements, Gurling perhaps enhanced the market value of the parcel before the eventual sale to Isaac Wood. The pattern reveals a documented case of post-litigation holding within the institutional regime, with the jury verdict serving as the basis for later disposition rather than as the immediate trigger for sale. The acquisition by Isaac Wood of ground adjoining his existing eastern boundary, combined with his repeated appearances across multiple property categories (cooper, corporal, planter, free planter, free), perhaps marks the emergence of a systematic accumulation pattern within the cabbage tree cluster. By assembling adjoining parcels through multiple documented purchases, Wood was building a coherent working position in the upland mountain zone that complemented his earlier Fishers Valley acquisitions. The pattern reproduces the consolidation strategies observed in the Charles Steward, Orlando Bagley and Jonathan Doveton accumulations of the same period. The interlineation of the words to keep the said Isaac Wood within the warranty clause, noted at sealing, perhaps reflects the parties' real-time refinement of the institutional |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | protections during the drafting process. The recorded interlineation protects the deed against any later challenge that the warranty was added after sealing, with the institutional practice of recording interlineations giving the documentary regime its protective force.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 230 | 225          | Island St Helena Whereas The Hon[ourable] the Lords Proprietors of this Island Did by one Certain Lease bearing Date the 27 day of Iuly 1711 Grant unto Thomas Cason Gent one House &amp; Forty Acres of Greenwood Land And also by one other Lease Dated the 4 day of August 17[14] 1713 Did further Grant unto the said Thomas Cason Six Acres of Cabbedge Tree Land each parcel for the Term of Twenty One Years from the Respective Dates of each Leafs both which Leases are now produced and Surrendred up Adopen the Humble Petition of the said Thomas Cason in a Consultation of the Tenth day of this Instant December 1717 Setting forth that he hath been at great Expence and Trouble in Fencing, Improving, Planking of Wood upon the said Land and designing further to Improve the same. Wherefore The said Lords Proprietors the Hon[ourable] United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise, Grant, Lease, Lett and to Farme Lett unto the said Thomas Cason All That mes[suage and Tenement Scituate Lying and being in the South Division of this Island near Sandy Bay formerly called and knowne by the Name of Roebleys Land the whole containing Forty Five acres by mensuration Plantable and Pasture Land Particularly One House, and Forty Acres of Greenwood Land Lying towards the North on the Land of Charles Stewards Orphans (formerly Thomas Earles Orphans) and John Robinson Land towards the East on the Land of the said John Robinson, towards the South and West on the Land of the said Charles Stewards Orphans And on the West on part of John Coles Land Also Five acres of Land more in the Mountaneous part of Sandy Bay under the Main Ridge vulgarly called Cabbadge Tree Land Butting and Bounding towards the East and North on the Hon[ourable] Companys Waste Land towards the South on the Land Thomas Smallon and towards the West on the Hon[ourable] Companys Waste Land in the Posses[sion of said Charles Stewards Orphans To have and to hold the said Demised Mes[suage and Tenement with the Appur tenances above except part and parcel thereof to him the said Thomas Cason his his Executors Administrators or allow of Assignes From the day of the Date of these presents for and during all the time space and Term of the Naturall Lives of Martha (the wife of W[illiam] Worrall) John &amp; Sarah the Son and Daughter of the said William and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the said Nominees upon the Payment of one years Rent at the Admittance of each Life or new Nominee Upon condition That he the said Thomas Cason his Heirs or Assignes allowed of Do alwayes bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lord King George his heires and Successors and to the said Hon[ourable] Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island, Yielding and Paying therefore yearly and every year during the said Term unto the said Hon[ourable] Company their Successors Agents or Assignes the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides One Shilling Duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25 day of March) That the said Thomas Cason his heirs or allowed Assignes shall and will well and Sufficiently repair Support maintain Upkeep and keep the Dwelling house and out housing in and upon the Premises and all the | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island had earlier granted to Thomas Cason, gentleman, two leases. The first, dated 27 July 1711, granted him one house and forty acres of greenwood land. The second, dated 4 August 1713, granted him a further six acres of cabbage tree land. Each parcel was leased for twenty-one years from the respective date of each lease. Both leases were now produced and surrendered upon Thomas Cason's humble petition, presented to the council on 10 December 1717. Cason set out that he had been at great expense and trouble in fencing, improving and planting wood upon the land, and that he intended further improvements. The Lords Proprietors, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Thomas Cason the messuage and tenement in the South Division of the island near Sandy Bay, formerly called and known by the name of Roebleys Land. The whole estate contained forty-five acres by measurement, comprising plantable and pasture land. The estate included one house and forty acres of greenwood land, bounded northwards by the land of Charles Steward's orphans (formerly Thomas Earle's orphans) and the land of John Robinson, eastwards by the land of John Robinson, southwards and westwards by the land of Charles Steward's orphans, and westwards in part by John Coles's land. The estate also included a further five acres of land in the mountainous part of Sandy Bay under the Main Ridge, called cabbage tree land, bounded eastwards and northwards by the Honourable Company's waste land, southwards by the land of Thomas Smallon, and westwards by the Honourable Company's waste land in the possession of Charles Steward's orphans. The lease was granted to Thomas Cason, his executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company. The term ran for the natural lives of Martha, wife of William Worrall, and John and Sarah, the son and daughter of William Worrall, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees on payment of one year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee. The lease was held on condition that Thomas Cason, his heirs or approved assigns bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. Cason yielded and paid annually during the term to the Honourable Company, their successors, agents or assigns the rent of four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Cason and his heirs or approved assigns covenanted to well and sufficiently repair, support, maintain and keep up the dwelling house and outhousing on the premises, together with all gates, stiles, walls, ditches, banks and other fences, with all needful and necessary repairs whenever required. They were not to alter the fences, which were the landmarks and would force alteration of the two plans annexed to the deed. They were to keep the ground in good heart by digging and manuring, and were not to allow it to be run out. They were further to replant the lemon garden or orchard adjoining the dwelling house with good fruit trees and to preserve those trees in good order and condition. They were to plant new trees in the place of any that decayed, so that the orchard remained a good forest, and besides lemons [...] Interpretations |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Gates Styles Walls Ditches Banks or other Fences with all needfull and necessary reparations when, and as often as need shall require, and not to alter the Fences which are the Land marks which will occasion the Alteration of the two Plotts hereunto annexed and Shall keep the Ground in good heart Digging and manureing it and not Suffer the same to be run out and also Stell and well replant with good Fruit Trees the Lemon Garden or Orchyad Adjoyning to the said Dwelling house, and preserve the same Fruit Trees in good Order and Condition, and Plant Others in their Roomes whenever any of them Shall decay so that the same may be a good Forest hereafter and besides Lemon | The lease consolidated and replaced Thomas Cason's two earlier instruments under the 1711 framework, with the original twenty-one-year terms surrendered and a new lives-based tenure substituted. The surrender-and-regrant mechanism represented a significant institutional procedure, with the Company exchanging the existing fixed-term leases for a new lives-based instrument on enhanced covenants. The transaction operated as an institutional upgrade of the documentary regime applied to the Cason estate. The reason for the regrant, recorded in the recital, was Cason's substantial investment in fencing, improvement and tree planting on the land. The Company recognised that the standard twenty-one-year term did not provide sufficient institutional security for the level of investment Cason had made, and granted the new lives-based tenure to secure his continued improvement. The mechanism parallels the 7 May 1717 framework introduced for new tenancies such as Samuel Price's Manatee Bay lease, with both instruments reflecting the institutional shift toward lives-based tenure for substantial improving tenants. The original 27 July 1711 lease had been recorded as forty acres of greenwood land with a house, called Welley's Land in the earlier institutional record. The present deed gives the alternative spelling Roebleys Land, perhaps reflecting a scribal variation of the same place name or a more authoritative reading drawn from the original lease. The forty-five-acre total of the present consolidated lease (forty acres of greenwood plus five acres of cabbage tree land) reduces by one acre from the original combined holdings of forty plus six acres, perhaps reflecting a minor adjustment in the measurement at the time of the new survey. The boundary description identifies the principal forty-acre parcel as adjoining the land of Charles Steward's orphans (formerly Thomas Earle's orphans). The recital documents that Charles Steward had acquired the Earle children's land at some point after the August 1713 confirmations, with the orphan estate now passing through Steward's possession. The transmission perhaps reflects Charles Steward's own death by 1717 (with his orphans now succeeding to the ground), or his acquisition of the Earle orphans' parcel through purchase or trustee arrangement. The institutional pattern of orphan-estate succession across multiple families operated continuously. The lives-based tenure was structured around the Worrall family, with Martha (wife of William Worrall) and John and Sarah (the son and daughter of William Worrall) named as the three nominee lives. The arrangement vested the practical interest in a family entirely distinct from Cason himself, with Cason as the institutional lessee but the Worrall family lives determining the duration of the tenancy. The construction perhaps reflects a private arrangement between Cason and Worrall in which the Worrall family received working occupation under Cason's institutional title, with the lives-based term protecting the Worrall family interest across two generations. The renewal mechanism, requiring payment of one year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee, reproduces the institutional pattern introduced in the April 1717 Samuel Price lease. The mechanism converted the lives-based tenure into a recurring institutional fee structure, with the Company receiving payment at each generational transition. The £11 5s 0d annual rent on the forty-five acres (at five shillings per acre) produced a substantial total commitment over the lifetime of the longest-surviving nominee. The covenant to keep the ground in good heart by digging and manuring introduces a soil-management obligation beyond the standard fence-maintenance and tree-planting covenants of the 1711-1713 framework. The phrase good heart in the agricultural sense refers to the fertility and condition of the soil, with the institutional obligation requiring active cultivation practices to maintain |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | productive capacity. The pattern parallels the enhanced improvement covenants of the April 1717 Samuel Price lease. The lemon garden or orchard adjoining the dwelling house represents a documented specialist horticultural feature on the Cason estate. The institutional obligation to replant the lemon garden with good fruit trees and to maintain the trees in good order and condition, planting new trees in place of any that decayed, gave the orchard the status of a perpetual productive feature. The forest reference at the close suggests that the orchard was treated as a structured tree environment requiring ongoing arboricultural management. Thomas Cason had progressed across the documented records from ensign in his July 1711 Welley's Land lease, to lieutenant by August 1713 (when he leased the additional six acres of cabbage tree land), to the present gentleman designation in December 1717. The progression reflects his rising institutional standing across six years of documented engagement, with the gentleman classification placing him at the top of the civilian-status hierarchy by 1717. The 10 December 1717 consultation date, named within the recital as the institutional moment of the petition's approval, marks a recent council adjudication on Cason's improvement claims. The council's acceptance of the surrender-and-regrant mechanism gave the new tenure its institutional foundation. The pattern reproduces the documented practice of using consultation hearings as the institutional triggers for substantial leasehold restructurings. Speculations The lives-based tenure vested in the Worrall family rather than in Cason himself perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional design under which Cason held the lease as a beneficial owner or trustee while the Worrall family enjoyed the working possession. The arrangement perhaps reproduces a private settlement between Cason and Worrall, with the Cason institutional title protecting the family ground for the Worrall lives without exposing the underlying interest to Cason's own creditors or successors. The mechanism converts the documentary lease into an instrument of family settlement at a layer beneath the institutional record. The institutional acceptance of the surrender-and-regrant procedure, in exchange for enhanced improvement covenants and lives-based tenure, perhaps reflects the Company's recognition that the 1711 framework's twenty-one-year terms had created perverse incentives for tenants in the later stages of their leases. By extending the tenure across multiple lives in exchange for stronger covenants, the Company aligned the tenant's investment horizon with the Company's long-term land management objectives. The mechanism converts the lease into a quasi-perpetual settlement that rewarded sustained improvement while preserving institutional control through the renewal fees. The recital that Charles Steward's orphans had succeeded to the Earle orphans' land perhaps reveals the documented operation of orphan-estate consolidation across multiple families. The mechanism by which one orphan estate could acquire another through marriage, trustee arrangement or purchase produced layered inheritance chains that the institutional record preserved through the formerly Thomas Earle's orphans recital. The pattern indicates the documentary regime's tolerance of complex multi-generational orphan succession within the broader land-management framework. |
| 231 | 226          | Lemon Garden nor shall not sell or dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same without the Consent of the Governour and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the said Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors to these p[rese]nts have sett their | The Cason lease provided that no sale or disposal of the lease or any interest in it could be made without the consent of the Governor and Council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at Union Castle in James                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Common Seale at Union Castle in James Valley this Fourth Day of February in the year of our Lord one thousand Seven hundred and Seventeen 1717/18 and Fourth year of his Majesties Reign And the said Thomas Cason to the other part hath sett his hand and Seal Tho[mas] Cason (Seal)Sealed &amp; Deliver'd in y[e] Pres[en]ce of Mathew Bazett Antipas ToveyIsland St HelenaAt a Council held on Monday the 14[t]h of March 1697 att Fort JamesPresent Jn[o] Blackmore Gov[ernor] Anth[ony] Beale Dep[uty] Gov[ernor] Jos[hua] Johnson Lieu[tenant] Mich[ael] Morrice Lieu[tenant] Mr Robert Swallow Whereas Lieu[tenant] Jos[hua] Johnson hath desired that he may have the s[ai]d Wash House belonging to the Hon[ourable] Comp[any]'s masters Scituate over against their great Store House in Chappell Valley above the Fort James for which he is willing to give reasonable Satisfaction, now because the said wash house is decayed &amp; of little use to the Hon[ourable] Comp[any] It is OrderedThat the s[ai]d Lieu[tenant] Jos[hua] Johnson shall have the s[ai]d old wash house, for w[h]ich he shall have placed to his Debt with the s[ai]d Hon[ourable] Comp[any] the sume of Forty Shillings, And that a Warr[an]t be Drawn and Signed to Cap[ta]in Anth[ony] Beale to that purposeRegistered at y[e] request of Joshua J[ohn] Blackmore Johnson Planter &amp; Order of Council J[oshua] J[ohnson] The mark of Nick[holas] M Morris Robert SwallowIsland St Helena Mr Tho[mas] Cason's Assignm[en]t to W[illiam] Worrall of his above Lease for 45 acres of y[e] Comp[any]'s LandI the within mention'd Tho[mas] Cason by Consent of the Gov[ernor] &amp; Council of S[ai]d Island Assigne Sett over to Grant unto W[illiam] Worrall of s[ai]d Isl[and] Planter all my right Title &amp; Interest to this Lease, In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Seal this 25 March 1718 (Sign'd) Tho[mas] Cason (Seal)Sealed &amp; deliver'd in the pres[en]ce of (Sign'd) Isaac Pyke Esq[ui]r[e] Gov[ernor] Registered George Hasnell Dep[uty] Math[ew] Bazett 2 in Coun[cil] Antipas Tovey Sec[retary] Antipas Tovey 4 in Coun[cil] | Valley on 4 February 1718, in the fourth year of His Majesty's reign. Thomas Cason set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Thomas Cason (seal)Sealed and delivered in the presence of Matthew Bazett and Antipas Tovey.Island of St HelenaAt a council held on Monday 14 March 1697 at Fort James. Present were John Blackmore, Governor, Anthony Beale, Deputy Governor, Joshua Johnson, lieutenant, Michael Morrice, lieutenant, and Mr Robert Swallow.Lieutenant Joshua Johnson had requested that he be granted the wash house belonging to the Honourable Company's masters, situated opposite their great storehouse in Chapel Valley above Fort James. He was willing to give reasonable satisfaction for the building. The council noted that the wash house was decayed and of little use to the Honourable Company.The council ordered that Lieutenant Joshua Johnson should have the old wash house, with the sum of £2 0s 0d placed to his debt with the Honourable Company. A warrant was to be drawn and signed to Captain Anthony Beale for that purpose.Registered at the request of Joshua Johnson, planter, and by order of council. Signed by John Blackmore, Joshua Johnson, the mark M of Nicholas Morris, and Robert Swallow.Island of St Helena. Mr Thomas Cason's assignment to William Worrall of his lease of forty-five acres of the Company's land.Thomas Cason, by consent of the Governor and Council of the island, assigned, set over and granted to William Worrall of the island, planter, all his right, title and interest in the lease. Thomas Cason set his hand and seal to the assignment on 25 March 1718.Thomas Cason (seal)Sealed and delivered in the presence of Isaac Pyke, esquire, Governor, George Hasnell, deputy, Matthew Bazett, second in council, and Antipas Tovey, secretary and fourth in council. Registered by Antipas Tovey. InterpretationsThe closing of the Cason lease was sealed at Union Castle in James Valley on 4 February 1718 (the manuscript 1717 falling under the old calendar reckoning), with the consent-to-disposal clause completing the institutional restrictions on alienation. The two-witness panel of Matthew Bazett and Antipas Tovey reproduces the standard senior literate quorum, with Bazett continuing his recurring role as council surveyor and substantial accumulator and Tovey serving in his attestation capacity.The intercalated council order of 14 March 1697 records an early documentary instance of the Company disposing of decayed institutional property to a private petitioner. The order represents an early example of a procedure later regularised under the 1711 framework, with the Company transferring under-utilised buildings to private hands in exchange for institutional credit. The mechanism converts depreciated assets into productive private holdings without requiring cash exchange.The £2 0s 0d (forty shillings) placed to Joshua Johnson's debt with the Company represents a small institutional charge for the wash house. The mechanism of placing the sum on the petitioner's account, rather than requiring cash payment, gave Johnson institutional credit-based access to the building without requiring liquid funds. The pattern parallels later store-credit transactions documented across the records, such as the £170 0s 0d Lufkin-Alexander sale of June 1712.The council members present in March 1697 included Governor John Blackmore (the same J. Blackmore who had signed the original 1684 Company grants to Owen Bevan and Andrew Wilson), Anthony Beale as Deputy Governor (with the captain designation now expanded), Joshua Johnson (the petitioner himself, also serving on the |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | council), Michael Morrice as lieutenant (whose later sale of a James Valley house to Ripon Wells in October 1701 is documented), and Mr Robert Swallow (whose courtesy-titled holdings appear in the 1682 inquest). The composition reveals the small institutional circle of senior officers that combined administrative and personal interests within the same body. The simultaneous role of Joshua Johnson as both petitioner and council member reproduces the institutional pattern of senior officers acting in their own interest at council sittings. The pattern parallels the documented conflict-of-interest cases such as Matthew Bazett's own freehold confirmation at the 23 June 1711 sitting, where he attested his own deed as fifth in council. Captain Anthony Beale's role as the warrant recipient marks his institutional position in 1697 as the deputy governor handling the administrative execution of council orders. His name connects to the same Captain Anthony Beale of the 1682 inquest, the substantial accumulator at the head of Waterfall Valley with the forty-acre allotment. His continuing institutional role across a fifteen-year period from 1682 to 1697 documents the long-running family-and-office connection within the Beale line. The 1697 wash house order is anchored within the larger Cason document because of its institutional connection to the Joshua Johnson family. Johnson appears in the 1717-1718 records as a witness across multiple transactions including the Earne-Goodwin marriage articles of February 1714 and the Robert Leech apprenticeship of March 1716. The wash house acquisition of 1697 marks an early stage in his documented property accumulation. Nicholas Morris signed by mark, distinguished from Michael Morrice (lieutenant) named in the attendance list. The differentiation perhaps reflects two separate individuals of the same family or variant scribal renderings of the same name with separate identities. The assignment of the Cason lease to William Worrall, sealed on 25 March 1718 (Lady Day, exactly seven weeks after the principal lease sealing), confirms the deliberate institutional structure under which Cason had held the lease only briefly before transferring the working interest to Worrall. The seven-week gap aligns with a settled pattern of institutional handovers, with the Cason regrant of February 1718 operating as a documentary stage rather than as the operative tenancy arrangement. The witness panel for the assignment marks a significant institutional change. Isaac Pyke, esquire, appears as Governor, succeeding to that office at some point between the December 1717 council recital naming John Roberts and the March 1718 assignment. George Hasnell as deputy succeeds the earlier Edward Walkborne deputy governorship, and the institutional structure now records Matthew Bazett as second in council and Antipas Tovey as secretary and fourth in council. The promotion of Tovey to the formal secretarial role at the fourth-in-council level marks his institutional consolidation across the documentary regime. The progression of council ranks visible across the 1697 and 1718 records traces the institutional generational transition over twenty-one years. The 1697 council included Blackmore, Beale, Johnson, Morrice and Swallow; the 1718 council included Pyke, Hasnell, Bazett and Tovey. The replacement of the entire senior personnel across the period reflects the demographic mortality and career transitions documented throughout the records. The assignment by consent of the Governor and Council reproduces the institutional restriction on alienation that the principal Cason lease had embedded in the seventh clause and the closing consent-to-disposal language. The mechanism gave the Company active institutional control over each transfer of the lives-based tenancy. Speculations |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | The seven-week interval between Cason's regrant of February 1718 and his immediate assignment of the entire lease to William Worrall in March 1718 perhaps reveals a documented case of the surrender-and-regrant procedure being used to facilitate a planned transfer between two parties. By having Cason petition for the new lives-based tenure in his own name, securing the lives of the Worrall family within the new institutional title, and then assigning the consolidated lease to Worrall, the parties may have used the documentary regime to manage what amounted to a complex private transaction through staged institutional steps. The mechanism allowed Cason to extract the value of his improvements while securing the Worrall family within the long-term tenure. The retention of the Worrall family lives within the lives-based tenure after the assignment to William Worrall perhaps gave the assigned lease its institutional protection. With his own wife and children named as the lives, William Worrall now held a lease whose duration was determined by the survival of his closest family members, with the institutional security guaranteed by the original surrender-and-regrant procedure rather than by his own life. The construction perhaps represents an early documented case of a lives-based tenure deliberately designed to be assigned to a family head whose own family members served as the underlying lives. The intercalation of the 1697 wash house order within the Cason lease document, more than twenty years after the original council resolution, perhaps reflects the institutional practice of preserving early records of senior officers' acquisitions within the documents of their family successors. The Joshua Johnson wash house acquisition appears within a document whose witness panel and registration would have been overseen by his successors in the council and registration roles, with the documentary regime treating the early records as supporting evidence for later transactions even at a remote temporal distance. |
| 232 | 227          | Island St Helena Know all Men by these Presents That We George Sanders &amp; Mercy Sanders of the said Island for &amp; in Consideration of the Sum of Fifty Pounds in good &amp; Currant Mony of the said Island to us in hand paid at or before the Ensealing &amp; delivery hereof by John Alexander of said Island Gentlem[an], whereof we do acknowledge &amp; our selves to be fully Satisfyed Contented &amp; paid, Have bargained, Sold, &amp; Deliver'd, &amp; do by these presents bargain, Sell, &amp; deliver, unto y[e] said Jn[o] Alexander, one negro man Slave known by the Name of Peter from the Day of the Date hereof for ever as also the Life time that the said Mercy Sanders hath by Vertue of her former Husband Richard Alexander Last will &amp; Testament in a Mes[s]uage House Scituate in James Valley together with all her Right, Title, Interest Claim or Demand that She the said Mercy Sanders now has or may hereafter have in any of the said hereby bargained Premises or any part thereof to have &amp; to hold the said Bargain'd premises unto the said John Alexander his Heirs, Executors, administrators and assigns, to the only proper use &amp; behoof of the said John Alexander his Heirs Executors administrators &amp; assigns for &amp; during the Life of the aforenam'd Mercy Sanders and We the said George Sanders &amp; Mercy Sanders for our Selves, Heirs, Executors, Administrators &amp; assigns against all manner of persons shall and will warrant and for ever defend and keep harmless the said John alexander his Heirs Executors, administrators and assigns by these presents In Witness whereof together with the Delivery of the said Bargain'd Premises we hereunto Set our hands &amp; Seals this third Day of January in the third year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George King of England &amp;c Annoque Dom[ini] One Thousand Seven hundred | Island of St Helena George Sanders and Mercy Sanders of the island, in consideration of £50 0s 0d in good and current island money paid by John Alexander of the island, gentleman, acknowledged the receipt and their full satisfaction. Together they bargained, sold and delivered to John Alexander one slave man known by the name of Peter, from the day of the date of the deed for ever, together with the life-interest that Mercy Sanders held under her former husband Richard Alexander's last will and testament in a messuage house in James Valley. The grant included all her right, title, interest, claim or demand in any of the property. The grant was to John Alexander, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, to the only proper use and benefit of John Alexander and his successors during the life of Mercy Sanders. George Sanders and Mercy Sanders bound themselves, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to warrant and for ever defend the bargained premises and keep John Alexander, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns harmless against all manner of persons. They set their hands and seals to the deed on 3 January 1718, in the third year of the reign of King George. George Sanders (seal) Mercy Sanders (seal) Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of James Vesey. A note recorded that the words from the day of the date of the deed for ever in the sixth line were interlined before sealing, signing and delivery. A true copy, examined and registered by Antipas Tovey. Island of St Helena John Goodwin of the island, gentleman and freeholder, in consideration of £160 0s 0d of lawful money of England paid by Jonathan Doveton of the island, free planter, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. Goodwin bargained, sold and delivered to Jonathan Doveton his dwelling house in James Valley, formerly                                                                                                                                                        |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | &amp; Seventeen Geo[rge] Sanders (Seal) Mercy Sanders (Seal) Sign'd Seal'd &amp; D[elivere]d in the presence of NB that the words interlin'd in the Sixth line (from the Day of the date hereof for ever) were so interlined before the Ensealing Signing &amp; delivery hereof A true Copy Examined &amp; Test: Registered Antipas Tovey Antipas Tovey James Vesey Island St Helena Know all men by these presents that I John Goodwin of S[ai]d Isl[an]d Gent[leman] &amp; Freeholder for &amp; in considera tion of One Hundred &amp; Sixty pounds of Lawfull mony of England to me in hand paid by Jon[athan] Doveton of s[ai]d Isl[an]d Free planter whereof I do hereby acknowledge my Self full Contently Satisfyed Have bargained, Sold &amp; deliver'd by These Presents Sa[tis]fied] &amp; de liver unto y[e] s[ai]d Jon[athan] Doveton my Dwelling House Scituate in James Valley, formerly known to be Robert Goodwins, &amp; Jon[athan] Doveton his Heirs Exec[uto]rs Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs &amp; Assigns to have &amp; to Hold the s[ai]d Bargain'd premises for ever, In witness whereof together with delivery of the bargain'd premises I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Seal this 12 day of July in the third year of the reign of our Sovereign | known to have been Robert Goodwin's. The grant was to Jonathan Doveton, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns for ever. John Goodwin set his hand and seal to the deed on 12 July, in the third year of the reign of His Majesty [...] Interpretations The Sanders-Alexander sale records a £50 0s 0d transaction comprising two distinct categories of property: the perpetual ownership of the slave Peter and the life-interest of Mercy Sanders in a James Valley messuage house under her former husband Richard Alexander's will. The composite sale represents an institutional pattern of combining outright transfers and reversionary interests within a single deed, with the parties using the documentary regime to clear both elements at once. The recital that Mercy Sanders held the life-interest in the James Valley house by virtue of her former husband Richard Alexander's last will and testament establishes that Richard Alexander had bequeathed her a life-interest in the house, with the perpetual title presumably descending to other heirs of his estate. The earlier 1713 records had named the late Richard Alexander as a deceased holder whose Company-leased ground had been redistributed to Thomas Gargen by 1713. The present deed adds the further documentary detail that he had also held urban property in James Valley with a life-interest reserved to his widow. Mercy Sanders had since remarried George Sanders, whose name appears here as her present husband. The marriage parallels the consultation book 15 folio 80 reference (recorded in the February 1716 Beale-Company deed) to George Sanders's agreement with John Long for the maintenance of the late Richard Alexander's children and the children of Captain Fassall and French. The Sanders identification places him within the documented family-arrangement circle, with the present sale representing his and Mercy's joint disposition of the life-interest property. The buyer John Alexander, gentleman, here distinguishes himself by the gentleman designation from his earlier and concurrent register role. The institutional record adapts his classification across multiple documents, with his roles as register, witness, attestor, examiner and purchaser interweaving across the documentary regime. His accumulation of Richard Alexander-related property perhaps reflects a kinship connection with the deceased, with John Alexander acquiring the life-interest of Mercy Sanders as a step in consolidating the Richard Alexander estate within the wider Alexander family. The slave Peter named in the transfer connects to the same Peter who had been transferred for the term of the apprenticeship in the March 1708 Susanna Doveton placement with Robert Leech. The institutional record had documented Peter as a black boy whose services were transferred for the term, with the contingent reversion preserving the underlying estate's interest. The present 1718 sale transfers his perpetual ownership outright to John Alexander, indicating that the Doveton family's claim on him had been resolved by 1718 and that the perpetual title now rested in Sanders hands ready for sale. The 3 January 1718 dating places the sale in early winter, with the third year of George I's reign placing it within the August 1716 to August 1717 regnal year. The third regnal year in modern dating runs from August 1717, with the 3 January 1718 sealing falling within that institutional period. The interlineation of the words from the day of the date of the deed for ever in the sixth line, noted at sealing, gave the perpetual ownership of the slave Peter its explicit documentary expression. The note that the interlineation was made before sealing protects the deed against any later challenge that the addition was made afterwards. The pattern reproduces the documentary practice observed across multiple instruments of the period. |

| BLImageNo.  | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|---------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |                 |                                                                                                                                    | The Goodwin-Doveton sale of 12 July records a substantial £160 0s 0d transaction for a James Valley dwelling house, with John Goodwin (gentleman and freeholder) selling to Jonathan Doveton (free planter) the property formerly known to be Robert Goodwin's. The chain of title preserves the institutional memory of the prior owner, with Robert Goodwin connecting to the same Robert Goodwin who had held a Fort James Valley house formerly John Goodwin's (since died), as recorded in the earlier documentary recitals. The £160 0s 0d price places this dwelling at the upper end of the documented urban range, comparable to the £170 0s 0d Lufkin-Alexander sale of June 1712 (in store credit) and the £285 0s 0d Carne-Francis sale of May 1715. The lawful money of England designation, rather than island money, marks this as a sterling transaction settled in metropolitan currency, reflecting the buyer's institutional standing and the seller's preference for receiving payment in the more stable currency. John Goodwin appears here as gentleman and freeholder, marking his elevated standing within the documented circle. His earlier records had placed him as the surviving executor of Captain Thomas Goodwin's estate, the eldest son who had received the family ground through inheritance, and the substantial accumulator confirmed in fifty-two acres in August 1713. The present sale to Doveton reduces his urban holding, perhaps to liquidate part of the family estate in cash form. Jonathan Doveton appears here as free planter, maintaining the classification carried across his earlier records. His accumulation of the James Valley dwelling adds urban property to his substantial 140-acre rural estate already documented under the 1711 and 1713 frameworks. The purchase consolidates his institutional position as one of the principal accumulators of the period. The 12 July date is incomplete in the present record, with the year reading as the third year of His Majesty's reign but ending at this point in the documented text. The third regnal year of George I runs from August 1717 to August 1718 cannot be the relevant year, so the 12 July 1718 dating in modern style probably applies, with the deed sealed approximately six months after the Sanders-Alexander sale. Speculations The acquisition by John Alexander of the slave Peter together with Mercy Sanders's life-interest in the Alexander house perhaps reveals a deliberate strategy of family-property consolidation through purchase rather than through inheritance. By buying out his probable kinsman's widow during her lifetime, John Alexander acquired both the immediate use of the slave and the eventual reversion in the house, with the perpetual title presumably settling on the family's heirs at Mercy's death. The mechanism converts what would otherwise have been a delayed reversion into an immediate working acquisition, with the £50 0s 0d price representing the discounted value of the combined assets. The use of lawful money of England rather than island money in the Goodwin-Doveton sale perhaps reflects the seller's preference for the more reliable sterling currency, anchored in metropolitan rather than local valuations. The pattern of high-value urban transactions documented in sterling perhaps marks an emerging institutional bifurcation between the local island-money regime used for routine transactions and the sterling regime used for larger, longer-term commitments. The differentiation reproduces metropolitan and colonial currency distinctions familiar from other early modern overseas territories. |
| 233 | 228             | Sovereign Lord George by y[e] Grace of God of Great Brittain France & Ireland King, Defender of the Faith &c[t] Anno Dom[ini] 1717 | The Goodwin-Doveton sale, sealed at the third year of King George's reign by the grace of God of Great Britain, France and Ireland, was concluded in the year of our Lord 1717.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | (Sign'd) John Goodwin (Seal) Sign'd Seal'd &amp; deliver'd in P[re]s[en]ce of Us Matthew Bazett A true Copy Registered this 26 March 1718 Rich[ar]d Swallow W[illia]m Fairfax Antipas Tovey Island St Helena This Indenture made this Nineteenth day of November in the year of our Lord Dom[ini] one Thousand seven hundred &amp; Seventeen, &amp; in the third year of the reign of Our Sovereigne Lord George by the grace of God King of Greate Brittain, France &amp; Ireland Defender of the faith &amp;c[t] Between Frances Carne of the said Island Widdow of the one Part &amp; John Goodwin her Eldest Son of the other Part Witnesseth that the aforesaid Frances Carne for a full Valluation and five Shillings received in ready mony &amp; Token in hand paid by the said John Goodwin at or before the Ensealing &amp; Delivery hereof with which She the said Frances Carne Doth hereby acknowledge her Self to be fully Satisfye contented &amp; paid, And for divers other good causes &amp; valluable Considerations her hereunto moving Have Demised granted Bargained Sold &amp; Deliver'd and do by these presents firmly &amp; absolutely Demise grant Bargaine Sett &amp; deliver unto the said John Goodwin his heirs Executors Administrato[rs] &amp; assigns all that Peice or Percell of Land Containing by Estimation eighty Nine acres be the Same more or less, lying Scituate &amp; being at or near the head of one Branch of Lemon Valley, Butting &amp; bounding as in and by reigester Book of the Said Island in the 156 folio doth &amp; may more fully appear, together with a mes[s]uage House &amp; provi at this Time Standing growing &amp; arrifing thereon, with all and Singular the Appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining Hedges Ditches, Walls, water or water Courses, Fruit Trees Woods Woods with all &amp; every the Liberties rights, Previlleges &amp; Profits that I now have ever had or might have To have &amp; to Hold the Said aforesaid eighty nine acres of Land mes[s]uage House fruits Provisions and all other the Appurtenances before mentioned or any other thing hereunto belonging of What nature or Kind Soever hereby Confirming the Same unto the above named John Goodwin his Heirs Execut[o]rs Administr[a]tors &amp; assigns from the day of the date hereof for ever And the said Frances Carne for her Self her Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs &amp; assignes doth hereby Covenant Promiss &amp; agree to and with the said John Goodwin his Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs &amp; assignes that he they or Either of them Shall | John Goodwin (seal) Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Matthew Bazett, Richard Swallow and William Fairfax. A true copy, registered on 26 March 1718 by Antipas Tovey. Island of St Helena The present indenture was made on 19 November 1717, in the third year of the reign of King George I, between Frances Carne of the island, widow, of the one part, and John Goodwin, her eldest son, of the other part. Frances Carne, for a full valuation and five shillings received in ready money and token paid by John Goodwin at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and her full satisfaction. For divers other good causes and valuable considerations, she demised, granted, bargained, sold and delivered to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns all that piece or parcel of land containing by estimation eighty-nine acres, more or less, at or near the head of one branch of Lemon Valley. The parcel was bounded as in the register book of the island at folio 156. The grant included a messuage house and provisions then standing, growing or arising on the land, together with all the appurtenances belonging to it. The appurtenances included hedges, ditches, walls, water and watercourses, fruit trees, woods, and all the liberties, rights, privileges and profits that Frances Carne then had, had ever had, or might have. The grant was to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns from the date of the deed for ever, with the eighty-nine acres, messuage house, fruits, provisions and all other appurtenances confirmed to him and his successors. Frances Carne covenanted, promised and agreed with John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns that he, they or any of them should [...] Interpretations The Goodwin-Doveton sale of July 1717, with the year now confirmed as 1717 rather than 1718, places the £160 0s 0d transaction within the same regnal year as the November 1717 Carne-Goodwin transfer. The two sales together mark a series of substantial Goodwin family dispositions across the second half of 1717, with the family rearranging its institutional position through coordinated transfers. The witness panel of Matthew Bazett, Richard Swallow and William Fairfax for the July 1717 sale reproduces the established literate circle. William Fairfax appears as a new individual within the documented witness panels of the period. The Fairfax surname connects to no documented earlier holders within the records, perhaps marking his recent arrival or his role within a previously undocumented institutional position. The 26 March 1718 registration by Antipas Tovey, sealing the institutional record of the July 1717 sale, marks a nine-month gap between sealing and registration. The institutional pattern of delayed registration perhaps reflects the documentary administrative cycle, with deeds collected and registered in batches at quarterly or annual intervals rather than at the moment of sealing. The Carne-Goodwin transfer of 19 November 1717 records the transfer of the eighty-nine-acre Lemon Valley estate from Frances Carne (the same Frances Goodwin who had remarried George Carne following the February 1714 marriage articles) to her eldest son John Goodwin. The estate matches the 4 August 1713 Company confirmation of Frances Goodwin's eighty-nine-acre freehold near the head of one branch of Lemon Valley, with the present 1717 transfer moving the substantial freehold from the widow to her son. The token consideration of five shillings paid in ready money, combined with the recital of a full valuation and divers other good causes and valuable considerations, marks the transfer as a quasi-gift rather than a market sale. The institutional construction reproduces the standard early modern pattern of recording a nominal cash |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | consideration to support the documentary regime while the substantive transfer rests on family motives and pre-existing arrangements. The recital that the boundaries appeared in the register book of the island at folio 156 references the institutional record that had documented the original 1713 confirmation. The cross-reference to the register book matches the institutional pattern of preserving boundary descriptions through documentary reference rather than restating them at full length, with the register's folios serving as the definitive source. Frances Carne's identification as widow places her remarriage to George Carne in the past, with George Carne having died at some point between his May 1715 sale of Captain Goodwin's House and the present November 1717 transfer. The institutional record now treats Frances as a twice-widowed woman, first of Captain Thomas Goodwin and then of George Carne. The eighty-nine acres were transferred with a comprehensive set of appurtenances including the messuage house, growing provisions, hedges, ditches, walls, water and watercourses, fruit trees, woods, and all liberties, rights, privileges and profits. The exhaustive enumeration represents the standard early modern conveyancing pattern, with the institutional aim of sweeping all attached rights into the transfer to prevent any later claim that some element had been excluded. The third year of King George I's reign covers the period from August 1717 to August 1718, with the 19 November 1717 sealing falling within that institutional window. The continuing use of the regnal-year formula reproduces the documentary convention observed across the records of the period. John Goodwin as eldest son of the deceased Captain Thomas Goodwin and Frances continues his documented position as the principal Goodwin heir. His earlier confirmation in fifty-two acres of his own freehold in August 1713, his role as executor of his father's estate, and his recent July 1717 sale of the James Valley dwelling to Jonathan Doveton together place him within an institutional pattern of estate consolidation and reorganisation. The present transfer adds his mother's substantial Lemon Valley estate to his documented holdings. The combined effect of the Frances-to-John transfer and the recent James Valley dwelling sale creates a documented pattern of consolidating the Goodwin family's perpetual estate within the eldest son's hands while liquidating the urban property into cash form. The institutional mechanism reorganises the family's institutional position from a mixed urban-rural portfolio to a concentrated rural freehold. Speculations The transfer of the eighty-nine-acre Lemon Valley estate from Frances Carne to her son John for a nominal five shillings perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional design under which the mother conveyed the family freehold to the eldest son during her lifetime rather than waiting for testamentary devolution. By making the transfer inter vivos and through a documented deed rather than through her will, Frances closed off any later challenge by other heirs or claimants and provided John with immediate institutional title. The November 1717 transfer following the death of her second husband George Carne perhaps reflects Frances's strategic timing in disposing of the Goodwin family ground at a moment when no marital interest threatened to attach. The earlier marriage articles of February 1714 had bound George Earne (Carne) to maintain the children's portions, but the death of the second husband freed Frances to make a definitive transfer of the principal family estate without institutional impediment. The mechanism converts the post- |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | widowhood moment into an opportunity for inter-generational estate settlement. The institutional pattern of using nominal consideration to support family-driven property transfers, observed here in the Carne-Goodwin deed, perhaps reflects the documentary regime's preference for documented sales over pure gifts. By recording a small cash payment alongside the broader recitals of family motives, the parties gave the transfer the appearance of a market transaction while preserving the underlying family logic. The mechanism provided maximum institutional protection against later challenge while allowing the parties to pursue family rather than commercial objectives.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 234 | 229          | &amp; may from time to time &amp; at all times hereafter have hold Occupie posses[s] and quietly Enjoy the aforesaid Premises without any manner of mollestation trouble Interruption or Eviction of her the Said Frances Carne or her Heirs Executors Administrat[o]rs or Assignes or of any other Person or Persons whatsoever by my means consent or Procurement and do Warrant to Save and Keep harmless &amp; Indemnified the said John Goodwin his Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs &amp; Assignes and the aforesaid Premises to be free and Cleare from all Incumbrancy anything to the Contrary hereof in any vise notwithstanding In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seale the day &amp; year First above Written her Frances F C Carne Mark Sealed Signd &amp; Deliver'd in the presence of us Lucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall Jn[o] Alexander Island St Helena Know all men by these presents that Frances Carne of the Said Island Widdow for a valluable Consideration and five Shillings to her in hand paid by John Goodwin of the Said Island at or before the Ensealing and Deliver[y] hereof wherewith She doth hereby Acknowledg[e] her Self to be fully Satisfyed Contented &amp; paid and for divers other good Causes &amp; Considerations her thereunto moveing Have demised granted bargained Sold &amp; Deliver'd and by these presents do firmly &amp; obsulutely give grant Demise bargain Sett &amp; Deliver unto the said John Goodwin his Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs &amp; assignes all &amp; Singular That Tennement and Mansion House Standing Sechuate in James valley together with all the Ground thereunto belonging being in Length behinde the Said House 94 foot and in breadth 107 foot already Enclosed for a garden and other necessary uses As also forty five foot in Length Sub 08 foot in breadth before the Front of Said House Enclosed for a Yard and is next Adjoyning to an old House Known by the name of Beals Kitchin and the Ground formerly Jona than Beals Decea[se]d and lately Purchased by the Hon[oura]ble Company of Rich[ard] &amp; Anthoney Beale his two Sons To have and to hold the said House &amp; ground both backwards &amp; foreseards with all &amp; Singu lar other the Appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any | Frances Carne further covenanted with John Goodwin that he and his successors might at all times thereafter hold, occupy, possess and quietly enjoy the eighty-nine-acre Lemon Valley estate without any molestation, trouble, interruption or eviction by Frances Carne, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, or by any other person whatsoever, by her means, consent or procurement. She warranted to save and keep harmless and indemnified John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, and to keep the premises free and clear from all encumbrance, notwithstanding anything to the contrary. Frances Carne set her hand and seal to the deed on the day and year first above written. The mark F C of Frances Carne Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Island of St Helena Frances Carne of the island, widow, for a valuable consideration and five shillings paid by John Goodwin of the island at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and her full satisfaction. For divers other good causes and considerations, she demised, granted, bargained, sold and delivered to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns all the tenement and mansion house in James Valley, together with all the ground belonging to it. The ground measured ninety-four feet in length behind the house and one hundred and seven feet in breadth, already enclosed for a garden and other necessary uses, with a further forty-five feet in length and [...] eight feet in breadth in front of the house, enclosed for a yard. The property adjoined an old house known by the name of Beale's Kitchen and the ground formerly belonging to the deceased Jonathan Beale, lately purchased by the Honourable Company from his two sons Richard and Anthony Beale. The grant was to John Goodwin and his successors, with the house and ground both backwards and forwards and all the appurtenances belonging to them [...] Interpretations The completion of the Carne-to-Goodwin Lemon Valley transfer closes with the standard quiet enjoyment covenant and warranty clauses, protecting John Goodwin against any later challenge by his mother or her successors. The deed structure reproduces the documentary pattern of attaching protective covenants to substantial family transfers, with the institutional mechanism providing the eldest son with maximum security against future disputes within the wider Goodwin and Carne family network. Frances Carne signed by mark F C, reproducing her unlettered status from the February 1713 deed of gift to her son John (where she had used the same F G mark for Frances Goodwin) and from the February 1714 marriage articles to George Earne. The institutional pattern of using marks rather than signatures across multiple substantial transactions illustrates that unlettered widows could participate fully in major property dispositions through the documentary regime's mark mechanism. The witnesses Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander reproduce a senior literate panel. Lucas Mason continues his recurring role across the 1712-1718 |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | records as the husband of Elizabeth Mason (formerly Wrangham), with his appearances in the March 1712 Wrangham settlement, the October 1717 Gurling-Wood witnessing and the present November 1717 Carne deed marking his sustained presence within the institutional circle. William Worrall is the same William Worrall who took assignment of the Thomas Cason lease on 25 March 1718, with his wife Martha and children John and Sarah named as the lives in the lives-based tenure. The second instrument records a further transfer from Frances Carne to John Goodwin, this time of a tenement and mansion house in James Valley. The five-shilling token consideration and the divers other good causes and considerations recital reproduce the institutional construction of the earlier Lemon Valley transfer of the same day, marking the present deed as a coordinated continuation of the broader family settlement. The James Valley property identified here is the same dwelling sold by George Carne and his wife Frances to Henry Francis in May 1715, known as Captain Goodwin's House. The recital that the property adjoined Beale's Kitchen and the ground formerly belonging to the deceased Jonathan Beale, lately purchased by the Honourable Company from his two sons Richard and Anthony Beale, matches the documented February 1716 Beale-Company sales of the two halves of Captain Beale's land for £31 10s 0d each. The Carne-Goodwin transfer of the James Valley property thus places John Goodwin as the new owner of a house whose neighbours had been documented through Company purchase only twenty-one months earlier. The detailed measurements of the property (ninety-four feet by one hundred and seven feet behind the house for the garden, and forty-five feet by an unrecorded breadth in front for the yard) represent a substantial urban plot. The institutional pattern of recording exact dimensions in feet for urban property contrasts with the acreage descriptions used for rural land, reflecting the differential surveying and recording practices applied to the two categories of property. Beale's Kitchen, named as the adjoining structure, reproduces the working byname recorded in the February 1716 Beale-Company sale, where Carne's Kitchen had been the alternative name for the same structure (perhaps reflecting the changing identification of the building as it passed through different uses or occupants). The byname pattern preserves the institutional memory of family connections within the urban fabric. The Carne family appears here at a transitional moment. George Carne had died at some point between his May 1715 sale of Captain Goodwin's House and the present November 1717 deed, with the institutional record now treating Frances as a twice-widowed woman managing her late second husband's residual estate alongside her first husband's family ground. The James Valley property had returned to Frances's hands at some point after the 1715 Carne-Francis sale, perhaps through repurchase by George Carne or through the failure of an institutional transfer. Alternatively, the James Valley tenement transferred here may be a separate property within the Carne estate, distinct from the Captain Goodwin's House sold to Henry Francis in 1715. The boundary description's reference to Beale's Kitchen and the former Jonathan Beale ground does not exactly match the 1715 sale's description of the Captain Goodwin's House. The two properties may be adjoining but distinct James Valley holdings within the wider Goodwin-Carne estate. The 19 November 1717 dating, shared with the Lemon Valley deed, places both transfers within the same family-settlement sealing event. The coordinated processing of two substantial deeds on a single day reproduces the institutional pattern of clustering related |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | family transactions, with the literate witness panel attending both instruments together. The institutional purchase by the Company from Richard and Anthony Beale of the adjoining Jonathan Beale ground, recorded in the February 1716 deeds and now referenced in the boundary description of the November 1717 transfer, reveals how recent institutional purchases became part of the documentary memory available to support later private transfers. The reciprocal mapping between the Beale family disposal and the Carne-Goodwin family settlement places both transactions within a coherent picture of the James Valley urban fabric. Speculations The simultaneous transfer of both the Lemon Valley rural estate and the James Valley urban tenement from Frances Carne to John Goodwin on 19 November 1717 perhaps reveals a comprehensive widow-to-heir property settlement undertaken on a single day. By moving both the principal rural freehold and the substantial urban dwelling into her eldest son's hands at the same moment, Frances completed the institutional consolidation of the Goodwin family estate before any later challenge or change in her own circumstances could intervene. The mechanism converts the post-widowhood moment into a comprehensive estate settlement. The reappearance of the James Valley property within the Goodwin family ground, after its apparent sale to Henry Francis in May 1715, perhaps reveals a complex chain of repurchase or institutional adjustment between 1715 and 1717. Either the 1715 sale to Henry Francis had been unwound through later transactions, or the present 1717 transfer concerns a different James Valley property within the wider Goodwin estate that did not pass through Francis. The documentary record does not resolve the apparent overlap, but the institutional pattern of multiple James Valley properties held by the same family across overlapping documentary chains makes the second alternative more plausible. The deliberate naming of William Worrall as a witness to the Frances Carne-John Goodwin deed, coming approximately four months before his March 1718 assignment of the Thomas Cason lease, perhaps reflects the close institutional connections between the literate planters and merchants who served as witnesses across the major family transfers of the period. By placing Worrall as a witness to one substantial family settlement and then as the assignee of another major leasehold within a few months, the documentary regime reveals a small interlocking circle of figures who alternated between roles as principals, witnesses and beneficiaries across the documented transactions of late 1717 and early 1718. |
| 235 | 230          | wise appertaining of what Nature kind or Quality whatsoever as walls or water Courses Fruit Trees or any other now growing or to grow With all and every the Liberties rights &amp; Priviledges that y[e] the Said Frances Carne now has or may have in time to come or any Person for her hereby Confirming unto the s[ai]d or named John Goodwin &amp; His Heirs for ever all &amp; Singular the aforesaid Premises further Covenanting &amp; agreeing as well for her Self as for Heirs Executors &amp; Administrators that He the Said John Goodwin his Heirs Executors administrators Exec[uto]rs or either of them Shall &amp; may from time to time and at all times hereafter have hold occupie Posses[s] &amp; Quietly Enjoy all and Singular the hereby bargained Premises without any maner of mollestation trouble Eviction Interruption or Disturb =ance of the S[ai]d Frances Carne or her Heirs or from by or under any other Person or Persons whatsoever by her me and Consent or Procurement under any Pretence or Collour that Can or may be Devised and do hereby warrant to Save and Keep harmless &amp; Indemnify the Said Jn[o] Goodwin his Heirs Execut[o]rs Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs and Assignes any thing | The transfer of the James Valley tenement and mansion house from Frances Carne to John Goodwin concluded with the standard quiet enjoyment covenant and warranty clauses. Frances Carne covenanted, both for herself and for her heirs, executors and administrators, that John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns might at all times thereafter hold, occupy, possess and quietly enjoy the bargained premises without any molestation, trouble, eviction, interruption or disturbance by Frances Carne, her heirs, or any other person whatever by her means, consent or procurement, under any pretence or colour. She warranted to save, keep harmless and indemnify John Goodwin and his successors against all claims. Frances Carne set her hand and seal to the deed on 19 November 1717. The mark F C of Frances Carne Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Frances Carne acknowledged that she had received from John Goodwin the full valuable consideration of the bill of sale, and discharged John Goodwin and his heirs for                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|--------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | to the Contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding InWitness Whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand &amp; Sea[[this Nineteenth Day of November Dom[ini] 1717herFrances F C CarneSeal'd Sign'd &amp;c mark Deliver'd in the presence ofLucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall Jn[o] AlexanderI Frances Carne do hereby Acknowledge to haverec[eive]d off and from Jn[o] Goodwin the full valluableCon sideration of the aforesaid Bill of Sale and Do forever Acquit &amp; Discharge the said John Goodwin andhis Heirs Wittness my hand &amp; Seale this 19 day ofNovember Dom[ini] 1717 her Wittness Frances F CCarne Lucas mason mark W[illia]m Worrall J[oh]nAlexander | ever from any further claim. Frances Carne set her handand seal to the receipt on 19 November 1717.The mark F C of Frances CarneWitnessed by Lucas Mason, William Worrall and JohnAlexander. Interpretations The closing of the James Valley tenement transferreproduces the comprehensive quiet enjoyment andwarranty pattern observed across the Carne-GoodwinLemon Valley deed sealed on the same day. The dualsealing of two substantial estate transfers on a single day,both protected by full institutional covenants andwitnessed by the same panel, marks 19 November 1717 asthe formal completion of the widow-to-heir settlement ofthe Goodwin and Carne family ground. The institutional formula under any pretence orcolour that can or may be devised gave the warranty itsbroadest possible scope, closing off not only direct claimsby Frances or her heirs but also any contrived orcolourable interest that might be devised in the future. Themechanism reproduces the early modern Englishconveyancing pattern of using comprehensive negativelanguage to protect the buyer against future indirectchallenges, with the institutional aim of providingcomplete documentary security for the transferee. The receipt endorsed within the deed, acknowledgingthe receipt of the full valuable consideration anddischarging John Goodwin and his heirs for ever, gaveinstitutional proof that the consideration had movedbetween the parties. The combination of the principaldeed, the warranty and the discharge receipt within a singleinstrument reproduces the standard documentary practiceobserved earlier in the Henry Francis-Wrangham sale ofMarch 1715, the Benjamin Pledger-Robert Bell sale ofApril 1715, and the Conway-Southern transactions. The use of the term valuable consideration in thereceipt clause, against the recital of five shillings in theprincipal text of the deed, marks the institutionalambiguity between the documented nominalconsideration and the substantive family-motive nature ofthe transfer. The institutional regime accepted bothnominal cash and substantive familial considerations asadequate to support a transfer, with the documentaryforms providing the legal mechanism while the underlyingmotives rested on the family relationship. The repeated witness panel of Lucas Mason, WilliamWorrall and John Alexander across both the Lemon Valleyand James Valley deeds, and across the principal deeds andthe discharge receipts, reproduces the institutional patternof using a stable witness team for coordinated familysettlements. The three witnesses each played distinctinstitutional roles within the documented circle, withMason as the husband of Elizabeth Wrangham (Mason),Worrall as the planter who would shortly receive theCason lease assignment, and Alexander as the long-servingregister and recurring witness. The institutional discharge of Frances Carne's claimagainst John Goodwin and his heirs gave the familysettlement its final protective layer. By formallyextinguishing any future claim, Frances closed off theinstitutional risk that she or her successors might later seekto recover the property or assert any residual interest. Themechanism converts the perpetual transfer into adefinitive institutional event without any reservation ofclaim or right. The two coordinated deeds of 19 November 1717together complete a comprehensive widow-to-heir estatesettlement. The principal Goodwin family ground (theeighty-nine acres of Lemon Valley freehold and the JamesValley tenement and mansion house) passes to JohnGoodwin in his own right, with the institutional protectionof warranty and discharge ensuring his perpetual title. Thesettlement closes the documented sequence of Goodwinfamily transfers that had begun with the February 1713 |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | deed of gift, continued through the February 1714 marriage articles, and now reaches its institutional conclusion with the post-second-widowhood transfer of the principal estate. Speculations The institutional decision to seal both the Lemon Valley and James Valley transfers on the same day, with identical witness panels and matching documentary structures, perhaps reflects a deliberate strategy of placing the entire widow-to-heir settlement into a single institutional event. By avoiding any temporal gap between the two transfers, Frances Carne and John Goodwin closed off any possibility that intervening events (her own death, the appearance of new claims, or institutional changes) might disrupt the comprehensive settlement. The mechanism converts what might have been multiple stages into a single coordinated documentary occasion. The continued use of the documented mark by Frances Carne, despite her substantial standing as the widow of a former governor and the holder of one of the largest documented widow estates in the records, perhaps reveals the limits of female literacy even within the elite institutional circle of the period. By the 19 November 1717 sealing, Frances had been involved in at least three major property events under her mark across more than five years, illustrating that her unlettered status was a settled institutional reality rather than a temporary condition. The institutional protection embedded in the warranty clauses, particularly the under any pretence or colour formula, perhaps reflects John Goodwin's strategic preparation for potential future challenges from other members of the wider Goodwin and Carne families. By securing the broadest possible covenants from his mother at the moment of transfer, John fortified his perpetual title against any later attempt by siblings, the Carne family relatives, or other interested parties to assert competing claims. The mechanism converts the documentary instrument into a maximum-strength protective shield for the heir. |
| 236 | 231          | Island St Helena Know all men by these presents That I Frances Carne Wid[ow] and Relict of M[r] George Carne de[ceas]ed for &amp; in Consideration of the Sume of Two Hundred Pounds in gold &amp; Currant money to her in hand p[ai]d at or before the Ensealing &amp; Delivery hereof by John Goodwin of the said Island the receipt whereof She doth hereby Acknowledge &amp; her Self therewith to be fully Satisfyed Contented &amp; p[ai]d Have given granted bargained &amp; Sold and by these presents Do absolutely give grant bargain Sell and deliver unto the Said John Goodwin his Heirs Exec[uto]rs Administrators &amp; Assignes Nine Negroe Slaves viz[t] Seven men, one woman and a boy all named as followeth Toby. Harry. John. Demore. Chatham Antony, old Iack and Lucas (men) Will a boy and Ar[an]lada an old wom[an] To have and to hold the Said Nine Negroe Slaves as above and to him the Said John Goodwin and his Heirs for ever to do and Dispose of as he and they Shall think most fitt &amp; meet And I the Said Fran ces Carne do for me my Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs &amp; Assignes That he they or Either of them and their Heirs Shall and may from time to time and at all times hereafter Peaceably and quiet ly Posses[s] and Enjoy all and every the before named Negroes with out any manner of Lett Hinderance Mollestation Interruption or Contradiction of her the Said Frances Carne or her Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrat[o]rs or Assignes or from by or under any other Person or Persons Pretence Claimes or Demands whatsoever by her means Consent or Procurement In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seal this 19[t]h Day of November in the year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventeen | Island of St Helena Frances Carne, widow and relict of the deceased Mr George Carne, in consideration of £200 0s 0d in gold and current money paid to her by John Goodwin of the island at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and her full satisfaction. She gave, granted, bargained and sold to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns nine slaves, comprising seven men, one woman and one boy. The seven men were Toby, Harry, John, Demore, Chatham, Antony and old Jack and Lucas. The boy was Will and the woman was Ar[an]lada, an old woman. The grant was to John Goodwin and his heirs for ever, to use and dispose of as they thought fit. Frances Carne covenanted for herself, her heirs, executors, administrators and assigns that John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns might peaceably and quietly possess and enjoy the slaves without any let, hindrance, molestation, interruption or contradiction by Frances Carne, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, or by any other person under any claims or demands by her means, consent or procurement. Frances Carne set her hand and seal to the deed on 19 November 1717. The mark F C of Frances Carne Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Interpretations The deed completes the comprehensive 19 November 1717 family settlement by transferring nine slaves from Frances Carne to her son John Goodwin for £200 0s 0d in gold and current money. The slave transfer joins the same-day Lemon Valley deed and the James Valley tenement deed in a coordinated triple transfer, with                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | her Frances F C Carne mark Sealed Signed &amp; Delivered in y[e] presence of usLucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall John Alexander | the three instruments together documenting the principal categories of the family estate moving into the heir's hands. The £200 0s 0d consideration paid in gold and current money marks a substantial actual payment, distinct from the nominal five-shilling tokens used in the two earlier deeds of the same day. The price differential between the property transfers (nominal consideration) and the slave transfer (substantial actual payment) reveals the institutional differentiation between family ground (treated as a quasi-gift between mother and son) and movable labour assets (treated as a genuine market transaction). The mechanism preserves the institutional integrity of the property transfers as family settlements while recording the slave transfer as a documented sale. The nine slaves are individually named: Toby, Harry, John, Demore, Chatham, Antony, old Jack, Lucas (seven men, with old Jack carrying the qualifier marking his age), Will (the boy) and Ar[an]jada (the old woman, with the unusual name perhaps representing a corruption of a non-English original or a working byname). The naming pattern reproduces the institutional convention observed earlier in the records, with biblical and classical names such as Asher, Oliver, Peter, Isaac and Hagar mixed with English forms. The institutional valuation of the nine slaves at £200 0s 0d, working out at approximately £22 0s 0d per slave on average, places this transfer within the documented per-head range for slave transactions of the period. The figure reflects the wider valuation pattern visible across the records, with individual slaves typically valued at sums between £15 0s 0d and £40 0s 0d depending on age, sex and working condition. The two qualifiers old Jack and old woman Ar[an]jada mark the institutional recognition that age affected slave value. The presence of two elderly slaves within the transferred group perhaps reduces the average valuation, with the working-age men forming the bulk of the productive labour and the older individuals carrying lesser institutional value. The pattern reveals the documented practice of treating age as an explicit category of differentiation within slave valuations. The boy Will is included alongside the adult slaves, with the institutional treatment of children as part of the labour force. The earlier records had documented similar arrangements involving boys treated as working assets, including the black boy Peter transferred for the term in the March 1708 Doveton apprenticeship and the male slave youth exchanged for Sue in the August 1708 Doveton-Bodley transaction. The institutional regime treated child slaves as productive assets to be transferred alongside adults within the documented slave economy. The quiet enjoyment covenant in the slave deed reproduces the same protective language used in the same-day property transfers. By giving John Goodwin the institutional protection against any future claim by his mother or her successors over the transferred slaves, the deed completed the documented protection for all categories of the family estate. The mechanism converts the slave transfer into a definitive institutional event with the same documentary security as the property transfers. The witness panel of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander reproduces the identical literate trio that attended both the Lemon Valley and James Valley transfers of the same day. The triple use of the same witness panel across three substantial deeds in a single sealing event reproduces the institutional pattern of stable witnessing for coordinated family settlements. Frances Carne's mark F C continues her documented unlettered status, applied here across three substantial deeds in a single day. The pattern of her engagement in major family transactions through the mark mechanism, alongside the literate signatures of her witnesses, reveals |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | the institutional accommodation of differential literacy within the documented elite circle. The 19 November 1717 dating places the three coordinated deeds within the third year of King George I's reign, with the institutional record now treating the complete widow-to-heir settlement as a comprehensive single-day transaction. Speculations The institutional decision to charge a substantial £200 0s 0d for the slaves while transferring the rural and urban property for nominal consideration perhaps reflects a deliberate strategy of preserving cash within Frances Carne's hands while still moving the principal family ground to her eldest son. By accepting nominal consideration for the property and full market value for the slaves, Frances retained substantial liquid funds for her own support while securing the perpetual title of the family ground in the heir's hands. The mechanism converts the comprehensive settlement into a hybrid arrangement balancing the family's long-term institutional interests with the widow's continuing financial needs. The choice of payment in gold and current money rather than store credit or island money perhaps reveals John Goodwin's institutional standing as a substantial figure capable of producing high-quality liquid funds in a major transaction. The £200 0s 0d gold payment marks one of the largest documented cash settlements within the records, placing John Goodwin among the most institutionally capable individuals of the period. The mechanism perhaps reflects either his accumulated wealth from earlier transactions or his access to metropolitan credit channels through the merchant network. The transfer of nine specifically named slaves, rather than the more general slave property recital used in some earlier deeds, perhaps reflects the institutional importance of precise individual identification in slave transactions. By naming each slave individually within the deed, the parties protected against any ambiguity over which slaves were being transferred and provided documentary evidence of the specific labour assets covered by the deed. The mechanism reveals the institutional regime treating slaves as individually identifiable assets requiring named documentation, paralleling the treatment of livestock with distinct marks rather than the more anonymous treatment of bulk commodities. |
| 237 | 232          | Island St Helena Know all men by these Presents that I Frances Carne of the said Island S[t] Helena Widdow &amp; relict of M[r] George Carne deceased For and in Consideration of the Sume of Two Hundred &amp; Six Pounds one Shilling &amp; Seven pence in good &amp; Currant money of the Said Island to me in hand paid by John Goodwin of the Same Inhabitant at or before the Ensealing Delivery hereof the receipt whereof I do hereby Acknow =ledge and my Self therewith to be fully Satisfyed Contented and paid and for divers other good causes and Considerations me hereunto moveing Have demised granted Bargained Sold and Do by these Presents give grant demise Bargain Sett and Deliver unto the Said John Goodwin his Heirs Executor Administrat[o]rs &amp; Assigns all and Singular my Liveing or live Stock of Hoggs, Goates Sheep and Thirty one head of Black Cattle (that is to Say) Nine Cows Nine Bullocks one Heafer &amp; Twelve yearlings To have and to hold the whole &amp; Intire live Stock aforesaid Unto him the Said John Goodwin and his Heirs for ever to do and dis =pose thereof, as he they or Either of them Shall think fitt &amp; propor and the Same Ppaceably and quietly to Posses[s] and Enjoy without any manner of mollestation Interruption or contradiction of me the Said Frances Carne or of my Heirs Executors or Doministrat[o]rs or from by or under any Other person or persons whatsoever by my means Consent or | Island of St Helena Frances Carne of the island, widow and relict of the deceased Mr George Carne, in consideration of £206 1s 7d in good and current island money paid by John Goodwin, inhabitant of the island, at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and her full satisfaction. For divers other good causes and considerations, she gave, granted, demised, bargained, sold and delivered to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns all her living or live stock of hogs, goats, sheep and thirty-one head of black cattle. The cattle comprised nine cows, nine bullocks, one heifer and twelve yearlings. The grant was to John Goodwin and his heirs for ever, to use and dispose of as they thought fit, and to possess and enjoy peaceably and quietly without any molestation, interruption or contradiction by Frances Carne, her heirs, executors or administrators, or by any other person under any pretence by her means, consent or procurement. She warranted to save, defend and keep harmless John Goodwin and his heirs against all claims that might thereafter be made to the live stock of any kind. Frances Carne set her hand and seal to the deed on 19 November 1717. The mark F C of Frances Carne A memorandum recorded the detailed inventory of the live stock: Goats                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------------|-----------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | procurement And do Warrant to Save Defend and keep harmless the Said John Goodwin and his Heirs from any and all manner of Claims that may happen to be hereafter made to all or every the aforesaid hereby Bargained Live Stock as above mention'd in their Severall Kind In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seale this Ninteenth day of November Dom[in] One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Seventeen Memorandum: That the Number of the Goates above Sealed Sign'd &amp; mention'd are 119 Ews 4 Rams and 21 Weathers, the Kids be Deliver'd in the presence of ing Included under these Denominations the whole Sum of us of Goats are one Hundred forty &amp; four &amp; vallu[e]d Lucas Mason at fifty three pounds two Shillings &amp; Sixpence the W[illia]m Worrall Sheep are 30 in all viz[t] 24 full Grown &amp; Six Lambs vallued John Alexander at Twenty Eight pounds Nineteen Shillings the Crown St[?] &amp; Piggs were in Number 47 Vallued at Sixteen Pounds &amp; Ten Shillings Frances F C Carne her mark | 119 ewes, 4 rams and 21 wethers, with the kids included under those denominations Total 144 goatsValue £53 2s 6dSheep24 full-grown sheep and 6 lambsTotal 30 sheepValue £28 19s 0dHogs and pigs47 in numberValue £16 10s 0d Sealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Interpretations The deed completes the comprehensive 19 November 1717 family settlement by transferring the entire live stock of the Carne estate to John Goodwin for £206 1s 7d. The live stock transfer joins the same-day Lemon Valley freehold, the James Valley tenement and the nine slaves in a coordinated quadruple transfer, with the four instruments together documenting the complete movement of the principal categories of the family estate into the heir's hands. The £206 1s 7d consideration represents a precisely calculated price that reflects the documented values of each category of live stock in the memorandum. The figure parallels the substantial £200 0s 0d slave price, marking both the slaves and the live stock as genuine market transactions distinct from the nominal-consideration property transfers of the same day. The institutional pattern of pricing the movable assets at their actual values while transferring the perpetual property for nominal consideration reproduces the documented strategy of preserving cash within the widow's hands while moving the family ground to the heir. The detailed inventory in the memorandum provides one of the most thorough documented valuations of live stock within the records. The categorisation by species and sub-category (cows, bullocks, heifers, yearlings for cattle; ewes, rams, wethers for goats; full-grown sheep and lambs; hogs and pigs) reproduces the institutional taxonomy of agricultural assets. The pattern reveals the documented practice of treating each species and category as a separately valued asset within the bargaining process. The valuations work out to differential per-head prices across the categories. The 144 goats at £53 2s 6d produced a per-head value of approximately 7s 4d, the 30 sheep at £28 19s 0d produced a per-head value of approximately 19s 4d, and the 47 hogs and pigs at £16 10s 0d produced a per-head value of approximately 7s 0d. The sheep accordingly carried the highest per-head value among the small live stock, perhaps reflecting their dual contribution of wool and meat against the goats' and hogs' lesser institutional standing. The total documented value of the small live stock (goats, sheep, hogs and pigs) is £98 11s 6d. Adding the thirty-one head of black cattle (whose individual values are not separately recorded), the total of £206 1s 7d implies a residual value of £107 10s 1d for the cattle. The per-head average for the cattle works out at approximately £3 9s 4d, reflecting the higher institutional value of bovine livestock relative to small stock. The wether category for the goats refers to castrated males, which would typically be raised for meat rather than for breeding. The institutional differentiation between ewes (breeding females), rams (breeding males) and wethers (meat males) reproduces the standard early modern livestock terminology applied with precision to the documented inventory. The kids being included under those denominations, recorded within the memorandum, gives the institutional explanation that the immature goats had been counted within the adult categories of ewes, rams and wethers rather than separately. The mechanism perhaps reflects the |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | institutional practice of treating kids as part of the breeding female's allocation pending their growth to maturity. The cattle inventory of thirty-one head distinguishes nine cows (breeding females), nine bullocks (castrated males raised for work or meat), one heifer (an immature breeding female) and twelve yearlings (mixed-sex animals in their second year). The classification reveals the institutional differentiation by age, sex and productive function within the bovine herd. The composite live stock transfer extends the documented pattern of treating animal property as a separately bargained asset distinct from land and buildings. The earlier May 1708 Bagley mortgage and the August 1709 Fox mortgage had also included live stock within composite security arrangements, but the present transaction stands out for the detailed inventory and precise valuation that the institutional record preserves. The witnesses Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander reproduce the identical literate trio that attended the three earlier 19 November 1717 deeds, completing the institutional pattern of stable witnessing across the comprehensive family settlement. The four deeds (rural property, urban property, slaves and live stock) together represent one of the most thoroughly documented single-day family settlements within the records. The institutional designation of John Goodwin as inhabitant of the island in the present deed, against his gentleman and freeholder designations in earlier 1717 documents, perhaps reflects the documentary regime's adaptation of his classification to the specific transactional context. The inhabitant designation reproduces the more generic category used in some institutional settings, with the specific classifications applied where the legal context required them. Speculations The institutional decision to price the live stock at full market value with precise calculation to the shilling and pence, while transferring the family property for nominal consideration, perhaps reflects the documented strategy of treating movable assets as proper commercial transactions and immovable property as family settlements. By recording the live stock transfer at £206 1s 7d, the parties preserved the institutional integrity of the market price for documentation purposes while still allowing the transfer to operate as part of the broader family arrangement. The mechanism perhaps facilitated later record-keeping or accounting against any future claim on the widow's estate. The detailed itemisation of the live stock inventory, particularly the precise breakdown of the 144 goats into 119 ewes, 4 rams and 21 wethers with kids included, perhaps reveals the institutional preparation that preceded the November 1717 sealing event. The level of detail in the memorandum suggests that the parties had conducted a thorough inventory of the Carne estate's animal holdings before the deed was drafted, with each category counted and valued separately. The mechanism converts the documentary settlement into a precise accounting exercise rather than a rough estimate. The institutional accumulation of the entire Carne estate into John Goodwin's hands across the four 19 November 1717 deeds, combined with the cash payments totalling £406 1s 7d (£200 0s 0d for the slaves and £206 1s 7d for the live stock) plus the nominal five-shilling tokens on the two property deeds, perhaps reveals the comprehensive scale of John Goodwin's institutional position by the end of 1717. The capacity to deploy more than £400 0s 0d in gold and current money on a single day's transactions places him among the most institutionally capable individuals documented in the records, with substantial cash reserves available for major estate consolidations. |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 238          | 233          | Know all men by these Presents That John Goodwin of the Island St Helena for of his naturall Love &amp; affection which he has and doth bear unto his mother Frances Carne widow &amp; relict of George Carne dec[ea]sed] and for &amp; in Consideration of the Sume of Five Shillings in good &amp; Currant money of the Said Island in hand paid at or before the Ensealing &amp; Delivery hereof by the Said Frances unto the Said John Goodwin wherewith he doth hereby hold himself to be Satisfyed Contented &amp; paid Have demised and to Farme Lett and Lett unto the s[ai]d Frances Carne one Tenement &amp; mansion House Standing Situate in James Valley together &amp;c an old Kitchin Adjoyning thereunto formerly belonging to Richard &amp; Anthony Beale &amp; Comonly known by the name of Beales Kit chin, as also all &amp; Singular the Ground thereunto belonging as well as on the backside of Said House as that Enclosed for a yard before the Front and all &amp; Every the premisses &amp; appurtenancies thereunto appertaining as all Enclosures Walls Stones Trees water or Water Courses, rights, Libertys &amp; Privile[ge]s whatsoever, To have and to hold the aforesaid House Kitchin and all &amp; Every the premisses thereunto belonging or in any wise Appertaining as aforesaid Unto her the Said Frances Carne her heirs Executors Administra =tors or assigns for &amp; During the time of Ninety nine years Commenceing from the date hereof Provided &amp; upon Condition That She the Said Fran =ces Carne her Heirs Executors Administrators Shall always bear true Faith &amp; allegiance to our Sovereign Lord the King His Heirs Executors and Succespours and to the Hon[our]a[b]l[e] United Company and their Successors and Shall duly obey all the Laws &amp; Constitutions of the Said Island and will Sufficiently maintain uphold and Keep in good repair the aforesaid Manssion House, Kitchin, Enclosures Walls Gates and all other necessary and needfull reparations when and as often as the Same is required for the Preservation of the premises aforesaid Yeilding &amp; paying therefore yearly and every year during the Said Terme of Ninety nine Years the Annual Rent of Twenty Spounds p[er] ann[um] in good and Currant money of the Said Isl[an]d Unto the Said John Goodwin his His heirs Executors Adminniftrators or assigns with all other Costs and Charges of Alteration or Reparati ons that may be Needfull and necessary to be hereafter Done So that the Said John Goodwin his Heirs Executors Administ[r]at[o]rs or Assigns Shall not is not to be at any Charge or Expe[n]ce towards keeping the Said House, Kitchin, or any other the Premises afore said in any Kind of repair but to be free from all Charges and Expences that may hereafter happen and be laid out by the Said Frances Carne or her heirs &amp;c[t] during the Said Terme of Ninety Nine years And the Said Frances Carne doth for her Self her heirs Execut[o]rs Adm[in]ist[r]ators &amp; assigns Covenant Promise &amp; agree to and with the Said John Goodwin his heirs Executors Administrators &amp; Assigns and every of them To leave the aforesaid Mansion House Kitchin &amp; Shall other | Island of St Helena John Goodwin of the island of St Helena, out of natural love and affection towards his mother Frances Carne, widow and relict of the deceased George Carne, and in consideration of five shillings in good and current island money paid by Frances Carne to John Goodwin at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. John Goodwin demised, farmed and let to Frances Carne one tenement and mansion house in James Valley, together with an old kitchen adjoining the house. The kitchen had formerly belonged to Richard and Anthony Beale, and was commonly known by the name of Beale's Kitchen. The grant also included all the ground belonging to the house, both behind the house and the part enclosed for a yard before the front. The grant carried all the premises and appurtenances belonging to the property, including all enclosures, walls, stones, trees, water and watercourses, and all rights, liberties and privileges. The grant was to Frances Carne, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns for a term of ninety-nine years from the date of the deed. The lease was held on condition that Frances Carne, her heirs, executors and administrators always bore true faith and allegiance to the King, his heirs, executors and successors, and to the Honourable United Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. Frances Carne and her successors were to sufficiently maintain, uphold and keep in good repair the mansion house, kitchen, enclosures, walls, gates and all other necessary repairs whenever required for the preservation of the premises. Frances Carne was to yield and pay yearly during the ninety-nine-year term the annual rent of £20 0s 0d in good and current island money to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns. She was also to bear all costs and charges of any alterations or repairs that might thereafter be needed, so that John Goodwin and his successors should not be at any charge or expense towards keeping the house, kitchen or other premises in repair, but were to be free from all charges and expenses that might thereafter arise and be incurred by Frances Carne or her successors during the ninety-nine-year term. Frances Carne covenanted, promised and agreed with John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, and every of them, to leave the mansion house, kitchen and all other [...] Interpretations The deed records an immediate reciprocal arrangement following the four 19 November 1717 transfers from Frances Carne to her son John Goodwin. Having received the principal Goodwin estate (the Lemon Valley freehold, the James Valley tenement, the nine slaves and the live stock) into his perpetual title that same day, John Goodwin now leased back to his mother for ninety-nine years the James Valley tenement and mansion house that she had just transferred to him. The institutional pattern reveals that the transfer was never intended to displace the widow from her actual residence, with the reciprocal lease ensuring her continuing occupancy under a long-term institutional structure. The ninety-nine-year term parallels the earlier long-term leases granted under different circumstances, including the 1687 Rhodes-Cotgrave lease, the March 1705 Heath-Charles 99-year extension, and the April 1703 Orchard 99-year lease. The use of a ninety-nine-year term for a transfer from son to mother converts the practical effect into a near-perpetual arrangement for the widow's lifetime, with the institutional structure providing the legal mechanism while the underlying purpose served the family settlement. The £20 0s 0d annual rent payable by Frances Carne to John Goodwin gives the lease its formal commercial structure. The rent represents a substantial annual commitment that the widow would have to fund from her |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | own resources during the term. The mechanism converts what might otherwise have been a free family arrangement into a documented financial relationship, with John Goodwin receiving a continuing income stream from the property while his mother retained her residence. The five-shilling token consideration paid by Frances to John for the grant of the lease reproduces the nominal-consideration pattern observed across the earlier 19 November 1717 deeds. The five-shilling token gave the documentary regime its supporting consideration while the substantive arrangement rested on the family relationship and the reciprocal £20 0s 0d annual rent obligation. The covenant placing all repair and maintenance obligations on the widow, with John Goodwin and his successors expressly freed from any charge or expense towards the upkeep of the house, kitchen or other premises, reproduces the standard early modern repairing-lease structure. The institutional mechanism shifts the cost of preserving the building from the freeholder to the lessee, with Frances bearing the practical burden of maintaining her residence during the term. The recital that Beale's Kitchen had formerly belonged to Richard and Anthony Beale, and was commonly known by that name, anchors the present deed within the documented Beale family disposal of February 1716, when the brothers had sold the property to the Honourable Company. The institutional chain of title therefore moves from the Beale brothers to the Company by February 1716, then from the Company to George Carne (presumably at some unrecorded point between February 1716 and his death in 1717), then to his widow Frances Carne, then to John Goodwin on 19 November 1717, and now back to Frances Carne on lease the same day. The complex chain reveals the institutional fluidity of urban property within the documented elite circle. The institutional structure of son-leases-to-mother converts the comprehensive widow-to-heir settlement into a balanced arrangement preserving both the heir's perpetual title and the widow's continuing occupancy. The mechanism reveals the sophisticated documentary engineering that the institutional regime supported, with multiple deeds operating in concert to achieve coordinated family objectives. The ninety-nine-year term, set against Frances Carne's likely remaining lifespan as an elderly widow, effectively gives her the property for life with the formal lease running into the next century. Her successors named in the institutional language as heirs, executors, administrators or assigns might continue to enjoy the lease after her death, but only by continuing to pay the £20 0s 0d annual rent to John Goodwin's heirs. The mechanism converts the lease into a potential institutional inheritance for Frances's own line, distinct from the principal Goodwin family ground that John Goodwin had taken in perpetual title. The royal allegiance and Company allegiance clauses reproduce the standard institutional language attached to leases of the period, with the King and the Honourable United Company both acknowledged as institutional superiors to whom continuing loyalty was due during the term. The fourth-time appearance of the F C mark and the same witness panel (Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander) within the documentary chain of 19 November 1717 reinforces the institutional pattern of stable family-settlement execution. The four transfers and the reciprocal lease together represent the most comprehensive single-day institutional event documented in the records. Speculations The institutional decision to structure the widow's continuing occupancy of the James Valley mansion house through a formal ninety-nine-year lease, rather than through an informal family arrangement, perhaps reflects |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | John Goodwin's strategic preference for documented legal relationships over implicit family understandings. By converting his mother's residence into a formal lease with a documented rent obligation and a fixed term, John created an enforceable institutional structure that protected both his perpetual title and his mother's continuing use. The mechanism converts the family arrangement into a legally robust framework that could survive future challenges, changes in personnel, or institutional disruptions. The substantial £20 0s 0d annual rent imposed on the widow, alongside the comprehensive repair and maintenance covenants, perhaps reflects John Goodwin's intention to ensure that his mother retained genuine financial responsibility for the property rather than being treated as a passive beneficiary. By imposing real economic obligations on Frances Carne, the lease gave her continuing institutional standing as an active tenant rather than as a dependent occupier. The mechanism perhaps protected her dignity as a substantial widow while still consolidating the perpetual title within her son's hands. The complex chain of title for Beale's Kitchen, moving from the Beale brothers to the Company in 1716, then to George Carne, then to Frances Carne, and now to John Goodwin and back to Frances on lease, perhaps reflects the institutional pattern of using high-value urban property as a vehicle for moving substantial sums between connected parties. Each transfer in the chain probably involved cash, credit or institutional adjustments that the surviving documentary record does not fully preserve. The mechanism perhaps converts the urban property into a documented institutional asset whose successive transfers tracked the financial flows within the elite circle.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
| 239 | 234          | the Premises thereunto belonging at the End &amp; Expiration of the full Terme of ninety nine years in as Good &amp; repair in every respect as they now are and to the Present Vallue according to the Iudgment of two men Indifferently Chosen by both Partys herein concerned or their Heirs &amp;c[t] for them and and in their behalfs any thing to the Contrary hereof in any case not withstanding In Witness whereof both Partys before named hath to these present Setts to their hands and Seals this twentieth day of December Dom[in] one Thousand Seven Hundred &amp; Seventeen John GoodwinSealed Signed &amp; Delivered in the Presence of Lucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall Jn[o] AlexanderKnow all men by these Presents that John Goodwin of the Island S[t] Helena out of his Naturall Love and affection which he has and doth bear Unto his mother Frances Carne Widdow and Relict of George Carne dec[ea]sed and for &amp; in Consideration of the Sume of five Shillings in good &amp; Currant money of the Said Island in hand paid at or before the Ensealing &amp; Delivery hereof by the Said Frances Carne unto the Said John Goodwin wherewith he doth hereby hold himself to be fully Satisfyed Contented &amp; p[ai]d Have demised &amp; to Farme Setts &amp; let unto the Said Frances Eighty Nine Acres of Plantable and Pasture Land lying Scituate in one Branch of Lemon valley Butting &amp; bounding every way as in &amp; by the Register Book of Said Island in the 156 folio doth and may more fully appeare As also one Mes[s]uage House and provisions of Yams Containing one Hundred Yhousand Young &amp; old and at this present time Standing Growing &amp; Issueing upon the Said Land withall &amp; Singular the water Water Courses Springs Walls hedges Ditches or any other Fence or Fences Fruit Trees Woods or Woods To have &amp; to hold the aforesaid Eighty nine Acres of Land Mes[s]u =age House &amp; provisions of Yams Unto the Said Frances Carne her Heirs Executors and Adminnistrators for &amp; During the Terme of Ninety | John Goodwin and Frances Carne further covenanted that at the end of the ninety-nine-year term Frances Carne, her heirs, executors and administrators were to leave the mansion house, kitchen and all the premises in as good repair in every respect as they then stood, and to the present value, according to the judgement of two impartial men chosen by both parties or their successors on their behalf. Both parties set their hands and seals to the deed on 20 December 1717. John GoodwinSealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander.Island of St Helena John Goodwin of the island of St Helena, out of natural love and affection towards his mother Frances Carne, widow and relict of the deceased George Carne, and in consideration of five shillings in good and current island money paid by Frances Carne to John Goodwin at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. John Goodwin demised, farmed and let to Frances Carne eighty-nine acres of plantable and pasture land in one branch of Lemon Valley. The parcel was bounded as in the register book of the island at folio 156. The grant also included a messuage house and provisions of yams (containing 100,000 young and old yams then standing, growing and issuing on the land), together with all the water and watercourses, springs, walls, hedges, ditches, any other fences, fruit trees and woods. The grant was to Frances Carne, her heirs, executors and administrators for a term of ninety-nine years from the date of the deed. The lease was held on condition that Frances Carne, her heirs, executors or administrators always bore [...] Interpretations The closing of the James Valley mansion house lease introduces a return-condition mechanism under which Frances Carne and her successors must restore the property at the end of the ninety-nine-year term to a condition equivalent to the present state of repair and |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------------|-----------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Nine years Commencing from the day of the Date hereof Provid =ed &amp; upon Condition That She the Said Frances Carne or her Heirs Execut[o]rs or Administrators Shall always do and bear | value. The institutional mechanism uses two impartial appraisers, one chosen by each party, to determine the condition and value at the moment of return, reproducing the assessment procedure observed earlier in the December 1699 Draper-Maxwell sale and the December 1686 Fewsdale-Bevean sale. The pattern reveals the documented practice of using impartial appraisers as the standard institutional mechanism for resolving valuation disputes within property arrangements. The institutional language any thing to the Contrary hereof in any case notwithstanding closes the return covenant against any future challenge or modification, reinforcing the deed's protective architecture. The mechanism converts the return obligation into an absolute requirement enforceable regardless of any later circumstances. The 20 December 1717 dating of the principal James Valley lease (rather than the same-day 19 November 1717 dating as the four earlier transfers from Frances to John) places the reciprocal lease one month after the comprehensive widow-to-heir settlement. The institutional gap perhaps reflects the time required to prepare the lease documentation following the principal transfer, with the four earlier deeds completing the widow-to-heir movement on 19 November and the corresponding lease-back arrangement following a month later on 20 December. The second instrument records a parallel ninety-nine-year lease from John Goodwin back to his mother Frances Carne of the eighty-nine-acre Lemon Valley estate that she had transferred to him on 19 November 1717. The institutional structure precisely mirrors the James Valley lease-back arrangement, with the perpetual title remaining in John Goodwin's hands while the working possession returned to Frances Carne for a long term. The recital that the boundaries appeared in the register book of the island at folio 156 reproduces the cross-reference used in the original 19 November 1717 transfer deed. The institutional pattern of preserving boundary descriptions through documentary reference rather than restating them at full length operated consistently across the various deeds within the same estate sequence. The 100,000 yams included within the lease, comprising both young and old yams then standing, growing and issuing on the land, represent a substantial documented provisions stock. The institutional treatment of growing yams as part of the leased property reproduces the documented pattern observed earlier in the July 1707 French-Hoskison composite lease, the March 1708 Bagley grazing arrangement and the October 1706 Gurling-Hoskison composite sale. The mechanism treats agricultural provisions as transferable assets attached to the working ground. The comprehensive enumeration of appurtenances (water and watercourses, springs, walls, hedges, ditches, fences, fruit trees and woods) reproduces the institutional pattern of sweeping all attached rights into the conveyance. The mechanism gave Frances Carne full institutional possession of the working estate, with all the productive elements transferred for the term. The reciprocal lease-back structure for both the James Valley urban property and the Lemon Valley rural estate creates a comprehensive institutional arrangement under which Frances Carne retained the practical use of the principal Goodwin family estate while the perpetual title rested in her son's hands. The mechanism reveals the documented sophistication of the November-December 1717 family settlement, with multiple instruments operating in concert to balance the institutional interests of mother and son. The omission of the annual rent figure in the present recoverable portion of the Lemon Valley lease leaves uncertain whether the same £20 0s 0d annual rent applied |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | as in the James Valley lease, or whether a different sum was specified. The institutional pattern would suggest a substantial annual rent reflecting the eighty-nine-acre scale of the estate, but the specific figure rests in the closing portion of the deed not yet documented in the present recoverable text. The witness panel of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander reproduces the literate trio attending the 19 November 1717 transfers and the 20 December 1717 James Valley lease. The five-time appearance of the same panel across consecutive instruments within the same family-settlement sequence consolidates the institutional pattern of stable witnessing observed across the Carne-Goodwin documentary chain. The recital that the eighty-nine acres included plantable and pasture land marks the institutional distinction between the productive categories within the rural estate. The differentiation between plantable (arable) and pasture (grazing) ground reflects the standard early modern land-use taxonomy applied to the documented holdings. Speculations The institutional decision to structure both the James Valley urban property and the Lemon Valley rural estate through identical ninety-nine-year lease-back arrangements, with one-month intervals between the principal transfers and the lease executions, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional design under which the widow-to-heir transfer was always intended to be paired with a corresponding lease-back. By separating the deeds across two sealing events, the parties perhaps preserved the institutional purity of the transfer (a definitive perpetual movement of title) from the institutional architecture of the lease (a balancing arrangement preserving the widow's practical position). The mechanism converts what might have been a single composite transaction into a series of layered documentary stages. The inclusion of 100,000 yams as part of the Lemon Valley lease perhaps reveals the institutional importance of treating growing provisions as transferable assets within long-term tenancy arrangements. By including the specific stock of yams within the lease, the parties ensured that Frances Carne would have continuing access to the working agricultural produce of the estate during her tenancy, with the institutional mechanism converting a one-off transfer of provisions into a continuing working possession. The mechanism perhaps facilitated the practical operation of the estate during her continuing occupation. The introduction of the two-appraiser return-condition mechanism within the James Valley lease perhaps reflects the institutional concern with preserving the value of urban property over a multi-generational term. By requiring impartial assessment at the end of the ninety-nine-year period, the deed provided a structured mechanism for resolving any future dispute about the condition or value of the returned property. The mechanism perhaps recognised that urban buildings in particular would require careful institutional protection across long terms, with the potential for substantial alteration, deterioration or improvement during the lifetime of the lease and its successive tenants. |
| 240 | 235          | true faith & allegiance to our Sovereign Lord the King his Heirs & Successors and to the Hon[ourable] United Company Lords Proprietors of the Said Island & their Successors and Shall duly obey all the Laws & Constitutions of the Said Isl[and] and will Sufficiently maintuine uphold and Keep in Good repair the other Fences in & round the Said Land Either Pasture or Plantation & likewise repair all Stiles Bridges and all other necessary & needfull Reparations and in every and all respects Perform all such Covenants Articles & Condititi that all their Said Hon[ourable] Companies | Frances Carne and her successors were bound to bear true faith and allegiance to the King, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable United Company, Lords Proprietors of the island, and their successors, and to duly obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. They were also bound to sufficiently maintain, uphold and keep in good repair the fences in and around the land, whether pasture or plantation, and to repair all stiles, bridges and all other necessary repairs. They were to perform all the covenants, articles and conditions that the Honourable Company's tenants or lessees were bound to                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Tennants or Leauees are obliged to and by which they Enjoy &amp; hold their Land Especially that's one Chief &amp; ne =cessary article of Planting wood and Such other trees Either for fencing or Fruit Trees according to the Nature &amp; Standing Custome of the place now in Practice or hereafter may be So that the whole quantity of Wood &amp; Other usefull trees now Standing upon the Said Eighty Nine acres of Land is alwayes to be maintuined &amp; kept growing and as any of them Decays others to be immediatly Planted in their Stead Yeilding &amp; paying therefore yearly &amp; every year during the Said Term of Nine ty nine years the annuall Rent of Twelve pence per Acre in good and Currant mony of the Said Island unto the Said John Goodwin his Heirs Executors Adm[i]n[i]s[trato]rs or assigns with all other Taxes assesments Chief rents or Impositions whatsoever Charged or Chargeable upon all freehold Lands on this Island or hereafter may be So charged It being the true meaning &amp; intent of this writing That the Said John Goodwin or his Heires Execu[to]rs Administrators or assigns Shall in no wise be at any further Charges but free from all Charges of Rents, dutys, Taxes or assesments that may hereafter happen during the Said Term And that Frances Carne doth for her Self her Heirs Executors Administrat[o]rs &amp; assigns Covenant promise and agree Further to and with the Said John Goodwin his Heirs Executors Admin[i]s[trato]rs &amp; assigns to leave the Fences in and Round the Said Eighty Nine acres of Land at the Expiration of the foll time &amp; Terme aforesaid in as good repair as they now are and the Same Compleatly Planked with Wood and other trees as before mentioned And likewise to leave the Said House and out houses in as good and to the Same Vallue at least as they now are as also the Same quantity of Provisions Upon the Pennalty of being Sued at law for all Such Loss and damages as the Said John Goodwin or his heirs Ex[e] cutors Administrat[o]rs or assigns Shall or may Sustaine by any Default of the Said Frances Carne or her Heirs Executors or Administrators or any other Person for her in or not Punchally Performing the Severall Covenants &amp; agreem[en]ts before mentioned In Wittness whereof both Partyes have to these presents Setts their Hands and Seals on the Island S[t] Helena this | observe, particularly the chief and necessary article of planting wood and other trees for fencing or fruit, according to the nature and standing custom of the place then in practice or thereafter to be introduced. The whole quantity of wood and other useful trees then standing on the eighty-nine acres was always to be maintained and kept growing, and as any of them decayed, others were to be immediately planted in their place. Frances Carne was to yield and pay yearly during the ninety-nine-year term the annual rent of twelvepence per acre in good and current island money to John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns. She was also to bear all other taxes, assessments, chief rents or impositions charged or chargeable upon freehold land on the island, or any later impositions. The true intent of the deed was that John Goodwin and his successors should be free from all charges of rents, duties, taxes or assessments that might arise during the term. Frances Carne further covenanted with John Goodwin, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns to leave the fences in and around the eighty-nine acres at the expiration of the term in as good repair as they then stood, completely planted with wood and other trees as described. She was to leave the house and outhouses in as good condition and to at least the same value as they then stood, and to leave the same quantity of provisions. Frances Carne was subject to suit at law for any loss and damages that John Goodwin or his successors might sustain through any default by Frances Carne, her successors or any other person for her, in failing punctually to perform the covenants and agreements. Both parties set their hands and seals to the deed on the island of St Helena on [...] Interpretations The Lemon Valley lease completes the reciprocal mother-son arrangement established by the comprehensive November 1717 family settlement. The institutional structure precisely parallels the James Valley urban lease of 20 December 1717, with both instruments together creating a balanced architecture under which Frances Carne retained the practical possession of the principal Goodwin family estate for ninety-nine years while John Goodwin held the perpetual title. The annual rent of twelvepence per acre, applied to the eighty-nine-acre estate, produces a total annual rent of £4 9s 0d. The figure represents a substantial recurring institutional obligation on the widow, though significantly less than the £20 0s 0d annual rent on the James Valley urban property. The differential reveals the documented per-acre valuation of rural land at roughly one shilling per acre per annum, against the much higher per-property rate for urban property. The covenant requiring Frances Carne to bear all taxes, assessments, chief rents and impositions charged or chargeable on freehold land on the island reproduces the standard early modern institutional pattern of transferring fiscal burdens from the freeholder to the lessee. The mechanism preserves John Goodwin's net income from the lease by ensuring that all institutional charges fall on the tenant rather than the perpetual title holder. The standing-custom-of-the-place language attached to the tree-planting article reveals the institutional recognition that local practice had become a binding source of obligation alongside the formal covenants. The phrase according to the nature and standing custom of the place now in practice or hereafter may be incorporates both current and future institutional practice into the deed, with the mechanism giving the Company flexibility to introduce new improvement requirements during the long term without renegotiating the underlying lease. The wood-and-trees maintenance covenant, requiring Frances Carne to maintain the standing stock of wood and useful trees and to replant any decayed specimens, reproduces the enhanced conservation framework |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | introduced in the 7 May 1717 Haswell lease, the William Alexander lease of the same date, and the April 1717 Samuel Price lease at Manatee Bay. The pattern reveals the consistent institutional commitment to active arboricultural management across the leases of 1717. The penalty clause exposing Frances Carne to suit at law for any loss and damages arising from default in performing the covenants gives the lease its institutional enforceability. The mechanism converts the documented obligations into legally enforceable commitments, with the institutional architecture providing both the substantive covenants and the procedural remedy for breach. The return-condition requirement, providing that Frances Carne must leave the house, outhouses, fences and provisions at the end of the term in the same condition and value as they then stood, parallels the equivalent return-condition mechanism in the James Valley lease. The institutional pattern of requiring restoration to the moment-of-grant baseline at the end of the ninety-nine-year term gives the Company a long-term institutional standard against which the tenant's performance can be measured. The institutional reference to the same quantity of provisions to be left at the end of the term, when read against the 100,000 yams listed in the principal grant, reveals the documented practice of treating agricultural provisions as a continuing institutional baseline rather than as a one-off transfer. The mechanism converts the yam stock into a perpetual operating asset that must be maintained at the same level throughout the term. The shilling-per-acre rent for the rural estate, against the £20 0s 0d annual rent for the urban tenement, gives the documented institutional valuation pattern. Land in Lemon Valley at the freehold level produced an annual income of one shilling per acre, while the urban mansion house carried an annual rent of substantially higher institutional standing. The differentiation reveals the documented commercial geography of the island in 1717. The reference to standing custom of the place perhaps reflects the institutional pattern of treating tenant obligations as evolving rather than fixed. By incorporating both current practice and future Company rules into the lease, the institutional architecture provided long-term flexibility while preserving the basic framework. The mechanism perhaps anticipated the kind of institutional changes that would emerge over a ninety-nine-year period, with the Company retaining the capacity to update its tenant obligations as conditions changed. The lease completion at this point is marked by the institutional signature of both parties on the deed at the island of St Helena, with the precise date deferred to the closing portion of the deed not yet recoverable in the present text. Speculations The institutional decision to charge Frances Carne only twelvence per acre for the eighty-nine-acre rural estate, while charging £20 0s 0d for the James Valley urban property, perhaps reflects the documented pattern under which the rural ground was treated as a relatively low-value institutional asset compared with the high-value urban property. The differential perhaps reproduces the early modern English distinction between agricultural and commercial property, with the institutional regime applying substantially higher rents to urban dwellings reflecting their greater income-producing potential. The institutional requirement that Frances Carne bear all taxes, assessments and impositions on the freehold, while John Goodwin received the rent free from all such charges, perhaps reveals the long-term institutional strategy of converting John's perpetual title into a stable income stream insulated from fiscal volatility. By transferring the entire fiscal burden to the widow lessee, the institutional architecture provided John Goodwin with the institutional equivalent of a net rent payment, with the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | mechanism perhaps anticipating that Company taxes or impositions might rise during the lifetime of the lease. The reference to the standing custom of the place as a binding source of tenant obligations, alongside the formal covenants, perhaps reflects the documented practice of treating local institutional norms as part of the legal framework. By incorporating custom into the lease, the institutional architecture gave the Company flexibility to enforce evolving practices without renegotiating each lease. The mechanism perhaps anticipated future institutional reforms while preserving the underlying framework of the ninety-nine-year arrangement.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
| 241 | 236          | Twentieth day of December Dom[ini]: one Thousand Seven Hundred and Seventeen John GoodwinSealed Signed &amp; Delivered in y[e] presence of Lucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall Jn[o] AlexanderKnow all men by these Presents that I John Goodwin of the Island S[t] Helena Inhabitant For and in Consideration of the Sume of Three Hun dred and Twenty one Pounds in good &amp; Currant morty of the Said Island to me in hand paid by M[rs] Frances Carne widdow at or before the Ensealing and Delivery hereof, the receipt of which I do hereby acknowledge and [...] my Self therewith to be fully Satisfyed Contented and paid And for divers other good causes and Considerations me hereunto moveing Have demised granted Bargained and Sold and by these Presents do firmly and absolutely give Grant Demise bargain Sell, and Deliver unto the aforesaid Fran =ces Carne Her Heirs Executors Administrators &amp; Assignes Forty five head of Black Cattle with their Increase from the Date hereof together with the aforesaid Nine Negroe Slaves So her the Said Frances Carne and her heirs for ever and the Same to do &amp; Dispose of at her theirs or any of their own wills and pleasure without any Contradiction Interruption or mallestations of me the Said John Goodwin or of my Heirs Executors or Administrators or of by or under any other Person or Persons Whatsoever claiming or to Claime any of the hereby Bargained Premi =ses by my means Consent or procurement any thing to the Contrary hereof in any wise mentioned Notwithstanding In Witness whereof the above named John Goodwin hath to these presents Sett his hand &amp; Seale on the Said Island this Second day of aprill Anno Dom[ini] one Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighteen John GoodwinSealed Signed &amp; Deliv[er]ed in the presence of Lucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall John Alexander | Both parties set their hands and seals to the Lemon Valley lease on 20 December 1717. John GoodwinSealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander.Island of St Helena John Goodwin of the island, inhabitant, in consideration of £321 0s 0d in good and current island money paid by Mrs Frances Carne, widow, at or before the sealing and delivery of the deed, acknowledged the receipt and his full satisfaction. For divers other good causes and considerations, he demised, granted, bargained and sold to Frances Carne, her heirs, executors, administrators and assigns forty-five head of black cattle with their increase from the date of the deed, together with the nine slaves earlier transferred from her to him. The grant was to Frances Carne and her heirs for ever, to use and dispose of at their own will and pleasure without any contradiction, interruption or molestation by John Goodwin, his heirs, executors or administrators, or by any other person under any claim by his means, consent or procurement. John Goodwin set his hand and seal to the deed on 2 April 1718. John GoodwinSealed, signed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Interpretations The 2 April 1718 deed completes the reciprocal architecture of the comprehensive Goodwin family settlement. Having received the four bundles of property and movables (the Lemon Valley freehold, the James Valley tenement, the nine slaves and the live stock) from his mother on 19 November 1717, and having leased back the rural estate and urban tenement to her for ninety-nine years on 20 December 1717, John Goodwin now sells back to his mother the slaves and the live stock that she had transferred to him four and a half months earlier. The full circle of transfers and returns reveals the documented sophistication of the institutional settlement, with the perpetual title to land resting in John Goodwin while the working operation of the entire estate effectively returns to Frances Carne. The £321 0s 0d consideration paid by Frances Carne to John Goodwin marks a substantial cash transfer in the opposite direction from the previous payments. The earlier 19 November 1717 transactions had transferred £200 0s 0d for the slaves and £206 1s 7d for the live stock from John to Frances. The present 2 April 1718 payment of £321 0s 0d from Frances to John, covering the slaves and forty-five head of black cattle (rather than the thirty-one head of the original transfer), reverses the cash flow and adjusts the asset composition. The increase from thirty-one to forty-five head of black cattle suggests that the institutional structure tracked actual livestock accumulations during the four-and-a-half-month interval between November 1717 and April 1718. The fourteen additional head perhaps reflect natural increase from the breeding stock (calves born during the winter season) or additional cattle introduced into the estate by John Goodwin during his period of formal ownership. The mechanism converts the abstract |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | documentary structure into a real institutional accounting of working asset development. The combination of the nine slaves and forty-five head of black cattle at £321 0s 0d, against the earlier November 1717 valuation of the nine slaves alone at £200 0s 0d, implies a documented value of approximately £121 0s 0d for the forty-five head of cattle. The per-head average works out at approximately £2 13s 0d, somewhat below the implicit £3 9s 4d per head calculated from the November 1717 deed. The variation perhaps reflects differential valuations of the specific animals included, with the present transfer perhaps including more yearlings and fewer mature animals. The omission of the goats, sheep, hogs and pigs from the April 1718 transfer indicates that those categories of small livestock remained with John Goodwin rather than being returned to Frances. The institutional pattern perhaps reflects a deliberate allocation between mother and son, with the working livestock of the principal cattle and labour forces returning to the widow while the smaller stock remained with the heir. The April 1718 transfer back of the slaves is particularly significant because it returns the same nine individuals (Toby, Harry, John, Demore, Chatham, Antony, old Jack, Lucas, Will and old Aranada) to the widow's institutional possession. The complete cycle of slave ownership from mother to son and back to mother within five months reveals the institutional capacity to use documented transactions to manage labour assets within complex family arrangements, without ever truly displacing the operational reality. The same witness panel of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander attests this deed, continuing the institutional pattern of stable witnessing across the entire November 1717 to April 1718 sequence of family settlement deeds. The six-time appearance of the same three witnesses across the documented chain consolidates the institutional position of this small literate circle as the principal attestors of the Goodwin-Carne settlement. John Goodwin's designation here as inhabitant of the island, set against his gentleman, freeholder and son-and-heir designations across other deeds, reflects the documentary regime's flexible use of classifications. The institutional record adapted the description to the specific transaction, with the inhabitant designation perhaps appropriate to the more straightforward commercial nature of this particular slave-and-livestock sale. The institutional structure of the comprehensive Goodwin-Carne settlement (19 November 1717 transfers, 20 December 1717 lease-backs, and 2 April 1718 cash sale-back of slaves and adjusted cattle stock) reveals the documented sophistication of large family estate management within the 1717-1718 institutional regime. The multi-stage architecture provided maximum institutional protection for both parties while allowing the underlying assets to remain productively engaged in the working economy of the estate. The Mrs designation attached to Frances Carne in the April 1718 deed reproduces the institutional courtesy title applied to substantial widows of the period. The pattern parallels the use of Mrs for figures such as Mrs Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs Margaret Facknald and Mrs Grace Coulson observed across earlier records. Speculations The cash transfer from Frances Carne to John Goodwin of £321 0s 0d, in exchange for the return of nine slaves and forty-five head of black cattle, perhaps reveals the underlying institutional purpose of the comprehensive November 1717 settlement. By moving the slaves and cattle from Frances to John in November, then back from John to Frances in April, the parties documented a substantial cash payment from the widow to the heir that the surface architecture of the transactions obscured. The mechanism perhaps reflects either an institutional |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | reorganisation of accounts within the family or a deliberate transfer of cash from the widow's hands to the heir's hands. The increase in cattle stock from thirty-one to forty-five head between November 1717 and April 1718 perhaps reflects the institutional pattern of treating the estate as a living productive system that grew through natural increase during the period of formal transfer. By documenting the actual stock at the moment of return rather than insisting on the original numbers, the parties acknowledged the working reality of agricultural production. The mechanism perhaps converts the documentary structure into a flexible institutional tool capable of accommodating the realities of livestock husbandry. The retention of the goats, sheep and hogs by John Goodwin, against the return of the cattle and slaves to Frances Carne, perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional allocation of working assets between the heir and the widow. The cattle and slaves, as the primary labour and capital assets of the estate, returned to Frances to support her continuing operation of the working ground under the ninety-nine-year leases. The smaller livestock remained with John Goodwin perhaps as part of his own separate operations or as the cash-generating component of his institutional position. The mechanism perhaps reveals the underlying division of labour within the family arrangement, with the documented transfers tracking the practical allocation of working assets.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 242 | 237          | To all Christian People To whome these presents shall come I John Goodwin of the Island S[t] Helena Inhabitant send Greeting in our Lord God Everlasting Know ye That whereas I John Goodwin having Purch =ased at a publick Auction on the 19[t]h day of November last past) all and Singu =lar the Houses Lands Blacks &amp; Tennements belonging to the Estate of M[r] George Carne for the performance and payment of his Debt as may more fully appeare by three Several Bills of Sales bearing Equall Dates of y[e] 19[t]h of Nov[em]be[r] last past And whereas the said John Goodwin Standing in present need of a certain Summe of money which he acknowledges to have received and to be fully Satisfye w[i]th and for Divers other good causes &amp; Sundry Considerations him there =unto moving Have Since Leased &amp; to Farme Lett &amp; Sett unto my mother Frances Carne, One Mansion House Standing Scituate in James valley together &amp;c all &amp; Singular the appurtenances thereunto belonging of what Nature kind or quality Soever As also Eighty Nine Acres of Plantable &amp; Pasture Land Lying Scituate in one Branch of Lemon vally together with one mes[s]uage House &amp; Provisions of Yams Containing One Hundred Thousand &amp; all and Singular the other Appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining of what nature kind or quality Soever Comencing from the respective dates of the aforesaid Leases for the Terme of Ninty nine years Upon certain Conditions recited in a Lease for the Same bearing date the 20 day of December lastpast and one Lease more herein first Men =tioned bearing Equall date 19[t]h the Latter on my Estate more fully appear Now the Said John Goodwin in Consideration of having received the Summe of Five Hundred &amp; Thirty Pounds Sterling money in full payment &amp; Satisfaction of &amp; from his Said mother Frances Carne for all Rents &amp; Arrerages due or that may hereafter become due for all &amp; Singular the whole Estate So Leases and to Farm Lett and Setts as aforesaid Hath granted and Remised, releassed and quits Claimed &amp; by these presents doth grant Remisse &amp; release &amp; for ever quits Claim unto the Said Frances Carne who I own Confess and Declare to be the true and Lawfull owner of the aforesaid Lands Houses and Tennements formerly belonging to George Carne | Island of St Helena To all Christian people to whom these presents come, John Goodwin of the island, inhabitant, sent greeting in our Lord God everlasting. John Goodwin recorded that he had purchased at a public auction on 19 November last past all the houses, lands, slaves and tenements belonging to the estate of Mr George Carne, for the performance and payment of George Carne's debts. The purchase appeared more fully by three separate bills of sale, each bearing the equal date of 19 November last past. John Goodwin further recorded that, standing in present need of a certain sum of money (which he acknowledged having received and being fully satisfied with), and for divers other good causes and considerations, he had since leased, farmed and let to his mother Frances Carne one mansion house in James Valley, together with all the appurtenances belonging to it. He had also leased to her eighty-nine acres of plantable and pasture land in one branch of Lemon Valley, together with a messuage house and provisions of yams (containing 100,000 yams) and all the other appurtenances belonging to the parcel. The leases ran for ninety-nine years from their respective dates, subject to the conditions set out in the lease of 20 December last past and the related lease of equal date 19 [November] last past, as appeared more fully from the deeds on John Goodwin's estate. John Goodwin, in consideration of £530 0s 0d sterling money received in full payment and satisfaction from his mother Frances Carne for all rents and arrears then due or that might thereafter become due for the whole estate so leased, granted, remised, released and for ever quit-claimed to Frances Carne. He acknowledged, confessed and declared her to be the true and lawful owner of the lands, houses and tenements formerly belonging to the deceased George Carne, then in her possession at the sealing and delivery of the deed. The quit-claim covered the annuity or yearly rent specified in the two leases and any arrears, and the entire estate, right, title, interest, benefit, claim or demand of John Goodwin or his heirs in the annuity or yearly rent, and any distresses, entries or forfeitures previously taken or that could be taken in respect of the rent or arrears. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | dec[ease]d and in her the Said Frances Carne's Posses[s]ion at the Ensealing and delivery hereof the Said annuity or yearly Rent Specified in the beforementioned two Severall Leases, and all the Arrerages thereof if any be, and all the Estate, Right, Title, Interest, Beinefit, Claim &amp; Demand whatsoever of him the Said John Goodwin or his Heirs in and to the Said annuity or yearly Rent aforesaid, or any arrerages Distress or Distresses, Entry or Forfeiture had or taken, or which money &amp; can be had taken of the Said annuity or yearly Rent or Arrerays thereof if any be In Witness whereof I the Said John Goodwin have to these p[rese]nts Sett my hand and Seale this Second Day of | John Goodwin set his hand and seal to the deed on 2 [...] Interpretations The deed represents the institutional unwinding of the comprehensive Goodwin-Carne family settlement that had been carefully constructed across the November 1717 to April 1718 sequence. Six months after the 2 April 1718 sale-back of the slaves and cattle, John Goodwin now quit-claims the entire ninety-nine-year leasehold rent stream to his mother and confesses her as the true and lawful owner of the property formerly belonging to George Carne. The mechanism converts the layered architecture of the earlier settlement into a definitive transfer of the working ownership back to Frances Carne, with the institutional structure of the ninety-nine-year leases dissolved by the release of the rent. The recital that John Goodwin had originally purchased the entire George Carne estate at a public auction on 19 November 1717 introduces a previously undocumented institutional context for the comprehensive November 1717 settlement. The mechanism by which the four bundles of property and movables moved from Frances to John on that day is now revealed to have been a public auction sale rather than a private family transfer. The auction format perhaps reflects the institutional requirement of public sale to satisfy George Carne's debts, with the documented mechanism converting the deceased husband's estate into cash for the discharge of his creditors. The phrase for the performance and payment of his Debt indicates that George Carne had died indebted at his death in 1717, with his estate subject to disposal for creditor satisfaction. The institutional pattern of using public auction to liquidate a deceased debtor's estate reproduces the standard early modern English practice of estate administration where the deceased's assets are converted to cash to pay creditors before any residue could pass to the heirs. The institutional structure now revealed is therefore quite different from the apparent widow-to-heir family settlement that the earlier deeds had suggested. The November 1717 transfers from Frances to John, the December 1717 lease-backs from John to Frances, and the April 1718 sale-back of slaves and cattle were not a family settlement at all but rather a series of related transactions arising from John Goodwin's purchase of his deceased stepfather's estate at auction. The mechanism reveals the institutional complexity of post-debt estate management within the documented elite circle. The £530 0s 0d sterling money received from Frances Carne in full payment of all rents and arrears closes the institutional rent stream that the December 1717 leases had established. The figure perhaps represents the total annual rent of approximately £24 9s 0d (£20 0s 0d for the urban tenement plus £4 9s 0d for the rural estate at twelvepence per acre) accumulated and capitalised over the relevant period, plus an additional buyout payment for the residual ninety-nine-year leasehold interest. The mechanism converts the long-term rent obligation into a single capitalised payment, with the institutional architecture of the lease dissolved by the present quit-claim. The institutional language of grant, remise, release and quit-claim reproduces the standard early modern English instrument of estate transfer. The grant gave Frances the affirmative interest in the property; the remise removed any claim by John against it; the release freed her from the obligation of paying rent; and the quit-claim extinguished any future demand. The mechanism converts the four legal forms into a comprehensive transfer of all institutional interests from John Goodwin to Frances Carne. The confession that Frances Carne was the true and lawful owner of the lands, houses and tenements formerly |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | belonging to the deceased George Carne reveals the underlying institutional reality that the public auction and subsequent transfers had never displaced her substantive position. Despite the formal architecture of the November 1717 to April 1718 sequence, the institutional regime now acknowledges that the property had always effectively been Frances's, with the documentary structure operating as a mechanism for managing George Carne's debt obligations without truly disposing of the family estate. The witness panel, John Goodwin's signature and the precise date of sealing rest in the closing portion of the deed not yet recoverable in the present text. The continuing pattern of stable witnessing across the entire November 1717 to October 1718 sequence (Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander) probably continues here. The £530 0s 0d sterling money payment marks the largest single cash transaction documented within the entire Goodwin-Carne sequence. The substantial sum exceeds the cumulative payments documented in the earlier deeds and indicates that the institutional regime tracked significant cash transfers through the documentary chain. The figure perhaps reflects the negotiated settlement between mother and son following the institutional resolution of George Carne's debts and the conclusion of the formal leasehold arrangement. The institutional revelation that the November 1717 transactions arose from a public auction of a deceased debtor's estate transforms the reading of the entire documented sequence. The earlier deeds were not natural family settlements but rather formal institutional mechanisms for handling a complex post-mortem creditor situation, with John Goodwin acting as the auction purchaser and Frances Carne acting as the recipient of the family residue. Speculations The institutional decision to channel the resolution of George Carne's debt obligations through a public auction purchased by his stepson, followed by a ninety-nine-year lease-back to his widow and an eventual quit-claim restoring her institutional position, perhaps reveals a sophisticated documentary strategy for protecting the widow's effective ownership while satisfying the technical requirements of creditor settlement. By having John Goodwin purchase the estate at auction, the institutional regime cleared the debt claims; by then leasing the property back to Frances at substantial rents, the mechanism preserved John's formal ownership while allowing Frances to continue her practical occupation; and by finally quit-claiming the residual interest, John released the estate definitively back to his mother. The £530 0s 0d sterling money payment as the consideration for the quit-claim perhaps reveals the institutional cost of unwinding the November 1717 settlement. By paying her son this substantial sum, Frances Carne effectively bought out his residual interest in the estate, with the mechanism converting the elaborate documentary architecture into a final cash transaction. The figure perhaps reflects either the accumulated rent obligation under the leases, the capital value of the leasehold interest, or some combination of the two negotiated between mother and son. The use of sterling money in the present deed, against the island money used in the earlier transactions, perhaps reflects the institutional importance of the final settlement. By choosing sterling rather than local currency for the closing payment, the parties marked the transaction as a definitive resolution within the most reliable currency available. The mechanism perhaps converts the institutional architecture into a metropolitan-grade settlement, with the substantial sum protected by the underlying value of the imperial currency rather than by the local circulation medium of island money. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 243 | 238          | of Aprill Dom[ini]: One Thousand Seven Hundred &amp; Eighteen Signed Sealed &amp; Delivered in y[e] presence John Goodwin of Lucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall John Alexander Copy of M[rs] Carnes Bond to pay Rich[ard] &amp; Mercy Carne their Portions Know all men by these presents that I Frances Carne of the Island S[t] Helena Widdow do hereby Acknowledge my Self to Stand Indebted Unto the Hon[ourable] United East India Comp[any] Merch[ants] of England &amp; Lords Proprietors of the Said Island, and to all and every of their Successors In the Sume of Five Hundred Pounds in good &amp; Currant money of the Said Island and for the true paym[en]t thereof to be well and truly made Unto the Said Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] or their Successors agents or assigns to be hereby bind my Self my Heirs Executors Adminnis[trato]rs Assignes firmly by these presents In Witness whereof I have hereunto Sett my hand and Seale this Second day of Aprill Dom[ini] One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighteen The Condition of this obligation is Such That if in Case the above bound Frances Carne or Her Heirs Execut[o]rs Administrato[rs] or Assigns or Either of them doth well and truly pay or cause to be well and truly paid Unto Richard &amp; Mercy Carne Son and Daughter of M[r] George Carne deceased) the Sume of One Hundred &amp; Twenty Pounds Sterling to Each of them in good and Currant money of the Said Island in at or upon the day of their Marriage or full Age as Shall first happen, the Same being their full Portion and more then an Equivalent to their part of their Said Deceased Fathers Estate) which payment is to be made without any manner of fraud, or further delay then this Present Obligation is to be Null and void, Else to remaine in full force, power and Vertue her Frances F C Carne Mark Signed Sealed &amp; Delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason W[illia]m Worrall Jn[o] Alexander | The deed was sealed on 2 April 1718. John Goodwin Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Copy of Mrs Carne's bond to pay Richard and Mercy Carne their portions Island of St Helena Frances Carne of the island, widow, acknowledged herself bound to the Honourable United East India Company, Merchants of England and Lords Proprietors of the island, and to all their successors, in the sum of £500 0s 0d in good and current island money. For the true payment of the sum to the Honourable United Company, their successors, agents or assigns, Frances Carne bound herself, her heirs, executors, administrators and assigns by the present obligation. She set her hand and seal to the bond on 2 April 1718. The condition of the obligation was that if Frances Carne, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns paid to Richard Carne and Mercy Carne, son and daughter of the deceased Mr George Carne, the sum of £120 0s 0d sterling to each of them in good and current island money, on or before their day of marriage or coming of age (whichever happened first), the obligation was to be null and void. The sum represented their full portion and more than an equivalent share of their late father's estate. The payment was to be made without any fraud or further delay. If the condition was not met, the obligation was to remain in full force, power and virtue. The mark F C of Frances Carne Signed, sealed and delivered in the presence of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander. Interpretations The closing date of 2 April 1718 for the quit-claim deed places that instrument in the same single day as the slave-and-livestock sale-back from John Goodwin to Frances Carne and the present bond. The institutional pattern reveals 2 April 1718 as a third major sealing event within the Goodwin-Carne sequence, with three substantial deeds processed on a single day to complete the institutional resolution of the George Carne estate. The bond is constructed under the standard early modern English penal-bond structure. Frances Carne acknowledges herself indebted to the Honourable United Company for £500 0s 0d, but the underlying obligation is to pay £120 0s 0d sterling each to Richard Carne and Mercy Carne, the son and daughter of the deceased George Carne. The penal sum is double the principal obligation (£240 0s 0d total against £500 0s 0d penalty), reproducing the institutional pattern of using a penalty figure substantially greater than the principal to provide enhanced enforcement. The condition of the obligation triggers the institutional consequence depending on Frances Carne's performance. If she pays each child £120 0s 0d on their marriage or coming of age (whichever comes first), the bond becomes null and void. If she fails, the £500 0s 0d penalty falls due to the Company. The mechanism gives the Company institutional standing to enforce the children's interests, with the bond providing a third-party guarantor structure that protects the children even though they are not themselves parties to the obligation. The use of the Honourable United Company as the institutional obligee, rather than the children themselves, reproduces the early modern English practice of routing minors' interests through institutional channels rather than allowing direct enforcement by the minors. The mechanism converts the children's claims into Company-enforceable obligations, with the institutional architecture providing the practical machinery for enforcement. The recital that the £120 0s 0d sterling to each child represented their full portion and more than an equivalent share of their late father's estate places the bond within the broader settlement of George Carne's estate. The two |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | children would receive their combined £240 0s 0d sterling on the triggering events of marriage or majority. The mechanism converts the residual estate into a fixed institutional commitment payable on defined future dates. Richard Carne and Mercy Carne appear here as previously undocumented children of George Carne. The institutional record had earlier documented his son-and-heir line through George Carne's mercantile activities, his marriage to Frances Goodwin, and his role in selling Captain Goodwin's House in May 1715. The present bond identifies two further children, with the Richard Carne name perhaps connecting to a previously unrecorded son and Mercy Carne to a daughter. Mercy as a personal name in the period was relatively uncommon, reproducing the convention observed in Mercy Charles (the earlier wife of George Surdens in the Haswell-Alexander chain of title) and Mercy Sanders (the widow of Richard Alexander whose life-interest had been sold to John Alexander in January 1718). The institutional reference to sterling money in the bond, against the island money used in the Lemon Valley lease rent and the slave-and-livestock transactions, perhaps reflects the children's right to receive their portions in the more stable imperial currency. The mechanism gives the children institutional protection against any depreciation of island money during the period until their marriages or majority, with the sterling denomination providing a fixed metropolitan-grade entitlement. The institutional architecture of the entire Goodwin-Carne sequence now becomes clearer with the bond. The November 1717 public auction had cleared George Carne's debts; the December 1717 leases had given Frances Carne the working possession; the April 1718 quit-claim restored her institutional title; and the present bond commits her to maintain the children's portions out of the recovered estate. The mechanism converts the comprehensive estate settlement into a multi-stage process that ultimately secures both the widow's position and the children's future entitlements. The £500 0s 0d penal sum represents one of the largest documented bonds within the records of the period. The institutional pattern of using penalties at roughly double the principal obligation reflects the standard early modern English bond-construction practice, with the high penalty providing the institutional incentive for performance. The witness panel of Lucas Mason, William Worrall and John Alexander reproduces the literate trio attending the Goodwin-Carne sequence across multiple deeds and dates. The seventh appearance of the same three witnesses within the documented chain consolidates the institutional pattern of stable witnessing throughout the entire estate management process. Speculations The institutional decision to secure the children's portions through a bond to the Company rather than through a direct family settlement perhaps reflects the comparative reliability of institutional enforcement against family commitments. By making the Company the institutional obligee, the bond gave the children's portions the same enforcement mechanism as Company tax obligations and rent arrears, with the institutional regime providing the practical machinery for protecting the minors' interests. The mechanism converts a private family obligation into an institutional commitment with the full weight of Company enforcement behind it. The £500 0s 0d penal sum, set against the £240 0s 0d combined principal obligation, perhaps reflects the institutional calculation that a substantial penalty was required to ensure compliance over the potentially long period until the children reached marriage or majority. With Richard and Mercy Carne as the children of a deceased father and a widow with a complex remarriage |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | history (Frances having been previously Mrs Goodwin before her marriage to George Carne), the institutional regime perhaps anticipated the possibility of competing claims or institutional disruption during the period until the obligation matured. The substantial penal sum gave the institutional architecture its protective force. The use of sterling for the children's portions, against island money for most other transactions, perhaps reflects the institutional preference for sterling as the appropriate currency for minors' portions. The mechanism gave the children the right to receive their entitlements in the more stable currency, with the institutional structure perhaps anticipating that the children might use their portions for departure from the island, for marriage settlements, or for other purposes requiring metropolitan-grade currency. The pattern reproduces the institutional differentiation observed earlier between sterling and island money for different categories of obligation.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| 244 | 239          | Island St Helena The Hon[ourable] the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise, Grant, Lease, Lett &amp; to Terme Sett unto Antipas Tovey of y[e] s[aid] Island Gent (&amp; Third in Council) All that Mes[suage &amp; Tennement Scituate lying &amp; being in the South Division of this Island at the Hood of the Eastermost Vally that Leads down into Sandy bay now in y[e] occupacon of y[e] S[aid] Antipas Tovey part of which was formerly call'd &amp; Knonn by y[e] name of Richard Alexanders Land, the whole containing now Thirty Six Acres Viz[t] Thirty four Acres by Mensuration being Wood, Plantable &amp; Pasture Land, with One Dwelling House thereon, Lying butting &amp; bounding on the East (under the Maine Ridg) next to y[e] Hon[ourable] Company's Waste &amp; 4 part Marthorse Land on the West to John Hidings, on y[e] North to y[e] Hon[ourable] Company's Land call'd Perkins Plantation, &amp; on y[e] South Side next to Benjamin Greentrees Land To have &amp; to hold the S[aid] Demised Mes[suage &amp; Tennement with y[e] appurtenances &amp; every part &amp; parcel thereof to him the s[aid] Antipas Tovey his heires, Execut[ors] Adm[inistrators] or allow'd of Assigne, From y[e] Day of y[e] Date of these p[rese]nts for &amp; dureing all the time, Space &amp; Term of y[e] naturall Lives of John Coles Margaret (Wife of) Tovey &amp; Elizabeth Marsh W[iddow]s, all of this Island &amp; Hongest Liver of either of them Renewable after y[e] Death of any of y[e] Nominees upon y[e] payment of half a years Rent at y[e] Admittance of each Life or new Nominee Upon condicions that he y[e] S[aid] Antipas Tovey his Heirs or allow'd of Assigns Do alwayes Bear true faith &amp; allegiance to our Sovereigne Lord King George his heirs &amp; Successors &amp; to the s[aid] Hon[ourable] Company &amp; their Successors &amp; shall duly obey all the Laws &amp; Constitutions of the s[aid] Island Yeilding &amp; paying therefore Yearly &amp; every year during the S[aid] Term unto y[e] s[aid] Hon[ourable] Company their Successors Agents or assigns the Yearly Rent of four Shillings p[er] acre besides One Shilling Duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feaste of y[e] Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary (being the 25[t]h Day of March) Also That Small Knoll or Ridge of Waste Land above &amp; between aforesaid Thirty Four Acres of Land &amp; below the s[aid] Hon[ourable] Company's Plantation called Griffiths Ground &amp; part of Ben[jamin] Greentrees Land, containing by computation about Two acres be the same more or less paying Yearly as aforesaid during y[e] terme One Shilling Duty p[er] acre only Provided he y[e] S[aid] Antipas Tovey his Heires &amp; c[t] shall Plant &amp; continue to keep Planted the s[aid] Knoll with Plants of Timber Trees or such other Wood as he can get to grow, best | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Antipas Tovey of the island, gentleman and third in council, all the messuage and tenement in the South Division of the island at the head of the easternmost valley that leads down into Sandy Bay, then in Antipas Tovey's occupation. Part of the parcel had formerly been called and known by the name of Richard Alexander's land. The whole contained thirty-six acres, of which thirty-four acres by measurement were wood, plantable and pasture land with one dwelling house upon them. The parcel was bounded eastwards (under the Main Ridge) by the Honourable Company's waste and part of Marthorse land, westwards by John Hiding's land, northwards by the Honourable Company's land called Perkins Plantation, and southwards by Benjamin Greentree's land. The grant was to Antipas Tovey, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company, from the date of the deed for the natural lives of John Coles, Margaret (wife of) Tovey and Elizabeth Marsh, widow, all of the island, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee. The lease was held on condition that Antipas Tovey, his heirs or approved assigns always bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent was four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, payable on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The lease also covered a small knoll or ridge of waste land above and between the thirty-four acres and below the Honourable Company's plantation called Griffith's Ground and part of Benjamin Greentree's land, containing by estimation about two acres more or less. The rent on the knoll was one shilling per acre duty only. Antipas Tovey was to plant and keep planted the knoll with timber trees or such other wood as he could get to grow there. On failure of growth at the first, second or third planting, he was to replant yearly at the proper season with timber or other thriving trees. Antipas Tovey and his successors were to repair, support, maintain, uphold and keep up the dwelling house and outhouses on the premises, together with all gates, stiles, walls, ditches, banks and other fences, with all needful and necessary repairs whenever required. They were not to alter the fences, which were the landmarks and would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. They were to keep the ground in good heart by digging and manuring, and not to allow it to be run out. They were |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | there &amp; upon failure of Wood's groweing upon the first, Second or Third Planting, he s[ai]d Antipas Tovey or his Successo[rs] shall Yearly at y[e] Proper Season of y[e] year Replant y[e] same with the Plants of Timber or other Thriving Trees as he or they can gett That y[e] s[ai]d Antipas Tovey his heirs or allow'd Assignes Shall &amp; will well &amp; suffici ently repair Support, Maintain, uphold, &amp; keep y[e] Dwelling House &amp; Out Houses be =ing upon the premis[s]es, &amp; all y[e] Gates, Styles, Walls, Ditches, Bankes or other Fences with all needfull &amp; necessary repararations when, &amp; as often as need shall require &amp; not to alter the Fences which are y[e] Land marks &amp;c[t] will occasion y[e] Alteration of the Plott hereunto Annexed &amp; Shall keep y[e] ground in good heart digging &amp; manureing it, &amp; not Suffer the same to be Run Out, And also Shall Still replant with good Fruit Trees, the Lemon Garden or Orchard adjoining to y[e] s[ai]d Dwelling House &amp; preserve the same Fruit trees in good &amp; order condition &amp; Plant others in their room &amp; Stead as any of them shall decay so as y[e] same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchyad or Lemon Garden, Nor Shall not Sell or Dispose of this Lease, or Interest in the same w[i]thout y[e] consent of y[e] Hon[our]ab[le] Governour &amp; Council for the time being In Witness whereof y[e] Said Hon[our]ab[le] United Comp[any] Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Set their Common Seal at Union Castle in James Valley this Sixth day of February in y[e] year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Eighteen 1718/9 &amp; Fifth year of his Maj[esties] Reign &amp; y[e] s[ai]d Antipas Tovey to the other part hath sett his hand and Seal Sealed &amp; deliv[er]ed in y[e] presence of Hon[our]ab[le] Gov[ernor] Antipas Tovey y[e] word (where) being first interlined Math[ew] Bazett 2 Dep[uty] W[illia]m Wackhin John Goodwin | also to replant the lemon garden or orchard adjoining the dwelling house with good fruit trees, preserve the trees in good order and condition, and plant new trees in place of any that decayed, so that the orchard remained a good fruit-bearing garden. They were not to sell or dispose of the lease or any interest in it without the consent of the Honourable Governor and Council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at Union Castle in James Valley on 6 February 1719, in the fifth year of His Majesty's reign. Antipas Tovey set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Sealed and delivered in the presence of the Honourable Governor [...], Matthew Bazett, second and deputy, William Wackhin, and John Goodwin. The word where was first interlined. Antipas Tovey Interpretations The lease consolidates a substantial thirty-six-acre Sandy Bay estate in Antipas Tovey's hands under the lives-based tenure framework that the Company had introduced in 1717. The institutional pattern reproduces the structure observed in the April 1717 Samuel Price lease at Manatee Bay and the December 1717 Cason consolidated lease, with the lives-based mechanism replacing the earlier twenty-one-year terms of the 1711-1713 framework. The parcel comprised two distinct components within a single institutional grant. The principal thirty-four acres of wood, plantable and pasture land, with a dwelling house, were leased at the standard rate of five shillings per acre per annum (four shillings rent plus one shilling duty). The small knoll or ridge of approximately two acres carried a substantially reduced rate of only one shilling per acre duty, on condition that Antipas Tovey planted and maintained timber trees on it. The differential rate reveals the institutional pattern of using preferential rents to encourage specific land-use activities, with the knoll converted into a documented institutional incentive for tree planting on marginal ground. The institutional language requiring Antipas Tovey to plant the knoll with timber trees or other wood at the proper season, and to replant if growth failed at the first, second or third attempt, gives the tree-planting obligation a multi-attempt resilience clause. The mechanism reveals the Company's recognition that tree establishment on marginal ground was an uncertain enterprise requiring multiple efforts, with the institutional regime providing the tenant with explicit time to achieve success. The three lives nominated for the duration of the lease were John Coles, Margaret (wife of) Tovey and Elizabeth Marsh, widow. Margaret as Antipas Tovey's wife places her within the family alongside his earlier documented role with Antipas in the June 1713 gift of land to Mary Maxwell. John Coles and Elizabeth Marsh as the other two lives represent figures whose institutional significance extends beyond the immediate Tovey household. John Coles connects to the documented holder of substantial Sandy Bay freehold and leasehold confirmed in the 4 August 1713 sitting (thirty acres of freehold across three parcels and twenty-five acres of leasehold). His nomination as a life perhaps reflects either his relative youth or his close institutional connection to the Tovey family. The mechanism reveals the documented pattern of selecting lives from across the wider literate circle rather than restricting them to family members. Elizabeth Marsh, widow, is a previously undocumented individual within the records. The widow status and her nomination as a life perhaps reflect either family connection to the Marsh line (linking to William Marsh and his son Robert Marsh of the earlier records) or her institutional standing within the wider circle. The selection of a widow as a life-nominee parallels the |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | institutional pattern of using lives across multiple demographic categories. The recital that part of the parcel had formerly been called Richard Alexander's land connects to the documented holdings of the late Richard Alexander (the substantial accumulator whose Company-leased ground had been redistributed by 1713). The institutional pattern of preserving the prior-holder identification through working bynames reproduces the documentary memory observed across the records. The Marthorse land identification on the eastern boundary perhaps represents a working byname for an area associated with horse pasturage. The phrase Marthorse may represent a scribal corruption of Marehorse, Mart-horse or another compound term identifying the institutional use of the ground. The pattern parallels the documented bynames such as Horse Pasture Plain identified in the 1713 Mary Hoskison confirmation. John Hiding's land on the western boundary identifies a previously undocumented holder. The institutional pattern of recording boundary holders reveals the documented expansion of the documented circle as new figures emerged as landholders. Perkins Plantation on the northern boundary connects to Thomas Perkins senior, the documented holder of substantial Sandy Bay leasehold confirmed in the 20 July 1711 sitting (thirty acres of cabbage tree and gumwood land). The continuation of his institutional position into 1719 confirms the persistence of his family across the documented years. Benjamin Greentree's land on the southern boundary connects to the same Benjamin Greentree confirmed in twenty-two acres of freehold and twenty-one acres of leasehold in the 4 August 1713 sitting. His continuing institutional position in Sandy Bay across six years places him among the documented continuous holders of the period. Griffith's Ground identifies the institutional land held by the heirs of the deceased Daniel Griffith (the long-serving clerk of the council and fourth in council). The documented preservation of his name through the working byname reveals the institutional memory of the Griffith family's position across the documentary regime. Antipas Tovey's designation as gentleman and third in council marks his elevated institutional standing by February 1719. His progression across the documented records moves from his earlier identification as register, examiner and witness through the early 1710s, to gentleman by 1714, to third in council by 1719. The mechanism reveals the documented pattern of career advancement within the small institutional circle. The witness panel for the lease includes the Honourable Governor (whose name is not clearly recovered), Matthew Bazett (second and deputy), William Wcakhin, and John Goodwin. The institutional composition reproduces the council-quorum pattern attached to substantial leases of the period. The interlineation of the word where before sealing follows the standard documentary practice of recording amendments made during execution. Matthew Bazett's designation as second and deputy by February 1719 marks a substantial institutional progression from his earlier fifth-in-council position in 1711, fourth-in-council position in 1713, and second-in-council position in 1718. The mechanism reveals the documented career advancement of the substantial planter-surveyor across the institutional hierarchy. The half-year's rent payable at the admittance of each new life, against the full year's rent stipulated in the earlier Cason lease of February 1718, perhaps reflects an institutional adjustment of the renewal fee structure during the intervening twelve months. The mechanism reveals the documented institutional refinement of the lives-based |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | tenure framework as the Company experimented with different fee patterns. Speculations The institutional decision to grant Antipas Tovey a thirty-six-acre Sandy Bay estate under lives-based tenure perhaps reflects his elevated standing within the documented elite circle by February 1719. As third in council with longstanding service as register and examiner, Antipas had become one of the principal institutional figures of the period. The grant of substantial ground under the favourable lives-based framework, with the additional knoll at a preferential rate for tree planting, perhaps represents the Company's institutional recognition of his service through a generous lease package. The selection of John Coles as a life-nominee alongside Margaret Tovey and Elizabeth Marsh perhaps reflects an institutional calculation that John Coles's documented relative youth gave him the longest probable lifespan among the available candidates. By including a younger life-nominee alongside the tenant's wife and another figure, Antipas Tovey perhaps maximised the institutional duration of the lease, with the longest survivor's life giving the entire tenure its potential maximum length. The mechanism reveals the documented strategic calculation embedded in lives-based tenure selection. The differential rent structure between the principal thirty-four acres at five shillings per acre and the knoll at one shilling per acre duty only perhaps reveals the institutional pattern of using preferential rents to encourage specific land-use activities. By offering Antipas Tovey a substantially reduced rate on the marginal knoll in exchange for his commitment to plant and maintain trees, the Company converted what might otherwise have been unprofitable ground into a documented tree-planting asset. The mechanism perhaps reflects the broader institutional strategy of using the tenancy framework as an instrument of arboricultural policy across the island. |
| 245 | 240          | Island St Helena The Hon[ourable] the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and to Farm Lett Unto James Greentree of the Said Island free Holder all that Piece or Parcell of Land Containing Twelve Acres Scituate lying and being in the South Division of this Island, at or near the head of Gabriells Gutt Butting towards the North upon the Said James Greentrees own Land, towards the West upon the Land of Joshua Johnson and towards the South &amp; East upon the Hon[ourable] Company's Waste Land in the Said Division To have &amp; to hold the Said hereby Demised Twelve Acres of Land with the Appurtenances and every part thereof to him the said James Greentree his Heirs Executors Administrators or Allowed of Assigns from the day of the date of these presents for and during all the time, Space &amp; Terme of the Naturall Lives of Thomas Greentree John Greentree &amp; James Greentree my three Sons of the said James Greentree &amp; all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the payment of half a years Rent at the Admittance of each Life or new Nominee Upon Condition that he the Said James Greentree his Heirs or Allowed of Assigns Do alwayes bear true faith and Allegiance to our Sovereigne Lord King George his Heirs &amp; Successors and to the Said Hon[ourable] Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yeilding and paying therefore Yearly &amp; Every year during the Said Term unto the Said Hon[ourable] Company their Successors Agents or Assignes the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings per Acre | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to James Greentree of the island, freeholder, a parcel of twelve acres in the South Division of the island, at or near the head of Gabriel's Gut. The parcel was bounded northwards by James Greentree's own land, westwards by the land of Joshua Johnson, and southwards and eastwards by the Honourable Company's waste land in the same division. The grant was to James Greentree, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company, from the date of the deed for the natural lives of Thomas Greentree, John Greentree and James Greentree, his three sons, all of the island, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee. The lease was held on condition that James Greentree, his heirs or approved assigns always bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent was four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, payable on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. James Greentree was thoroughly to set about fencing the twelve acres with all possible diligence. When enclosed and fenced, he or his successors were to plant one acre in ten (and proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity) with timber trees or other wood that could best be grown there. On failure of growth at the first, second or third planting, he or his successors were to replant yearly at the                                                                                                                                                       |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | besides one Shilling p[er] Acre Duty, being in all five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, being the 25 of March Provided That he the Said James Greentree his Heires &amp;c shall throughly Sett about and Fence in the Said Twelve Acres of Land with all p[ossible] Diligence gence, and when So enclosed and ferreed That then He or they do proceed to plant one acre in ten and So proportionable for a Greater or lesser quantity with such plants of Timber Trees or such other Wood as he or they can get to grow best thereon, and upon failure of the Woods groweing upon the first 2 or 3 Planting, he the Said James Greentree or his Successors Shall Yearly at the Proper Seasons of the year replant the same with the best Plants of Timber or other Thriveing Trees as He or they can get as aforesaid And that the Said James Greentree or his allowed of Assigns Shall likewise plant Lemon Trees round all &amp; every the Inside of the said Fences besides ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every one Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them shall Decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden, and the whole 12 acres of Land with the fences to be well and Sufficiently kept in good repair to repair when and as often as need shall require, and not to suffer the ground to be run out, nor to alter the fences after they are well made, which are the Land marks and which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plot hereunto Annex ed, nor shall not Sell nor no ways Dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same Contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governo[r] and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the Said Hon[ourable] Company and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Sett their Common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this | proper seasons with the best timber or other thriving trees. He was also to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, together with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for every acre of the demised land. He was to plant new trees in place of any that decayed, so that the whole formed a good fruit-bearing orchard or lemon garden. The twelve acres and the fences were to be well and sufficiently kept in good repair whenever required. The ground was not to be allowed to run out. The fences, once well made, were not to be altered, since they were the landmarks and any change would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. The lease or any interest in it was not to be sold or disposed of contrary to the true meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being. The Honourable Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on [...] Interpretations The lease consolidates the institutional pattern of lives-based tenure under the enhanced 1717 framework, with James Greentree taking twelve acres at the head of Gabriel's Gut under the standard arrangement of three named lives. The institutional structure precisely reproduces the architecture observed in the April 1717 Samuel Price lease, the December 1717 Cason lease, and the February 1719 Antipas Tovey lease, with the lives-based mechanism now established as the principal tenure form for substantial leases. The three lives nominated were James Greentree's three sons Thomas Greentree, John Greentree and James Greentree, all of the island. The selection of three sons of the tenant himself as the lives gives the institutional structure its strongest possible family-perpetuation profile. By naming sons whose lives would probably extend beyond his own, James Greentree gave the lease its maximum likely duration through the longest survivor of the three. The mechanism reveals the documented strategic use of lives-based tenure to secure family ground across the next generation. The naming of three sons indicates a substantial family of male heirs within the Greentree line. The same James Greentree had been documented across the records as the buyer of the Powell estate with the slave Oliver in March 1703, the Bevean Chapel Valley house in October 1705, the Cleve James Valley house in June 1715, and the Goodwin four acres in September 1715. His confirmed sixty acres of freehold across three Sandy Bay parcels in the 4 August 1713 sitting, with an additional twenty-five-acre lease, established him as a substantial accumulator by 1713. The present 1719 lease adds further twelve acres under the lives-based framework. Gabriel's Gut appears as a working byname connecting to the documented Gabriel Powell. The institutional pattern of naming a topographical feature after a prominent landholder reproduces the documented practice of preserving family connections through working place names. The boundary description identifies James Greentree's own land on the northern boundary, indicating that the leased twelve acres extended an existing Greentree holding. The mechanism reveals the documented pattern of consolidating freehold and leasehold around a working core, with the twelve-acre lease adding to a larger Greentree estate at or near the head of Gabriel's Gut. Joshua Johnson on the western boundary connects to the living Joshua Johnson (distinct from the deceased husband of Elizabeth Johnson at Broad Bottom) who had been confirmed in fourteen acres of freehold and twenty-eight acres of leasehold under the King's Peak in the 4 August 1713 sitting. His continuing institutional position |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                   | into 1719 marks the persistent boundary configuration of the upland Sandy Bay zone. The enhanced improvement covenants attached to the lease combine multiple categories of tree planting. The institutional architecture requires James Greentree to plant one acre in ten with timber trees or wood (for an obligation to plant approximately 1.2 acres of timber on the twelve-acre parcel), to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, and to plant ten lemon or other good fruit trees for every acre (an additional 120 trees across the twelve acres). The cumulative tree-planting obligation gives the lease its character as an active arboricultural commitment. The replanting provision on failure at the first, second or third planting reproduces the resilience clause observed in the Antipas Tovey lease of February 1719. The institutional pattern of giving the tenant multiple attempts to establish tree growth reveals the Company's recognition that arboriculture on the island's marginal ground required sustained effort. The mechanism gives the tenant institutional protection against the natural difficulties of tree establishment while preserving the underlying improvement obligation. The combination of timber trees on one acre in ten with lemon trees round the fences and ten fruit trees per acre across the whole creates a layered planting schedule. The institutional architecture differentiates between species and locations, with the structure perhaps reflecting the Company's institutional strategy of using different parts of each parcel for different productive purposes. Timber trees in concentrated plots provided wood supply; lemon trees on fences gave perimeter productivity; and fruit trees scattered across the parcel provided general productive capacity. The fence-as-landmark covenant reproduces the standard documentary pattern observed across the leases of the period. The mechanism ties the operative description to the annexed plan, with the institutional regime treating the plan as the authoritative document for boundary disputes. The disposal restriction requiring the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being reproduces the institutional pattern of preventing unilateral transfer of substantial tenancies. The mechanism gives the Company active control over each subsequent transfer of the leasehold, preserving the institutional framework against the disruption of unauthorised alienation. The sealing date is incomplete in the present recoverable text, with the year of execution probably 1719 in line with the surrounding institutional sequence and the fifth regnal year of King George I. Speculations The institutional decision to grant James Greentree the twelve-acre Gabriel's Gut parcel under a three-life tenure based on his own sons perhaps reflects a deliberate strategy of securing the family's institutional position across the next generation. With three named sons as the lives, the lease's duration depended on the longest survivor of the three, giving the Greentree family ground potential continuity for several decades. The mechanism converts the formal lease into a quasi-perpetual family settlement, with the institutional renewal fee operating only at the end of the longest life rather than at fixed term intervals. The enhanced tree-planting obligations, combining timber trees on one acre in ten with lemon trees round fences and ten fruit trees per acre across the whole, perhaps reflect the institutional refinement of the improvement covenants during the 1717-1719 period. By specifying multiple categories of trees with differential placement requirements, the Company gave the lease a sophisticated arboricultural programme that operated as both a commercial fruit-growing enterprise and a long-term timber-supply strategy. The mechanism perhaps |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | anticipated the multi-decade duration of the lives-based tenure, with the institutional architecture providing the tenant with a structured framework for sustained productive development of the parcel. The acreage scale of the demised parcel at twelve acres, against the much larger thirty-six-acre Antipas Tovey lease of the same period, perhaps reflects the institutional differentiation between the substantial council-level leases and the more modest freeholder-level extensions. James Greentree as freeholder rather than council member received a proportionate addition to his existing estate, with the smaller scale matching his institutional status as a substantial but not elite figure within the documented hierarchy. The mechanism perhaps reveals the documented practice of using lease size as an institutional marker of the tenant's standing within the broader land-management framework.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 246          | 241          | this 21 day of May Dom[ini] One Thousand Seven Hundred &amp; Nineteen and the Said James Greentree to the other Part hath Sett his hand &amp; Seale James GreentreeSealed &amp; Delivered In the presence offIsland St Helena The Hon[ourable] the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] of Merch[ants] of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise, Grant, Lease, Sett, and to Farme Sett Unto James Greentree of the Said Island free Holder all that Piece or Parcell of Land Contain Eighteen Acres Scituate lying and being in the West Division of this Island at or near the head of Blood Bottom Butting towards the W[est] upon the Said James Greentrees own Land, towards the E[ast] upon the Land hired of the Hon[ourable] Comp[any] by M[rs] Frances Carne, towards the S[outh] upon the Land of M[rs] John Goodwins Land towards the West upon the Land now in Possession of John Johnson called or known by the Name of Greentrees plain in the said W[est] Division To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised Eighteen Acres of Land with the appurtenances &amp; every part thereof to him the Said James Greentree His Heirs Executors Adminstrat[o]rs or allowed of Assignes from the day of the date of these p[rese]nts for and during all the time, Space and Terme of the Naturall Lives of the Said James Greentree three Sons Thomas Greentree John Greentree &amp; James Greentree all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them renewable after the death of any of the Said Nominees upon the payment of half a years rent at the admittance of Each life or new Nominee Upon Conditions that he the Said James Greentree His Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do always bear true faith and Allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George His Heirs Successors and to the Said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] and their Successors and shall duly obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yeilding and paying therefore yearly &amp; Every year During the Said Terme unto the Said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] their Successors agents or assignes the Yearly Rent of four Shillings p[er] acre besides one Shilling duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] acre at the Feast of Annunciation of the Bless[ed] Virgin Mary being the 25 day of March, Always Provided That he the Said James Greentree His Heirs &amp;c[t] shall throdially Sett about and Fence In the Said 18 Acres of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence, and when So Enclosed and Fenced That when He or they do proceed to plant one Acre in Ten &amp; to do So Proportionable | Both parties set their hands and seals to the lease on 21 May 1719. James GreentreeSealed and delivered in the presence of [...]Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to James Greentree of the island, freeholder, a parcel of eighteen acres in the West Division of the island at or near the head of Blood Bottom. The parcel was bounded westwards by James Greentree's own land, eastwards by the land hired of the Honourable Company by Mrs Frances Carne, southwards by the land of Mr John Goodwin, and westwards by the land then in the possession of John Johnson called or known by the name of Greentree's Plain in the same West Division. The grant was to James Greentree, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company, from the date of the deed for the natural lives of James Greentree's three sons Thomas Greentree, John Greentree and James Greentree, all of the island, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee. The lease was held on condition that James Greentree, his heirs or approved assigns always bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent was four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, payable on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. James Greentree was thoroughly to set about fencing the eighteen acres with a good and sufficient fence. When enclosed and fenced, he or his successors were to plant one acre in ten, and proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity [...] Interpretations The closing of the Gabriel's Gut lease on 21 May 1719 places it within the documented institutional sequence of leases under the lives-based framework. The fifth regnal year of King George I gives the date its institutional context, with the documentary regime continuing to use the regnal-year formula alongside the calendar year. The second instrument records a parallel lease to James Greentree of a further eighteen acres in the West Division at the head of Blood Bottom. The institutional structure precisely mirrors the Gabriel's Gut lease, with the same three lives (Thomas Greentree, John Greentree and James Greentree, the tenant's sons) nominated for the duration, the same standard rent of five shillings per acre per annum, and similar improvement covenants. The two leases sealed on the same day add a combined thirty acres to James Greentree's documented leasehold position. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | Blood Bottom appears as a previously undocumented working byname within the records. The institutional pattern of preserving topographical features through working names parallels the documented bynames such as Dogwood Valley, Stocks Valley, Swine Gully and Manatee Bay observed across the 1713-1719 sequence. The boundary description reveals a coordinated cluster of substantial accumulators. James Greentree's own land formed the western boundary (with another instance of his existing position acting as the anchor for the institutional extension), Mrs Frances Carne's hired Company land formed the eastern boundary, Mr John Goodwin's land formed the southern boundary, and John Johnson's possession of Greentree's Plain formed the further western boundary. The reciprocal mapping between the major documented figures of the Goodwin-Carne nexus places James Greentree among the established accumulators of the West Division. Mrs Frances Carne's land on the eastern boundary connects to the same Frances Carne (formerly Goodwin) whose comprehensive 1717-1718 family settlement had been completed by the April 1718 quit-claim. The institutional designation of the land as her hired Company land indicates that she continued to hold Company leasehold ground in the West Division, perhaps as part of her ongoing tenancy arrangements following the unwinding of the November 1717 to April 1718 sequence. Mr John Goodwin's land on the southern boundary connects to her son and the eldest documented Goodwin heir whose lengthy documented engagement across the family settlement deeds places him within the institutional circle. The continued institutional connection between mother, son and adjoining holder reproduces the documented pattern of family ground consolidation across the records. John Johnson on the further western boundary, holding Greentree's Plain, represents a previously undocumented figure within the records. The Johnson surname connects to the documented Joshua Johnson (the living holder under the King's Peak) and the deceased Joshua Johnson (husband of Elizabeth Johnson at Broad Bottom). John Johnson may represent a third Johnson within the documented Johnson network, perhaps a son or kinsman of either of the documented figures. The working byname Greentree's Plain identifies the western parcel by reference to a previous Greentree holding, perhaps connecting to an earlier institutional position of the family within the West Division. The institutional pattern of preserving family connections through working place names reproduces the documented practice observed across the records. The same three Greentree sons (Thomas, John and James) nominated as lives in both the Gabriel's Gut lease and the present Blood Bottom lease reveal the deliberate strategy of using identical lives across two parallel institutional grants. By securing both leases to the same family duration, James Greentree converted his cumulative thirty acres into a coordinated multi-life family settlement, with the entire institutional tenure operating under a single demographic clock. The institutional pattern of using the same lives across two same-day leases reveals the documented sophistication of lives-based tenure planning. By coordinating the lives across multiple parcels, the tenant ensured that the entire estate would mature for renewal at the same point rather than facing piecemeal renewal demands at different dates. The mechanism converts the lives-based framework into an institutional tool for coordinated estate management. The improvement covenants in the Blood Bottom lease begin with the same fencing requirement and the same one-acre-in-ten timber-planting obligation observed in the Gabriel's Gut lease. The institutional pattern of using standardised improvement covenants across |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | multiple leases sealed on the same day reveals the documented systematisation of the 1717-1719 framework, with the Company applying consistent obligations across coordinated grants. The 21 May 1719 sealing date for the Gabriel's Gut lease, with the Blood Bottom lease probably sealed on the same day or in close sequence, places both instruments within a single coordinated institutional event. The pattern reproduces the documented practice of clustering related leases for efficient processing, with the Company using single sealing events to clear multiple instruments concerning the same tenant. Speculations The institutional decision to grant James Greentree two separate leases (twelve acres at Gabriel's Gut and eighteen acres at Blood Bottom) under the same three-life tenure rather than combining them into a single thirty-acre instrument perhaps reflects the geographical separation between the two parcels. With one parcel in the South Division and the other in the West Division, the documentary regime preserved the institutional distinction between the two locations while applying consistent tenure terms across both. The mechanism reveals the documented preference for parcel-specific instruments over composite grants, perhaps allowing easier institutional management of boundaries and improvement compliance. The coordinated boundary cluster of James Greentree, Mrs Frances Carne, Mr John Goodwin and John Johnson in the West Division at Blood Bottom perhaps reveals the documented institutional pattern of substantial accumulators holding contiguous ground. By placing the principal landholders of the documented elite circle adjacent to each other, the institutional regime facilitated the reciprocal boundary mapping observed across the records and perhaps reflected the social and family connections between the documented figures. The mechanism reveals the documented geography of elite landholding in the West Division by 1719. The use of identical lives (the three Greentree sons) across both same-day leases perhaps reflects James Greentree's strategic preference for coordinated tenure management. By securing both parcels to the same demographic clock, the tenant simplified the institutional renewal calculations and ensured that the entire family estate matured at the same point. The mechanism perhaps anticipates the practical difficulties of managing multiple leases with different lives, with the coordinated approach providing administrative efficiency at the cost of foregoing the potential demographic diversification that different lives might have provided. |
| 247 | 242          | Proportionable for a Greater or Lesser quantity, with such plants of Timber trees, or such other Wood as he or they Can get to Grow best thereon and Upon failure of the Woods groweing upon the first Second or third Planting He the Said James Greentree or his Successors Shall Yearly at the Proper Seasons of the Year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other Thriveing trees as he or they Can get as aforesaid And that the Said James Greentree his Heirs or allowed of Assign[s] Shall likewise plant Lemon trees round all and every the Inside of the Sd Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good fruit trees for every one Acres of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall Decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit beareing Orchard or Lemon Garden, and the whole Eighteen Acres of Lands with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart &amp; repair when and as Often as need shall require and not to Suffer the Ground to be Run out Nor to Alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land Marks and which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto Annexed nor shall not Sell, nor no | James Greentree was to plant the eighteen acres proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity with timber trees or other wood that could best be grown there. On failure of growth at the first, second or third planting, he or his successors were yearly at the proper seasons to replant the parcel with the best timber or other thriving trees. He and his successors were also to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, together with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for every acre of the demised land. They were to plant new trees in place of any that decayed, so that the parcel formed a good fruit-bearing orchard or lemon garden. The eighteen acres and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair whenever required. The ground was not to be allowed to run out. The fences, once well made, were not to be altered, since they were the landmarks and any change would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. The lease or any interest in it was not to be sold or disposed of contrary to the true meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | ways Dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same Contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governour and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the Said Hon[our]b[le] United Comp[any] and Lords Proprietors to these p[rese]nts have Sett their Comon Seale at their Castle in James Valley this 21 day of May Anno Dom[ini] One Thousand Seven Hundred &amp; Nineteen And the Said James Greentree to the other Part hath Sett his hand and Seale James GreentreeSealed &amp; Delivered In the presence of | The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 21 May 1719. James Greentree set his hand and seal to the counterpart. James GreentreeSealed and delivered in the presence of [...] Interpretations The closing of the Blood Bottom lease completes the second of the two same-day James Greentree leases of 21 May 1719. The institutional structure precisely mirrors the Gabriel's Gut lease, with the same standard combination of improvement covenants, fence-as-landmark provisions and disposal restrictions. The pattern reveals the documented standardisation of the 1717-1719 lease framework, with the Company applying consistent obligations across multiple parcels and tenants. The institutional language requiring the ground to be kept in good heart and repair gives the covenant its agricultural-management force. The phrase good heart in early modern agricultural usage refers to the productive condition of the soil, with the institutional obligation requiring active cultivation practices to maintain fertility. The mechanism parallels the equivalent good heart language observed in the December 1717 Cason lease and the February 1719 Antipas Tovey lease. The cumulative tree-planting obligations across the eighteen acres at Blood Bottom produce a substantial documented commitment. The institutional architecture requires James Greentree to plant approximately 1.8 acres of timber trees (one acre in ten), to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, and to plant 180 lemon or other good fruit trees (ten per acre) across the parcel. Combined with the equivalent obligations on the twelve-acre Gabriel's Gut lease, James Greentree's total improvement commitment across the two leases reaches approximately 3 acres of timber, fence-perimeter lemon planting on thirty acres of land, and 300 lemon or fruit trees. The institutional pattern of using lemon trees as a designated planting category across multiple leases reveals the documented economic and dietary importance of the species within the Company's institutional strategy. The earlier December 1707 Paul Graton lease of the Lemon Garden in Chapel Valley had established lemons as a strategic antiscorbutic asset for ship victualling, with fixed retail prices on lemons and lemon juice. The continuing emphasis on lemon planting in the 1717-1719 leases reproduces the institutional commitment to securing the island's lemon supply across multiple parcels. The fence-as-landmark provision attached to the Blood Bottom lease reproduces the standard documentary pattern. The mechanism ties the operative description to the annexed plan, with the institutional regime treating the plan as the authoritative document for boundary disputes. The pattern parallels the equivalent provisions in the Gabriel's Gut lease and the broader leases of the period. The disposal restriction requiring the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being reproduces the institutional control over leasehold alienation observed across the documented sequence. The mechanism preserves the Company's institutional position against unauthorised transfers, with the consent requirement giving the documentary regime its active supervisory force. The 21 May 1719 sealing date confirms that both James Greentree leases (the twelve-acre Gabriel's Gut parcel in the South Division and the eighteen-acre Blood Bottom parcel in the West Division) were sealed at the Castle in James Valley on the same day. The coordinated processing reveals the documented institutional pattern of clustering related grants for efficient administrative handling. The combined institutional commitment across the two leases gives James Greentree a documented thirty-acre |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
|---------------------|--------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | extension to his existing landholdings under coordinated lives-based tenure. The mechanism converts what might have been a piecemeal accumulation into a comprehensive institutional position, with the three named sons of the tenant serving as the documented lives for the duration of both parcels. The fifth regnal year of King George I, calculated from August 1718 to August 1719, places the 21 May 1719 sealing within that institutional period. The continuing use of regnal-year dating alongside the calendar year reproduces the documentary convention observed across the records of the period. Speculations The institutional decision to apply identical improvement covenants to both James Greentree leases, with the same one-acre-in-ten timber-planting requirement, the same lemon-trees-round-fences obligation, and the same ten-fruit-trees-per-acre commitment, perhaps reflects the documented standardisation of the 1717-1719 lease framework. By using template covenants across multiple parcels, the Company reduced the administrative burden of drafting and managing leases while ensuring consistent improvement requirements across the documented landscape. The mechanism reveals the institutional efficiency of the framework, with template documents allowing the Company to process multiple tenancies under uniform terms. The systematic embedding of lemon planting across the documented 1717-1719 leases perhaps reveals the institutional continuation of the Lemon Garden strategy first documented in the December 1707 Paul Gratton lease. By requiring lemon planting in every substantial lease, the Company distributed the production of antiscorbutic citrus across multiple tenants and locations, reducing the institutional dependence on a single Lemon Garden facility. The mechanism converts what had begun as a centralised institutional asset into a distributed network of small-scale lemon producers, with the institutional architecture providing the framework for sustained ship-victualling supply across the documented years. The choice of three sons as the lives for both same-day Greentree leases, with the institutional structure giving the family the maximum likely duration of tenure, perhaps reflects James Greentree's strategic calculation that his sons' lives would extend significantly beyond his own. By converting his immediate institutional position into a multi-generational family settlement, the documented tenant secured the family's perpetual ground for the next generation without requiring fresh grants or institutional renewal beyond the half-year rent payment at each life's admittance. The mechanism perhaps reveals the documented preference for using lives-based tenure as an instrument of family settlement rather than as a personal commercial arrangement. |
| 248 | 243          | Island St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of merchants of England trading trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and to Farme Lett Unto Arthur Bradley of the Said Island Free holder all that Acres or parcel of Land Containing Eighteen acres Scituate, Lying and being in the East 4 Division of this Island at or near the head of Woody Ridge Com =monly known by y[e] name of Seyloss Ground Buting &amp; bounding towards the North upon y[e] s[ai]d A[rthur] Bradley own 30 acre of free Land towards y[e] S &amp; E[a]st upon y[e] severall parcels of Land in the Posses[s]ion of Rob[er]t Bell, free hol[de]r towards y[e] W[est] upon y[e] Land of James Wood Sen[ior] To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised Eighteen 4 Acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to him the Said Arthur Bradley his Heirs Executors | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Arthur Bradley of the island, freeholder, a parcel of eighteen acres in the East Division of the island at or near the head of Woody Ridge, commonly known by the name of Seyloss Ground. The parcel was bounded northwards by Arthur Bradley's own thirty acres of free land, southwards and eastwards by several parcels of land in the possession of Robert Bell, freeholder, and westwards by the land of James Wood senior. The grant was to Arthur Bradley, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company, from the date of the deed for the natural lives of Edmund Bradley senior, John Bradley and Giles Smith, all of the island, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees [...]                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
|--------------------|-----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Adminstrations or allowed of Assignes from the day of the date of these presents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of Edmund Bradley Senior, John Bradley and Giles Smith [...] all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominee Upon Conditions that he the Said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns, do alwayes bear true faith and allegiance to Our Sovereigne Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Honour =able Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Consti =tutions of the Said Island Yeilding and paying therefore Yearly and every year during the Said Term, unto the Said Honourable Company their Successo[rs] agents or assigns the yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides One Shilling Duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Bless[ed] Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of March alwayes Provided That he the Said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Imediatly Sett about and Fence in the Said acres of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and when So Enclosed and Funded That then he or they do proceed to plant One Acre in Ten and So proportion =able for greater or lesser Quantity with Such Plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can gett to Grow best thereon and Upon failure of the Wood groweing Upon the first Second or third planting He the Said or his Successo[rs] Shall Yearly at the proper Seasons of the year replant the Same w[ith] the best plants of Timber or other Thriveing Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid And That the Said His Heirs or allowed of Assignes Shall likewise plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Inside of the Said Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every One Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to plant Others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall Decay so as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchyard or Lemon Garden and the whole acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart and repair when and as Often as need shall require and not to suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land marks and which will Occasion the alteration of the plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way dispose of this Lease or Interest in the Same Contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governour and Council for the time being [...] In Witness | The lease was held on condition that Arthur Bradley, his heirs or approved assigns always bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent was four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, payable on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Arthur Bradley was immediately to set about fencing the parcel with a good and sufficient fence. When enclosed and fenced, he or his successors were to plant one acre in ten, and proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity, with timber trees or other wood that could best be grown there. On failure of growth at the first, second or third planting, he or his successors were yearly at the proper seasons to replant the parcel with the best timber or other thriving trees. He and his successors were also to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, together with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for every acre of the demised land. They were to plant new trees in place of any that decayed, so that the parcel formed a good fruit-bearing orchard or lemon garden. The eighteen acres and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair whenever required. The ground was not to be allowed to run out. The fences, once well made, were not to be altered, since they were the landmarks and any change would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. The lease or any interest in it was not to be sold or disposed of contrary to the true meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being. Interpretations The lease extends the lives-based tenure framework to Arthur Bradley, with the institutional structure precisely reproducing the architecture observed in the parallel James Greentree leases of May 1719. The eighteen-acre parcel in the East Division at the head of Woody Ridge takes its working byname from Seyloss Ground, a previously undocumented locality within the records. The institutional pattern of using working bynames for parcels reproduces the documented practice observed across the 1713-1719 sequence. Arthur Bradley appears here as freeholder, with the leased parcel adjoining his existing thirty acres of free land. The institutional pattern of extending leasehold tenure adjacent to existing freehold ground reproduces the documented strategy of consolidating working estates around a perpetual core. Arthur Bradley connects to the earlier documented Arthur Bradley who, with his wife Sarah, had sold ten acres to Walter Belvard in October 1705 for one hundred Spanish dollars and four head of cattle. His continuing institutional position into 1719, now with substantial accumulated holdings, marks the documented progression of a soldier from the early 1700s into the established freeholder layer. The three lives nominated for the duration of the lease were Edmund Bradley senior, John Bradley, and Giles Smith. The selection of two Bradleys (Edmund senior and John, perhaps brothers, sons or kinsmen of Arthur) plus Giles Smith (the joiner and carpenter master who had taken Robert Leech as apprentice in March 1716) reveals the documented practice of mixing family and non-family lives within the institutional structure. The pattern parallels the Antipas Tovey lease of February 1719, where Margaret (the tenant's wife), John Coles and Elizabeth Marsh widow had been nominated as the three lives. Edmund Bradley senior carries the senior qualifier, marking the documentation of a younger generational figure (Edmund Bradley junior) elsewhere within the family. The institutional preservation of generational distinctions through the senior qualifier reproduces the documented pattern observed in Sutton Isaac senior and junior, John Nichols senior, Thomas Allis senior, Thomas |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | Harper senior and the other documented senior-junior pairings. John Bradley emerges here as a previously undocumented figure within the wider Bradley family. The selection of John as a life-nominee places him within Arthur's kinship network, perhaps as a son or younger brother whose probable longevity would extend the lease's duration. Giles Smith continues his documented institutional role across the records. His earlier appearance as the joiner-and-carpenter master apprenticed to Robert Leech in March 1716, his confirmation in ten acres of freehold and twenty acres of leasehold near the head of Pleasant Valley in the 4 August 1713 sitting, and his recurring presence in the documented institutional circle together place him as an established figure by 1719. The nomination of an established non-family life perhaps reflects the institutional preference for life-nominees with documented presence and stability rather than purely family relationships. Robert Bell as the southern and eastern boundary holder continues his documented institutional position across multiple categories. His earlier classifications as planter, mason, cooper, cutter and freeholder, combined with his repeated property acquisitions across the records, place him among the most documented artisanal-freehold figures of the period. The institutional pattern of identifying him as freeholder in the present 1719 lease reproduces his settled position within the documented landholding class. James Wood senior on the western boundary continues his documented institutional position. His earlier appearances across the records include his role as cooper, free planter, corporal and James Wood (with variant identifications), with the senior qualifier here perhaps reflecting the documentation of a younger James Wood by 1719. The mechanism reveals the documented pattern of generational identification within the institutional circle. Woody Ridge as the location of Sexton's Ground had been documented in the 7 May 1717 William Alexander lease of fifteen acres of gumwood land at the head of Woody Ridge. The Seyloss Ground byname here represents a separate parcel at or near the same area, with the institutional pattern of multiple bynames within a single broader location preserving the documented landscape granularity. The institutional architecture of the improvement covenants precisely reproduces the standard 1717-1719 framework. The combination of timber-tree planting on one acre in ten, lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, ten lemon or fruit trees per acre across the parcel, and the resilience clause for replanting on failure at the first, second or third attempt creates a documented tree-planting commitment matching the equivalent obligations in the Antipas Tovey, James Greentree and other contemporary leases. The good heart and repair language for the ground and fences, the fence-as-landmark covenant, and the disposal restriction reproduce the documented standard covenants. The mechanism reveals the documented systematisation of the 1717-1719 framework, with template covenants applied across the documented sequence of leases. The half-year rent fee at the admittance of each new life, although not fully recoverable in the present text, follows the standard pattern observed in the parallel leases. The institutional adjustment from the full year's rent of the December 1717 Cason lease to the half year's rent of the 1719 leases reproduces the documented refinement of the renewal-fee structure. The fifth regnal year of King George I, calculated from August 1718 to August 1719, places the present lease (whose specific sealing date rests in the closing portion of |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | the deed not yet recoverable) within the institutional period of late 1719 or thereabouts. Speculations The institutional choice of Edmund Bradley senior, John Bradley and Giles Smith as the three lives perhaps reflects Arthur Bradley's strategic calculation about the balance of family and non-family lives. By including two Bradley kinsmen and one established non-family figure, the tenant secured the family interest while including an institutional life whose documented presence and stability provided independent assurance of the lease's continuation. The mechanism perhaps reveals a deliberate diversification strategy within lives-based tenure planning, with the inclusion of Giles Smith providing a kind of demographic hedge against the simultaneous failure of multiple family lives. The selection of an artisanal master craftsman (Giles Smith, the joiner and carpenter) as one of the three lives perhaps reflects the institutional value of his stable trade-based presence. As a documented master of a permanent trade with an apprentice in train (Robert Leech), Smith represented a particularly settled and visible figure within the institutional circle. The selection perhaps reveals the documented preference for life-nominees whose institutional standing was independent of family connections, with their visible trades and apprentices providing the institutional architecture with reliable demographic anchors. The cluster of substantial freeholders documented as adjoining holders to the Seyloss Ground parcel (Arthur Bradley himself, Robert Bell and James Wood senior) perhaps reveals the documented pattern of institutional concentration in the East Division by 1719. The combination of three substantial freeholders adjoining each other places the documented institutional accumulators within a coherent landscape cluster, with the boundary configuration perhaps reflecting earlier institutional grants that had distributed the East Division ground to a small number of established figures. |
| 249 | 244          | Island St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and To Farme Letts unto Edmond Nichols of the Said Island free Holder all that Piece or parcell of Land Containing Twenty one Acres Scituate lying and in the West 4 Division of this Island at or near the head of M[r] Flemons valley, Butting toward the S[outh] &amp; W[est] upon the free Land of Johna Nichols his Son and toward the N[orth] &amp; East Upon Honourable Companys Waste Land [...] To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised Thirty 4 acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to him the Said Edmond Nichols his Heirs Executors Administrators or allowed of Assignes from the day of the dak of these presents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of Elizabeth wife of the Said Edm[ond] Nichols Robert Nichols and Elizabeth Nichols all of this Island and the Longest Lives of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees, Upon the payment of half a years Rent at the Admittance of Each Life or new Nominee Upon Conditions that he the Said Edmond Nichols his Heirs or allowed of Assignes Do allway bear true faith and allegiance to Our Sovereigne Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Honourable Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yielding and paying therefore yearly and every year during the Said Term, unto the Said Honourable Company their Successors Agents or Assignes the yearly Rent of Four Shillings per Acre besides One Shilling duty being in all five Shillings per Acre at the feast of | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to Edmond Nichols of the island, freeholder, a parcel of twenty-one acres in the West Division of the island at or near the head of Mr Flemon's Valley. The parcel was bounded southwards and westwards by the free land of Edmond Nichols's son Johna Nichols, and northwards and eastwards by the Honourable Company's waste land. The grant was to Edmond Nichols, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company, from the date of the deed for the natural lives of Elizabeth, wife of Edmond Nichols, Robert Nichols and Elizabeth Nichols, all of the island, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee. The lease was held on condition that Edmond Nichols, his heirs or approved assigns always bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent was four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, payable on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Edmond Nichols was immediately to set about fencing the parcel with a good and sufficient fence. When enclosed and fenced, he or his successors were to plant one acre in ten, and proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity, with timber trees or other wood that could best be grown there. On failure of growth at the first, second or third planting, he or his successors were yearly at the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------------------|-----------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 | the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin mary being the Twenty fifth of March alwayes Provided That he the Said Edmond Nichols his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Immediately Setts about and Fence in the Said Sleeps of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and when to Enclosed and Fenced That then he or they do proceed to plant One Acre in Ten and So proportionable for greater or lesser Quantity with Such plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as her they can get to Grow best thereon, and Upon failure of the Woods groweing Upon the first Second or third Planting He the Said Edmond Nichols or his Successors Shall yearly at the Proper Seasons of the year Replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other thriving Trees as he or they can get as aforesaid And That the Said Edmond Nichols his Heirs or allowed of Assignes Shall like =wise plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Inside of the Said Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every One Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to plant Others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall Decay as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden, and the whole Thirty 4 Acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart and repair when and as Often as need Shall require and not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land marks and which will Occasion the Alteration of the plott hereunto Annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way dispose of this Lease or Interest in the Sam Contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governo[ur]r Sealed Council for the time being In Witness whereof the Hon[ourable] Comp[any]'s Lords Propr[ietors] in y[e] presence to these P[rese]nts have Sett their Common Seal at their Castle in James valley this 25 day of of May 1719 And the Said Edmond Nichols to the other part hath Setts to his hand &amp; Seale Edm[ond] Nichols | proper seasons to replant the parcel with the best timber or other thriving trees. He and his successors were also to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, together with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for every acre of the demised land. They were to plant new trees in place of any that decayed, so that the parcel formed a good fruit-bearing orchard or lemon garden. The twenty-one acres and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair whenever required. The ground was not to be allowed to run out. The fences, once well made, were not to be altered, since they were the landmarks and any change would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. The lease or any interest in it was not to be sold or disposed of contrary to the true meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being. The Honourable Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 25 May 1719. Edmond Nichols set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Edmond Nichols Interpretations The lease extends the lives-based tenure framework to Edmond Nichols, with the institutional structure precisely reproducing the architecture observed in the parallel May 1719 James Greentree leases. The twenty-one-acre parcel at the head of Mr Flemon's Valley adds to Edmond Nichols's institutional position adjacent to the documented free land of his son Johna Nichols. The mechanism reveals the documented pattern of extending leasehold tenure across multiple parcels within a coherent family cluster, with father and son holding contiguous ground in the West Division. Edmond Nichols connects to the documented John Nichols senior of earlier records (probably under variant first-name rendering) and to the wider Nichols family network. The earlier 4 August 1713 confirmation of John Nichols senior in forty acres across two parcels (twenty-five acres at the head of an unspecified valley and fifteen acres under the High Peak) established the family's institutional position. The present 1719 lease to Edmond Nichols (perhaps the same individual under variant rendering or a kinsman) reinforces the family's documented continuing accumulation. Mr Flemon's Valley appears as a previously undocumented working byname within the records. The courtesy title Mr attached to the byname's eponym reveals the institutional standing of the Flemon family, although no Flemon figure has been independently documented within the records to this point. The pattern parallels the earlier Powell's Valley (named for the Gabriel Powell family) and Greentree's Plain (named for the Greentree family), with topographical features taking their names from prominent landholders. Johna Nichols as Edmond Nichols's son holding adjacent free land marks the documented progression of the family across two generations. The unusual first name Johna (perhaps a scribal corruption of Jonah, Jonathan or John, or a distinct given name in its own right) introduces a previously undocumented figure within the broader Nichols family. The three lives nominated for the duration of the lease were Elizabeth (the tenant's wife), Robert Nichols and Elizabeth Nichols. The selection of the tenant's wife plus two further Nichols family members (Robert and Elizabeth, perhaps son and daughter) reproduces the documented pattern of using lives drawn from the immediate family circle. The mechanism parallels the James Greentree leases of four days earlier, where the tenant's three sons had been nominated as the lives. The Edmond Nichols lease modifies the pattern by including the wife and (probably) two children, with the family configuration providing a documented multi-generational set of lives. |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                    |                 |                   | The presence of two Elizabeths within the named lives (Elizabeth the wife and Elizabeth Nichols, probably a daughter) reproduces the documented pattern of recurring first names within early modern families. The institutional differentiation between the two Elizabeths rests on their separate identification through Edmond Nichols's wife and Elizabeth Nichols as the daughter, with the documentary regime accommodating the duplication without requiring further qualifiers. Robert Nichols emerges here as a previously undocumented figure within the broader Nichols family. The selection of a Robert and a daughter Elizabeth alongside the tenant's wife reproduces the documented practice of using a mix of family lives to secure the longest probable tenure duration. The duplication of acreage references within the deed (twenty-one acres in the opening text but thirty-four acres in the habendum and the final repair clause) reveals scribal inconsistency within the institutional record. The institutional pattern of preserving such textual ambiguities perhaps reflects the documentary regime's reliance on the annexed plan rather than on textual precision for the operative description. The twenty-one-acre figure in the opening recital probably represents the correct measurement, with the thirty-four-acre references reflecting a scribal error perhaps drawn from the preceding lease in the documentary chain. The improvement covenants reproduce the standard 1717-1719 framework precisely. The combination of timber-tree planting on one acre in ten, lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, ten lemon or fruit trees per acre across the parcel, and the resilience clause for replanting on failure at the first, second or third attempt creates a documented tree-planting commitment matching the equivalent obligations in the parallel leases of the period. The 25 May 1719 sealing date places the Edmond Nichols lease four days after the parallel James Greentree leases of 21 May 1719. The institutional pattern of clustering related leases within a short administrative window reproduces the documented practice of using single weeks to process multiple lives-based tenancies. The Company's continued use of the framework across the late spring and early summer of 1719 reveals the active institutional administration of land-tenure regularisation. The institutional architecture continues the standard fence-as-landmark covenant, the good-heart-and-repair requirement, and the disposal restriction observed across the documented sequence. The mechanism reveals the documented systematisation of the 1717-1719 framework, with template covenants applied across multiple leases sealed within the documented period. The half-year rent fee at the admittance of each new life reproduces the adjusted renewal structure observed in the 1719 leases (against the full year's rent of the December 1717 Cason lease). The mechanism reveals the institutional refinement of the renewal-fee mechanism during the documented period. Speculations The institutional decision to grant Edmond Nichols a twenty-one-acre parcel adjacent to his son Johna Nichols's free land perhaps reflects the documented practice of supporting family consolidation around generational cores. By extending leasehold tenure to the father at a parcel directly adjoining the son's existing freehold, the institutional regime created a documented two-generation Nichols cluster within the West Division. The mechanism perhaps reveals the documented strategy of using lease grants to reinforce the family-based land tenure pattern. The use of the tenant's wife and two further Nichols family members (Robert and Elizabeth) as the three lives, rather than the three sons used in the James Greentree leases, perhaps reflects the demographic composition of the Edmond Nichols family at the moment of the 1719 lease. With fewer sons of mature age than James |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Greentree's documented three sons, Edmond Nichols selected his wife and two other family members as the available lives. The mechanism reveals the documented flexibility of the lives-based framework in accommodating different family configurations. The acreage inconsistency in the deed, with the opening twenty-one acres becoming thirty-four acres in the habendum and the final repair clause, perhaps reflects scribal practice within the institutional regime. The documentary clerks probably drafted multiple leases simultaneously, with text from one lease occasionally appearing in another through copying errors. The institutional tolerance of such inconsistencies perhaps reflects the documented reliance on the annexed plan as the authoritative description, with textual ambiguities resolved through reference to the cartographic record rather than through revision of the deed text.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 250          | 245          | Island St Helena The Honourable the Lords Propriet[o]rs of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Grant Lease Setts and To Farme Setts unto James Vesey 4 of the Said Island Free Planter all that Piece or parcell of Land Contain =ing Eight 4 acres Scituate lying and being in the South 4 Division of the Island at or near the foot of the Maine Ridge Butting toward the N[orth] upon the Cabbagetree Land of M[r] Harwell, towards the S[outh] upon the Lands of M[r] John Alexander Hat. Propos[s]ed by John Long towards the E[ast] upon the free Land now in posses[s]ion of the Said James Vesey, and towards the West upon the Lands of Martha Robinson [...] To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised Eight 4 Acres of Land with the appurtenan =ces and every part thereof to him the Said James Vesey 4 his Heirs Executors Adminstrators or allowed of Assignes from the day of the dack of these p[rese]nts for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of James Vesey Iun[ior] J[ohn] Vesey &amp; Martha Vesey Sons &amp; Daughter of the Said James Vesey 4 of 4 4 4 all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees Upon the payment of half a years Rent at the Admittance of Each Life or new Nominee Upon Conditions that he the Said James Vesey 4 his Heirs or allowed of Assignes, Do alwayes bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereigne Lord King George His Heirs and Successors and to the Said Honourable Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yeilding and pay =ing therefore yearly and every year during the Said term unto the Said Honourable Company their Successo[r]s =ors Agents or Assignes the yearly Rent of Four Shillings per acre besides One Shilling duty being in all five Shilling per acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the blessed Virgin mary being the twenty fifth of March alwayes Provided That he the Said James Vesey 4 of his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Immediatly Setts about and Fence in the Said acre of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and when to Enclosed and Fence That then He or they do proceed to plant One Acre in ten and So propor =tionable for a greater or lesser Quantity with Such plants of Timber Trees or Such other woods as he or they can gets to Grow best thereon, and Upon failure of the woods groweing Upon the first Second or third planting He the Said James Vesey 4 of 4 or his Successors Shall yearly at the proper Seasons of the year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other thriveing Trees as he or they can gets as aforesaid And That the Said James Vesey 4 4 his Heirs or allayed of Assigns Shall likewise plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Inside of the Said Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good fruit Trees for every One Acre of the aforesaid Demis =ed | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England Trading to the East Indies, leased to James Vesey of the island, free planter, a parcel of eight acres in the South Division of the island at or near the foot of the Main Ridge. The parcel was bounded northwards by the cabbage tree land of Mr Harwell, southwards by the lands of Mr John Alexander then possessed by John Long, eastwards by the free land then in the possession of James Vesey, and westwards by the lands of Martha Robinson. The grant was to James Vesey, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns approved by the Company, from the date of the deed for the natural lives of James Vesey junior, John Vesey and Martha Vesey, the sons and daughter of James Vesey, all of the island, and the longest survivor of the three. The lease was renewable after the death of any of the nominees on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life or nominee. The lease was held on condition that James Vesey, his heirs or approved assigns always bore true faith and allegiance to King George I, his heirs and successors, and to the Honourable Company and their successors, and that they duly obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent was four shillings per acre, with an additional one-shilling duty, making five shillings per acre in all, payable on 25 March, the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary. James Vesey was immediately to set about fencing the parcel with a good and sufficient fence. When enclosed and fenced, he or his successors were to plant one acre in ten, and proportionally for any greater or lesser quantity, with timber trees or other wood that could best be grown there. On failure of growth at the first, second or third planting, he or his successors were yearly at the proper seasons to replant the parcel with the best timber or other thriving trees. He and his successors were also to plant lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, together with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for every acre of the demised land. They were to plant new trees in place of any that decayed, so that the parcel formed a good fruit-bearing orchard or lemon garden. The eight acres and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair whenever required. The ground was not to be allowed to run out. The fences, once well made, were not to be altered, since they were the landmarks and any change would force alteration of the plan annexed to the deed. The lease or any interest in it was not to be sold or disposed of contrary to the true meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being. The Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors set their common seal to the deed at the Castle in James Valley on 25 March 1719. James Vesey set his hand and seal to the counterpart. Scaled and delivered in the presence of [...] |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
|--------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Land, and to Plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall Decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden, and the whole Eight 4 Acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart and repair when and as often as need Shall require and not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land marks and which will Occasion the Alteration of the plott hereunto Annexed nor shall not Sell nor no way dispose of this Lease or Interest in the Same Contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Govern[o]r and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the Said Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] and Lords Propriet[ors] to these p[re]sents have Sett their Comon Seale at their Castle in James Valley this 25[t]h of March Anno 1719 And the Said James Vesey to the other part hath Sett his hand and Seale Sealed &amp; Delivered in the presence of James Vesey | James Vesey Interpretations The lease extends the lives-based tenure framework to James Vesey, the documented free planter whose witnessing role across multiple deeds since 1701 had placed him within the institutional circle. The eight-acre parcel at the foot of the Main Ridge in the South Division reproduces the institutional architecture observed in the parallel leases of 1719, with the lives-based mechanism, the standard rent structure and the standardised improvement covenants. The 25 March 1719 sealing date places the lease on Lady Day, the principal English quarter day and the institutional rent-collection date used across the documented period. The choice of the rent-collection day for sealing the lease perhaps reflects a deliberate institutional alignment of the lease commencement with the Company's accounting cycle. The mechanism converts the lease into a documented quarterly-anchored institutional instrument. The 25 March 1719 dating sits earlier in the sequence than the 21 May 1719 Greentree leases and the 25 May 1719 Edmond Nichols lease. The institutional pattern reveals the Vesey lease as the earliest documented instance of the 1719 lives-based grants within the present recovered sequence, with the Company's institutional administration of the framework extending across the late winter, spring and early summer of 1719. James Vesey appears here as free planter, marking his documented institutional standing across the period. His earlier role as witness in the December 1686 Fewsdale-Bevean sale, the 1697 wash-house council order (where his name was not specifically attached but his role as a witness appears across other instruments), the February 1712 Mary Jewister slave gift, the March 1712 Mason-Wrangham settlement, the June 1714 Tovey acknowledgement of the Maxwell share, the May 1715 Cleve-Greentree sale, and the present 1719 lease together place him as one of the most documented witnesses of the institutional period. The three lives nominated for the duration of the lease were James Vesey junior, John Vesey and Martha Vesey, identified as the sons and daughter of James Vesey. The selection of the tenant's children as the three lives reproduces the documented pattern observed in the James Greentree leases of May 1719, where the tenant's three sons had been similarly nominated. The mechanism reveals the documented strategy of using the next generation's lives to secure family ground across the documented framework. The boundary description identifies four named adjoining holders. The cabbage tree land of Mr Harwell on the north connects to a previously undocumented figure within the records, with the courtesy title Mr placing him within the senior civilian circle. The Harwell surname does not appear in the prior documented sequence, perhaps reflecting his recent emergence as an institutional figure or his arrival on the island by 1719. Mr John Alexander on the south reproduces the documented position of the long-serving register and substantial accumulator. The institutional designation of his land as then possessed by John Long records the practical occupation by the long-serving witness and adjoining holder named across multiple boundaries in the records. The mechanism reveals the documented pattern of distinguishing between freehold ownership (Alexander) and working possession (Long), with the lease boundary description capturing both layers. James Vesey's own free land on the east places his existing freehold position as the anchor for the present leasehold extension. The institutional pattern of extending leasehold tenure adjacent to existing freehold ground reproduces the documented strategy observed in the parallel 1719 leases. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                      | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                        | Martha Robinson on the west emerges as a previously undocumented widow or female holder within the records. The Robinson surname connects to John Robinson, the documented free planter holding Company leasehold ground confirmed in the 1 August 1711 sitting. Martha Robinson may represent his widow, daughter or kinswoman, with her institutional position as boundary holder marking her independent tenure of the West-side ground. The reduced acreage scale of the Vesey lease at eight acres, against the eighteen-acre Bradley lease, the twelve-acre and eighteen-acre Greentree leases, the twenty-one-acre Nichols lease and the thirty-six-acre Tovey lease, reveals the documented institutional differentiation between substantial and modest extensions. James Vesey as free planter received a proportionally smaller addition to his existing estate than the larger grants to council members and senior freeholders. The mechanism reveals the documented hierarchy of lease scales reflecting the tenants' relative institutional standing. The improvement covenants reproduce the standard 1717-1719 framework precisely. The cumulative tree-planting obligation across the eight acres comprises 0.8 acres of timber trees (one acre in ten), lemon trees round the inside of all the fences, and 80 lemon or fruit trees (ten per acre). The institutional architecture creates a documented tree-planting commitment proportional to the smaller parcel size, with the framework's per-acre formulation producing scaled obligations. The fence-as-landmark covenant, the good-heart-and-repair requirement and the disposal restriction reproduce the documented standard covenants observed across the leases of the period. The mechanism reveals the documented systematisation of the 1717-1719 framework, with template covenants applied across multiple leases sealed within the documented period. Speculations The choice of 25 March 1719 (Lady Day) as the sealing date perhaps reflects the institutional preference for aligning lease commencements with the rent-collection date. By sealing the lease on the same day as the annual rent would fall due, the institutional regime perhaps simplified the calculation of the first year's rent, with the entire first year's obligation maturing exactly one year after sealing. The mechanism converts the lease into a documented quarterly-anchored instrument, with the institutional calendar driving the administrative procedure. The selection of the tenant's children (James junior, John and Martha) as the three lives, reproducing the documented pattern of the parallel May 1719 Greentree leases, perhaps reveals the institutional preference for child-based lives across the 1719 framework. By using children's lives rather than spouse-and-children mixes or family-and-friend combinations, the tenant maximised the probable duration of the lease through the typically longer lifespans of young people. The mechanism reveals the documented strategic deployment of demographic patterns within lives-based tenure planning. The relatively modest scale of the eight-acre extension to James Vesey's existing freehold, against the substantial cumulative grants to other contemporary tenants, perhaps reflects the institutional calibration of lease size to existing accumulation. As a documented free planter with established freehold ground (named in the boundary description), James Vesey received only a small additional parcel rather than a substantial extension. The mechanism perhaps reveals the documented institutional preference for proportional grants that supplemented rather than transformed existing tenures. |
| 251 | 246          | Island St HelenaThe Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[our]b[l]e United company of Merchants of England trading to y <sup>e</sup> East Indies | Island of St HelenaThe Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, confirmed to John                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | Do hereby Confirm unto John Alexander Gent[leman] and Free Holder ten Acres of Hundred Land lying Scituate at or near the Head of one Branch of Sandy Bay Valley in the South Division of the Said Island formerly in the posses[sion] of Thomas Guggen, Geo[rge] Sanders &amp; Cap[tain] Geo[rge] Harwell with all and Singular the Appurtenances thereunto belonging of what nature kind or Quality Soever Butting towards the W[est] upon the Lands of Tho[mas] S[w]allow free holder, towards the East upon the Demised Land formerly hired by Tho[mas] Perkins but now in the posses[sion] of the Hon[ourable] Comp[any] towards the S[outh] upon the Lands of James Vesey free Planter and the Hon[ourable] Comp[any]'s waste Land lying in a Valley below the writeing Stone Ridge and towards the W[est] upon the Land hired formerly by the Said Thomas Guggen deed as also two dwelling Houses Standing on one part of the Said Land and is now in the Possession of the Said John Alexander which ten acres of Free Land and two houses he the Said John Alexander hath a just right and Title to as may more fully appeare upon Examination in a Consultation of 26 day of May Dom[ini] one Thousand Seven Hundred and Nineteen To have and to hold the Said ten Acres of [Demised] Land and Houses with all &amp; all other the appurtenances thereunto belonging as aforesaid To him the Said John Alexander his heirs and assigns for ever Upon Condition that he the Said John Alexander his Heirs and assigns Do alwayes bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] and their Successors and Shall duly obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island, In Witness whereof the Said Hon[ourable] Comp[any] Lords Proprietors to these presents have Sett their Comon Seale at their Castle in the Said Island in James Valley this 3 June Dom[ini] one Thousand Seven Hundred and Nineteen Seal'd and Deliver'd in the Presence of: | Alexander, gentleman and freeholder, ten acres of land at or near the head of one branch of Sandy Bay Valley in the South Division. The parcel had earlier been in the possession of Thomas Guggen, George Sanders and Captain George Harwell. The grant carried all appurtenances of whatever kind. The boundaries ran west to the land of Thomas Swallow freeholder, east to the demised land formerly hired by Thomas Perkins and now held by the Company, south to the land of James Vesey free planter and the Company's waste land in a valley below Writing Stone Ridge, and west again to land formerly hired by the deceased Thomas Guggen. Two dwelling houses stood on part of the ground and were already occupied by John Alexander. Alexander's title to the ten acres and the two houses had been examined and established by consultation of 26 May 1719. The grant ran to him, his heirs and assigns for ever, on condition that he and his successors kept true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and obeyed all the laws and constitutions of the island. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 3 June 1719, and delivered it in the presence of the witnesses named below. Interpretations The description of the land as hundred land marks a class of allotted ground distinct from Company waste and from hired or demised land. The category appears in earlier records as the freehold core of the regularised tenure framework, with each parcel tied to its original distribution under the inquest and successive confirmations. The chain of earlier possession running through Thomas Guggen (Gargen), George Sanders and Captain George Harwell preserves institutional memory of three successive holders before Alexander. Guggen had held adjoining Sandy Bay ground under the 1711 framework as freeholder and lessee. George Sanders had been documented in January 1718 as the second husband of Mercy Alexander, widow of Richard Alexander, and earlier in the consultation book as the agent for the maintenance of Richard Alexander's children. Captain George Harwell is the same individual as Captain George Haswell, deputy governor by 1717 and son-in-law of Thomas Goodwin through marriage to Elizabeth, with the variant rendering preserved across the scribal record. The 1719 confirmation routes Alexander's title through the senior council figure whose widow had sold the principal Sandy Bay estate to him for £480 0s 0d only weeks earlier. The demised land formerly hired by Thomas Perkins but now in the Company's possession reveals the operation of leasehold reversion. Perkins had taken the 20 July 1711 Sandy Bay lease but the ground had fallen back to the Company by 1719, perhaps on his death or surrender. The institutional record preserves the prior tenant's name even after reversion as a working byname for the parcel. Writing Stone Ridge as a topographical marker recurs from the earlier Charles Steward 4 August 1713 leasehold description, anchoring the southern boundary of Alexander's parcel within the documented Sandy Bay landscape. The consultation of 26 May 1719 as the title-establishing procedure operates within the post-1711 framework requiring formal council adjudication before regularisation. The eight-day gap between the consultation and the sealing on 3 June 1719 reflects the standard engrossing interval for substantial freehold confirmations. The condition of true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors continues the institutional formula introduced in the earliest Company |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | grants of 1684, with the reigning monarch updated to the Hanoverian succession. The dual allegiance to crown and Company preserves the proprietary character of the island's tenure throughout the documented period. The Castle in James Valley appears here without the variant renderings Union Castle or United Castle documented in earlier records, suggesting the institutional terminology had settled by 1719 into the simpler form. Speculations The 1719 confirmation completes John Alexander's documented Sandy Bay accumulation in coordinated fashion with the 16 May 1719 Haswell sale. Alexander bought ten acres with house, outhouse, provisions and buildings from Elizabeth Haswell on 16 May 1719 for £480 0s 0d, with the parcel having passed through Thomas Goodwin, George Haswell and Elizabeth Haswell. Within ten days the council convened the 26 May 1719 consultation establishing Alexander's title to a separate ten-acre parcel adjoining or near the first, with two dwelling houses already in his occupation. The compressed timetable suggests the Haswell sale and the council confirmation were coordinated steps in a single estate transition, with the senior council figures clearing residual Sandy Bay holdings out of the Haswell line and routing them into Alexander's hands through complementary private and institutional procedures. The reference to two dwelling houses already standing on the ground and already in Alexander's occupation indicates that he had been in working possession before the formal confirmation. The mechanism reveals the institutional pattern of regularising existing occupation through formal council procedure, with the documentary regime catching up to settled practice rather than initiating it. The houses had probably been built or acquired during the Guggen-Sanders-Harwell chain and had passed to Alexander through informal arrangements before the 1719 council consultation made the position formal. |
| 252 | 247          | Island St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies Do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and to Farme Lett Unto John French of the Said Island Gunner &amp; Free Planter all that Piece or parcell of Land Containing twenty Six Acres Scituate lying and being in the East Division of this Island at or near the head of Pleasant Valley Butting &amp; Bounding every way as in and by a deed formerly Granted to Giles Smith &amp; entered in the 174 folio old Regist Book in may mere fully appear, To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised twenty Six Acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to him the Said John French his Heirs Executors Administrators or Allowed of Assignes from the Day of the Date of these presents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of Mary French Elizabeth French &amp; Sarah French daughters of him the Said John French and all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them, Renewable after the death of any of the Said Nominees, Upon the payment of half a years Rent at the Admittance of Each Life or new Nominee, Upon Conditions That he the Said John French his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do alwayes bear true faith and allegiance to Our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successo[rs] ors and to the Said Hon[ourable] Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the S[ai]d Island Yeilding and paying therefore Yearly and every year during the Said Term Unto the Said Honourable Comp[any] their Successors Agents or Assigns the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides One Shilling duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the twentie fifth of march Allways Provided That | Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to John French of the island, gunner and free planter, a parcel of twenty-six acres in the East Division at or near the head of Pleasant Valley. The boundaries were those set out in an earlier deed granted to Giles Smith and entered at folio 174 of the old register book. The lease ran on the natural lives of French's three daughters, Mary French, Elizabeth French and Sarah French, all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. French and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. French was bound to fence the twenty-six acres immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten with timber trees or other suitable wood, in proportion to a greater or smaller area. If the trees failed at the first, second or third planting, he or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees available. French was also required to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, together with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land. He was to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden.                                                                                                                            |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | he the Said John French his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Immediately Setts about and Fence in the Said Acres of Land in a good and Sufficient Fence and when So Inclosed &amp; Fenced That then He or they do proceed to Plant One Acre in ten and So proportion =able for a greater or Lesser Quantity with Such Plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can get to grow best thereon and Upon failure of the woods groweing Upon the first Second or third planting He the Said John French or his Successors Shall yearly at the proper Seasons of the year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other thriveing Trees as he or they can get as aforesaid And That the Said John French His Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall Likewise plant Lemon trees round all and every the Inside of the Said Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every One Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall Decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden, and the whole twenty Six Acres of Land [Demised] with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart &amp; repair when and as Often as need shall require, and not Suffer y[e] Ground to be run out, nor to alter the Fences after they are well made, which are the Land marks &amp; which will Occasion the alteration of the plott hereunto Annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way Dispose of this Lease or Interest in the Same Contrary to the Tenor and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governor and Council for the time being In Witness whereof | The whole twenty-six acres and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. French could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being. Interpretations The identification of John French as gunner and free planter combines garrison office with planter status. Earlier records document John French as gunner of the island and chief gunner of Fort James, with a documented chain of urban and rural property dealings from March 1705 onwards. The dual classification continues the pattern of garrison officers building agricultural estates alongside their military duties. The recital that the boundaries are those of an earlier deed to Giles Smith entered at folio 174 of the old register book routes the parcel through documented institutional memory. Giles Smith the joiner and carpenter had held leasehold ground in Pleasant Valley under the 4 August 1713 framework. The 1719 lease to French transfers the same boundaries to a new tenant through fresh allocation rather than assignment, with the Company controlling the destination of the reverted parcel. The lives-based tenure on three daughters as nominees marks the enhanced 1717-1719 framework. The selection of three daughters rather than a wife and children spreads the demographic risk across a single generation while preserving the parcel within the French family. The longest-liver provision converts the lease into a near-perpetual settlement under the youngest daughter's expected lifespan. The half-year rent payable at the admittance of each new life reflects the institutional refinement introduced during 1718-1719. Earlier lives-based leases had required a full year's rent at each renewal, with the December 1717 Cason regrant operating under that older standard. The lighter renewal fee in the 1719 leases reduces the institutional friction on succession while preserving the Company's income from the admittance procedure. The differential rent of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty making 5s 0d per acre continues the standard 1711 framework rate. Lady Day as the rent day aligns the island administration with metropolitan English quarter-day practice. The enhanced improvement covenants combine timber-tree planting at one acre in ten, lemon trees round the inside of all fences, and a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees per acre. The three-attempt resilience clause obliges French to replant on failure at the first, second or third attempt, with continuing annual replanting if early efforts failed. The covenants reveal the institutional priority on building a distributed lemon-production network across multiple tenants, supporting ship-victualling supply against scurvy. The prohibition on altering fences once properly made treats fences as legal landmarks tied to the annexed plan. The mechanism converts the physical boundary into the operative legal description, with the surveyor's plan rather than the textual recital governing the parcel's extent. The institutional reliance on plans rather than on textual precision reflects the documented pattern observed across the 4 August 1713 sitting. The disposal restriction requiring council consent before sale or transfer departs from the freely transferable 99-year leases of the earlier framework. The mechanism preserves Company supervision over the tenant population and prevents anti-concentration breaches through informal subletting or assignment. Speculations |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  | The selection of John French as the new tenant of the former Giles Smith parcel rather than a member of the Smith family suggests Smith had either surrendered, forfeited or died without an heir willing to continue the tenancy. Smith's 1713 lease had operated on the standard 21-year term commencing 25 March 1712 and would have run until 1733. The Company's redirection of the parcel to French in 1719 implies an early termination through one of these routes, with the institutional record preserving Smith's name as a working byname for the boundary while routing the operative tenancy to a fresh holder under the enhanced lives-based framework. The naming of three daughters as the lives, with no son included, perhaps reflects the absence of male heirs in the French household or a deliberate decision to settle the parcel as a women's portion. The institutional pattern of vesting lives-based tenure in daughters appears across the 1719 leases (Edmond Nichols nominated his wife Elizabeth and probably his daughter Elizabeth; James Vesey nominated his daughter Martha alongside his sons). French's selection of three daughters preserves the Pleasant Valley parcel as an inheritance specifically routed to the women of the family, perhaps in anticipation of dowry settlements or as protection against marital appropriation under English coverture rules.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 253 | 248          | whereof the Said Honourable United Comp[an]y and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Sett their Comon Seale at their Castle in James Valley this 3 Day of June Anno One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Nineteen and the Said John French to the Other part hath Sett his hand &amp; SealeSealed &amp; Delivered In the P[re]sence of J[ohn] Pyke Gov[ernor]J[ohn] Alexander J[ohn] GoodwinIsland St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honour =able United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and to Farme Lett unto of the Said Island all that piece or parcell of Land Containing acres Scituate lying and being in the Division of this Island at or near To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to him the Said his Heirs Executors Administrators or allowed of Assignes from the Day of the Date of these Presents for and Dureing all the time Space and Term of the Naturall lives of all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the Payment of half a years rent at the admittance of Each Life or new Nominee Upon Condition that he the Said his Heirs or allow'd of Assignes Do allways bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereigne Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Hon[ourable] Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yeilding and paying therefore Yearly and every year during the Said term unto the Said Honourable company their Successors agents or assignes the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one shilling duty being in all Five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Bl[essed] Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of march allwayes Provided that he the Said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall immediatly Sett about and Fence in the Said acres of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and that So inclosed and Fenced that then he or they do proceed to plant One Acre in Ten and So Proportionable for a Greater or Lesser Quantity with Such plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can get to grow Best thereon | The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on 3 June 1719, and John French set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of John Pyke, governor, John Alexander and John Goodwin. Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. Interpretations The completion of the French lease records Isaac Pyke as governor by 3 June 1719, with John Alexander and John Goodwin attending as witnesses alongside him. Pyke had emerged as governor by the March 1718 Cason-Worrall assignment, and the June 1719 confirmation places him in continuing office. The witness panel reflects the close institutional circle of senior council members and substantial freeholders attending lives-based confirmations. The blank engrossing template that follows the French lease reveals the documentary practice of preparing standard forms in advance, with the tenant's name, the acreage, the division, the location and the names of the nominated lives left to be entered when a particular grant was made. The pre-printed framework streamlines the production of multiple lives-based leases under the 1717-1719 enhanced tenure regime. The standard rate of 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, the Lady Day rent date, the |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|---------------------|--------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | fencing requirement and the timber-tree planting covenant all appear as fixed clauses requiring no negotiation, marking the maturity of the institutional framework by mid-1719.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |
| 254 | 249          | thereon and Upon failure of the woods groweing Upon the First Second or third Planting he the Said or his Successors Shall yearly at the Proper Seasons of the Year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other Thriveing Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid and that the Said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall likewise Plant Lemon Trees ground all and every the Inside of the said Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every One Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall decay so as the same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchyard or Lemon Garden and the whole Acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart &amp; repair when &amp; as often as need Shall require &amp; not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land marks &amp; which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no ways Dispose of this Lease, or Interest In the Same Contrary to the Tenor and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governor &amp; Council for the time being In Witness whereof the Said Hon[ourable] United Company and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Sett their Common Seal at their Castle in James Valley this Anno one thousand Seven hundred and Nineteen and the Said to the other part hath Sett to his hand and Seale Sealed &amp; Delivered In y[e] presence ofIsland St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and to Farme Lett unto of the Said Island all that peice or parcell of Land containing Acres Scituate lying and being in the Division of this Island at or near the To have and to hold the said hereby Demised acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to him the Said his Heirs Executors Administrators or allowed of Assigns from the day of the Date of these presents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of of either of them, Renewable all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them, Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the Payment of half a years rent at the Remitagme of Each Life or new Nominee Upon Condition that the Said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do alwayes bear true faith and Allegiance to Our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Honourable Company and their Successors and Shall duly obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the said Island Yeilding and paying therefore Yearly and every year during the said Term, unto the Said Honourable Company &amp; their Successors agents | On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden. The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on [...] 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The tenant was to yield and pay each year during the term, to the Company and its successors, agents [...]. Interpretations The continuation of the blank engrossing template through a second instance reveals the institutional preparation of multiple lives-based lease forms in advance. The standard clauses for fencing, timber-tree planting at one acre in ten, lemon-tree planting round all fences and at ten additional fruit trees per acre, the prohibition on running out the ground, the fence-as-landmark rule and the disposal restriction all appear as fixed elements of the 1719 leasehold regime. The repeated reference to the plan annexed to the lease confirms that each instrument carried its own cartographic record, with the surveyor's plan rather than the textual recital governing the operative boundary. The mechanism reflects the institutional reliance on visual rather than written description for boundary definition, paralleling the documented practice of the 4 August 1713 sitting. The half-year renewal fee at the admittance of each new life continues the institutional refinement of 1718-1719, lighter than the full-year renewal of the earlier December 1717 Cason regrant. The reduction made succession on lives-based tenure less burdensome while preserving the Company's procedural authority over each new life's admittance. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------------|--------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 255 | 250          | agents or assigns the yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shilling p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the twentieth fifth of March allways Provided that he the said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Immediately Sett about and Fence in the said Acres of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and when that So inclosed and Fenced that then he or they do proceed to plant One Acre in Ten and So proportionable for a greater or Lesser Quantity with Such Plants of Timber Trees or such other wood as he or they can gett to grow Best thereon and upon failure of the woods groweing Upon the first Second or third planting he the said or his Successors Shall Yearly at the proper Seasons of the year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other Thriveing Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid and that the said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall likewise plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Inside of the said Fences besides Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit trees for every one Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemmon Garden and the whole acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart and repair when and as often as need Shall require and not to Alter the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land Marks and which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor shall not Sell nor no ways Dispose of this Lease or Interest in the Same Contrary to the Tenor and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governor and Council for the time being, In Witness whereof the said Hon[ourable] United Company and Lords Proprietors to these p[rese]nts have Sett their common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Dom[in]i: one thousand Seven hundred and nineteen and the said to the other part hath Sett to his hand and Seale Sealed &amp; Delivered in the presence of | The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden. The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley on [...] 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. Interpretations The repetition of the standard 1719 leasehold template across a third instance confirms the institutional practice of preparing multiple blank forms in advance for use across the lives-based tenure programme. The fixed clauses for rent at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, Lady Day collection, immediate fencing, one acre in ten timber-tree planting, lemon trees round all fences with ten additional fruit trees per acre, the three-attempt resilience clause, the prohibition on running out the ground, the fence-as-landmark rule and the disposal restriction all appear identically across each instance. The institutional reliance on a standardised form rather than on bespoke drafting for each tenant reveals the maturity of the 1717-1719 framework by the time of the June 1719 sealings. The Company had moved from negotiated individual grants in the earlier 1711-1713 period to a near-uniform leasehold instrument with only the tenant's name, the acreage, the location, the lives and the witnesses left to be filled in at the point of execution. The mechanism reduced engrossing costs and ensured consistency of obligation across the growing population of lives-based tenants. |
| 256 | 251          | Island St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease Setts and to Farm Lett unto of the Said Island all that Peice or Parcell of Land Containing Acres Scituate lying and being in the Division of this Island at or near the To have and to hold the Said hereby Demised acres of Land with the appurte =nances and every part thereof to him the Said his Heirs Executors administrators or allowed of Assigns from the day of the Date of these p[rese]sents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the Payment of half a years rent at the admittance of each Life or                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | Island of St Helena What follows is the standard form of words used by the Company, acting as Lords Proprietors, for granting lives-based leases on the island in 1719. The text sets out the operative legal language in full, with the tenant's name, the acreage, the division, the location, the names of the nominated lives, the date of execution and the witnesses left blank to be entered when a particular grant was made. The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |

| BL Image No. | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
|--------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|              |              | new Nominee Upon Condition that he the Said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do allways bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Honourable Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island, Yeilding and Paying therefore Yearly and every Year during the Said Term, unto the Said Honourable company their Successors agents or assigns the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of march allways Provided that he the Said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall imediatly Sett about and Fence in the Said Acres of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and that so inclosed and Fenced that then he or they do proceed to plant One Acre in Ten and So proportionable for a greater or Lesser Quantity with Such plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can get to grow best thereon and Upon failure of the woods groweing upon the first Second or third planting he the Said or his Successors Shall Yearly at the proper Seasons of the year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or others Thriveing Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid and that the Said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall likewise plant Lemmon Trees round all and every the Inside of the Said Fences beside Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every one Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden and the whole Acres of Land with the fences to be well and Sufficiently kept in good heart and repair when and as often as need Shall require and not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made, which are the Land marks and which will Occasion the alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same contrary to the Tenor and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governour &amp; Council for the time being In Witness whereof the Said Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors to these presents have Sett their common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Dom[in]i: one thousand seven hundred and Nineteen and the Said to the | was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden. The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley in 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. Interpretations The blank engrossing template represents the master form of words prepared by the Company's secretariat for the lives-based leasehold programme of 1717-1719. The institutional purpose was to ensure that every lease issued under the enhanced framework carried identical covenants on rent, fencing, tree planting, ground maintenance and disposal restriction. The clerk filled in the variable elements at the point of execution once the council had approved a specific grant. The standardisation marks the maturity of the lives-based tenure regime by 1719. The earlier 1711-1713 framework had used 21-year terms with negotiated boundaries and individual drafting for each grant. The 1717-1719 transition introduced lives-based settlements running across multiple generations under a single fixed instrument, with the operative clauses removed from negotiation and reduced to a printed or scribally repeated template. The fixed clauses cover six distinct institutional obligations. The annual rent at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty makes 5s 0d per acre in total, collected each Lady Day in line with metropolitan English quarter-day practice. The fencing obligation requires immediate enclosure with a good and sufficient fence, with the fence treated as a legal landmark once erected. The timber-tree planting covenant at one acre in ten requires replanting at the first, second or third attempt and annual replanting thereafter if the trees failed. The lemon and fruit-tree covenant requires lemon trees round the inside of every fence and a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees per acre, with continuing replacement on decay. The ground-maintenance obligation prohibits running out the ground and altering the fences after they are properly made. The disposal |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | restriction requires council consent before any sale or transfer of the lease. The half-year rent payable at the admittance of each new life marks the institutional refinement introduced during 1718-1719. The earlier December 1717 Cason regrant had required a full year's rent at each renewal. The lighter renewal fee in the 1719 leases reduces the friction on succession while preserving the Company's procedural authority over each new life's admittance. The reference to the plan annexed to the lease confirms that each completed instrument carried its own cartographic record, with the surveyor's plan rather than the textual recital governing the operative boundary. The fence-as-landmark rule converts the physical boundary into the operative legal description. The disposal restriction requiring council consent before sale or transfer departs from the freely transferable 99-year leases of the earlier framework. The mechanism preserves Company supervision over the tenant population and prevents anti-concentration breaches through informal subletting or assignment.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| 257 | 252          | the other part hath sett to his Sealed &amp; Delivered in the presence ofIsland St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease, Sett and to Farm Lett unto of the Said Island all that peice or parcell of Land containing acres Scituate lying and being in the Division of this Island at or near the To have and to hold the said hereby Demised acres of Land with the appertinances and every part thereof to him the Said his Heirs Executors administrators or allowed of Assignes from the Day of the Date of these presents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them, Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the payment of half a years rent at the admittance of each Life or new Nominee Upon Condition that he the said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do allways bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successo[rs] and to the said Honourable Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yelding and Paying therefore Yearly and every Year during the said Term, unto the said Honourable Company their Successors agents or assigns the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of March allways Provided that he the Said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall imediately Sett about and Fence in the said Acres of Land with a good and Sufficient Fence and when so inclosed and Fenced that then he or they do proceed to plant one Acre in Ten and So proportionable for a greater or Lesser Quantity with Such plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can gett to grow Best thereon and upon failure of the woods groweing upon the first Second or third planting he the said or his Successors shall Yearly at the proper Seasons of the year replant the Same with the best plants of Timber or other Thriving Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid and that the said His Heirs or allowed of Assign Shall Likewise plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Inside of the said Fences | The tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart, and the deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. A further instance of the same standard lives-based leasehold template follows in the register, again left blank for completion at the point of execution. Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence. |
| 258 | 253          | Fences beside Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every one Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land and to plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall decay so as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden and the whole                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |

| BLImageNo.  | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|---------------------|-----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |                 | Acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently kept in good heart and repair when and as often as need Shall require and not to Suffer the Ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made and not to Suffer the Land marks and which will Occasion the alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way Dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and Consent of the Governor and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the said Hon<sup>ble</sup> United Company and Lords Proprietors to these presents have Sett their common Seale at their Castle in James Valley this Dom<sup>ini</sup>: one Thousand Seven Hundred and Nineteen and the said to the other part hath Sett to his hand and Seale Sealed &amp; delivered in the presence ofIsland St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease, Sett and to Farm Lett unto of the said Island all that piece or parcell of Land Containing acres Scituate lying and being in the Division of this Island at or near the To have and to hold the said hereby Demised Acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to the Said his Heirs Executors administrators or allowed of Assigns from the day of the Date of these presents for and during all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them, Renew =able after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the Payment of half a years rent at the admittance of each Life or new Nominee Upon Condition that he the said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do always bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the Said Honourable Company and their Successors and Shall duly Obey all the Laws and Constitutions of the Said Island Yeilding and Paying therefore Yearly and every year during the Said Term unto the Said Honourable Company their Successors agents or assigns the Yearly Rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of March allways Provided that he the said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Immediately Sett about and Fence in the said Acres of Land with a good and | The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley in 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. A further instance of the same standard lives-based leasehold template follows in the register, again left blank for completion at the point of execution. Island of St Helena The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. |
| 259 | 254             | and Sufficient Fence and that So inclosed and Fenced that then he or they do proceed to plant one Acre in Ten and So proportionable for a greater or Lesser Quantity with such plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can get to grow best thereon and upon failure of the woods groweing upon the first Second or third planting he the Said or his Successors Shall yearly at the Proper Seasons of the year replant the same with the best plants of Timber or other Thriving Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid and that the said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall likewise plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Inside of the said Fences beside Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every one acre of the aforesaid Demised Land and to plant others in their Room or stead as any of them Shall decay So as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchyard or Lemon Garden and the whole Acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart and repair when and as often as need Shall require and not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land marks and which will occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way Dispose of this Lease or                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | Once enclosed, the tenant was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden. The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |
|---------------------|--------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              | Interest in the Same, contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and consent of the Governor and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the said Honourable United Company and Lords Proprietors to these presents have Sett their common Seal at their Castle in James Valley this One Thousand Seven Hundred and Nineteen and the said to the other part hath Sett to his hand and seal Sealed &amp; Delivered in the presence ofIsland St HelenaThe Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise, Grant, Lease, Sett and to Farme Lett unto of the said Island all that piece or parcel of Land Containing acres Scituate lying and being in the Division of this Island at or near theTo have and to hold the said hereby Demised acres of Land with the appurtenances and every part thereof to him the said his Heirs Executors administrators or allowed of Assigns from the day of the Date of these presents for and During all the time Space and Term of the Naturall Lives of all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them, Renewable after the death of any of the said Nominees upon the                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              | The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley in 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart.The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...].A further instance of the same standard lives-based leasehold template follows in the register, again left blank for completion at the point of execution.Island of St HelenaThe Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...].The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee on the [...].                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| 260 | 255          | The Payment of half a Years rent at the admittance of each Life or new Nominee Upon Condition that he the Said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do always bear true faith and allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the said Honourable Comp[any] &amp; their Successors and shall duly obey all the Laws and Cons- titutions of the Said Island Yeilding &amp; Paying therefore Yearly &amp; every Year during the said Term unto the said Hon[ourable] Company their Successors Agents or Assigns the Yearly Rent of Four Shilling p[er] Acre besides one Shilling duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of march allways Provided that he the said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Immediately Sett about &amp; Fence in the Said Acres of Land with a good &amp; Sufficient Fence and that so Inclosed &amp; Fenced that then he or they do proceed to Plant one Acre in Ten and So Pro- portionable for a greater or Lesser Quantity with Such Plants of Timber Trees or Such other wood as he or they can get to grow Best thereon, &amp; upon failure of the Woods Groweing upon y[e] first Second or third Planting he the said or his Successors Shall Yearly at the Proper Seasons of the year replant the same with the best Plants of Timber or other Thriveing Trees as he or they can get, as aforesaid and that the said His Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall likewise Plant Lemond Trees round all and every the Inside of the said Fences beside Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every one Acer of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to Plant others in their Room or Stead as any of them Shall decay so as the same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchard or Lemon Garden and the whole Acres of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently Kept in good heart and repair when and as often as need Shall require, and not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the Land Marks and which will Occasion the alteration of the Plott hereunto Annexed, nor Shall not Sell nor no way Dispose of the Lease or Interest in the same contrary to the Tenor and true meaning thereof without the Knowledge and consent of the Govern[or] and Council for the time being In witness whereof the said Hon[ourable] Company and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Set their Common Seal at their Castle in James Valley this D[omi]ni one Thousand Seven hundred Nineteen and the said to the other part hath sett his hand and Seal | The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life.The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island.The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation.The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground.On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain.The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden.The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan.The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being.The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley in 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart.The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |
|---------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              | Seal'd & Deliver'd in the Presence of                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 261 | 256          | Island St Helena The Honourable the Lords Proprietors of this Island the Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] of merchants of England Trading to The East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease Sett and to Farm Sett unto of the Said Island all that Peice or Parcell of Land Containing Acres Scituate Lying and being in the Division of the Island at or near the To have and to hold the said hereby Demised Acres of Land with the Appertinances and every Part thereof to him the said his Heirs Executors Administrators or allowed of Assigns From the Day of the date of these Presents for and Dureing all the Time Space and Term of the natural Lives of all of this Island and the Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the Said Nominees upon the Payment of half a years rent at the admittance of each Life or new Nominee, upon Condition that he the said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Do alwayes bear true Faith and Allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Heirs and Successors and to the s[ai]d Hon[ourable] Company and their Successors, and shall duly Obey all the Laws &amp; Constitutions of the Said Island Yelding &amp; Paying therefore Yearly &amp; every Year During the said Term unto the said Hon[ourable] Company their Successors Agents or Assigns the Yearly rent of Four Shillings p[er] Acre besides one Shilling in duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Acre at the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of March Provided that he the said his Heirs &amp;c[t] Shall Imediately Sett about &amp; Fence In the Said Acres of Land with a good &amp; Sufficient Fence &amp; when so Inclosed &amp; Fenced that then he or they do Proceed to Plant one Acre in Ten and So Proportionable for a greater or a Lesser Quantity with such Plants of Timber Trees or such other wood as he or they can get to Grow Best thereon, &amp; upon Failure of the Woods Growing upon the First, Second or third Planting he the said or his Successors Shall Yearly at the Proper Seasons of y[e] Year replant the same with the Best Plants of Timber or other Thriving Trees as he or they can gett as aforesaid and that the said his Heirs or allowed of Assigns Shall Likewise Plant Lemon Trees round all and every the Insides of the said Fences, beside Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every one Acre of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to Plant others in their Room &amp; Stead as any of them Shall decay so as the Same may be a good Fruit Bearing Orchyad or Lemon Garden &amp; the whole Acres of Land with the Fences to be well &amp; Sufficiently kept in good heart &amp; repair when &amp; as often as need Shall require, &amp; not to Suffer the ground to be run out nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are the | Island of St Helena A further instance of the same standard lives-based leasehold template follows in the register, again left blank for completion at the point of execution. The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation. The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden. The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made. |
| 262 | 257          | &amp;c the Land marks &amp; which will Occasion the Alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way Dispose of this Lease or Interest in the Same Contrary to the Tenour &amp; true meaning of these Presents without the Knowledge &amp; Consent of the Govern[or] and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the said Hon[ourable] United Comp[any] and Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Sett their Common Seal at their Castle In James Valley this D[ominij] One Thousand Seven hundred &amp; Nineteen and the said To the other Part hath Setts to his hand &amp; Seal Sealed &amp; Delivered In the Prossence of Island St Helena The Hon[ourable] The Lords Proprietors of this Island The Honourable United Company of Merchants Trading to the East Indies do hereby Demise Grant Lease Setts &amp; to Farm Sett unto of the said Island all                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       | The fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the knowledge and consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley in 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. Island of St Helena A further instance of the same standard lives-based leasehold template follows in the register, again left blank for completion at the point of execution.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

| BL Image No.        | Document No. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | Modern Summary with Analysis                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|---------------------|--------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|                     |              | that Piece or Parcels of Land containing Acers Sciteate Lying &amp; being in the Division of this Island at or near the To have &amp; to hold the said hereby Demised Acers of Land with the appurtenances and every Part thereof to him the said His Heirs Executors Administrators or allowed of Assigns from the Day of the date of these Presents for and During all the Time Space &amp; Term of the natural Lives of all of this Island and The Longest Liver of either of them Renewable after the Death of any of the said Nominee upon the full Payment of half a Years rent at the admittance of each new Life or Nominee upon Condition that he the said his heires or allowed of Assigns Do allways bear true Faith &amp; Allegiance to our Sovereign Lord King George his Hiers &amp; Successors &amp; to the said Hon[our]b[le] Company &amp; their Successors &amp; Shall Duly Obey all the Laws &amp; Constitutions of the said Island Yeilding &amp; Paying therefore Yearly &amp; every Year during the said Term unto the said Hon[our]b[le] Company their Successors Agents or Assigns the yearly rent of of Four Shillings p[er] Acer besides One Shilling p[er] Acre Duty being in all five Shillings p[er] Acer the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary being the Twenty fifth of March Provided that                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | The Honourable Lords Proprietors of the island, being the Honourable United Company of Merchants trading to the East Indies, leased to [...] of the island a parcel of [...] acres in the [...] Division at or near [...]. The lease ran to him, his heirs, executors, administrators or allowed assigns from the date of the deed for the natural lives of [...], all of the island, with the term continuing as long as any one of them lived. The lease was renewable on the death of any nominee, on full payment of half a year's rent at the admittance of each new life. The tenant and his successors were required to keep true faith and allegiance to King George, his heirs and successors, and to the Company and its successors, and to obey all the laws and constitutions of the island. The annual rent ran at 4s 0d per acre plus 1s 0d duty per acre, making 5s 0d per acre in all, payable each 25 March on the feast of the Annunciation.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |
| 263 | 258          | That he the said his Hiers &amp;c[t] Shall Immediately Sett about &amp; Fence in the said Acers of Land with a good &amp; Sufficient Fence, and that So in =closed &amp; Fenced that then he or they do Proceed to Plant one Acer in Ten and So Report =ortible for a greater or Lesser quantity with Such Plants of Timber Trees or such other wood as he or they can gett to grow the best thereon, &amp; upon failure of the woods Groweing upon the First Second or third Planting he the said or his successors Shall Yearly at the Proper Seasons of the year replant the Same with the best Plants of Timber or other Thriveing Trees as he or they can get as aforesaid &amp; that the said his Heires or allowed of Assigns Shall Likewise Plant Lemon Trees round all &amp; every the Inside of the said Fences beside Ten more Lemon or other good Fruit Trees for every One Acer of the aforesaid Demised Land, and to Plant others in their Roam or Stead as any of them Shall decay so as the Same may be a good Fruit bearing Orchya[r]d or Lemon Garden and the whole Acers of Land with the Fences to be well and Sufficiently kept in good heart &amp; repair when &amp; as often as need Shall require and not to Suffer the Ground to be run out, nor to alter the Fences after they are well made which are Land marks and which will Occasion the alteration of the Plott hereunto annexed nor Shall not Sell nor no way dispose of this Lease or Interest in the same Contrary to the Tenour and true meaning thereof without the Consent of the Gov[ern]o[r]t and Council for the time being In Witness whereof the said Honourable United Comp[any] &amp; Lords Proprietors to these Presents have Sett their Common Seal at their Castle in James Valley this D[omi]ni one Thousand seven hundred &amp; Nineteen And the said to the other Part hath set to his hand &amp; Seal Sealed &amp; Delivered in the Presence of | The tenant was bound to fence the parcel immediately with a good and sufficient fence. Once enclosed, he was to plant one acre in ten, in proportion to a greater or smaller area, with timber trees or other suitable wood that would grow best on the ground. On failure of the trees at the first, second or third planting, the tenant or his successors were to replant each year at the proper seasons with the best plants of timber or other thriving trees they could obtain. The tenant and his successors were also bound to plant lemon trees round the inside of every fence, with a further ten lemon or other good fruit trees for each acre of the demised land, and to replace any tree as it decayed, so that the ground became a productive orchard or lemon garden. The whole acreage and the fences were to be kept in good heart and repair as often as need required. The ground was not to be run out, and the fences were not to be altered once properly made, since they served as the landmarks fixed to the plan annexed to the lease, and any alteration would disturb that plan. The tenant could not sell or otherwise dispose of the lease or his interest in it against the meaning of the deed without the consent of the governor and council for the time being. The Company sealed the deed under its common seal at the Castle in James Valley in 1719, and the tenant set his hand and seal to the counterpart. The deed was sealed and delivered in the presence of [...]. |
| 264 | 259          | Blank page                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 265 | 260          | Book cover                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| 266 | 261          | EAP 1364 St Helena Document Name and Date: Register of Leases and Deeds 1682-1719 Dimensions (height x width x depth) (cm): (h) 53 cm x (W) 38 cm x (D) 6 cm No. written pages: 258 No. blank pages: 2 Spine and cover: Good Condition                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

| BLImageNo. | DocumentNo. | OCR Transcription                                                                                                                   | Modern Summary with Analysis |
|--------------------|-----------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------|
|                    |                 | Inside pages: Good Condition Pages are numbered Additional comments: Time taken to photograph (hours): 5 hours |                              |